Man Tells Aid to Gross Via Phones

Former Telephone Co. Employe Testifies How He Got Hundreds for Bookies

Mandel Gives Story

Former Gross Runner Took Part in Arrest as Accommodation

New York, July 30 (AP)—A former telephone company employe testified today that he helped former bookie king Harry Gross get hundreds of telephones for bookmakers.

Alvin (Cliff) Steward, once supervisor of the "Circle 5) exchange in Manhattan, with more than 20,000 telephone lines, was a witness at the departmental trial of 34 policemen accused of protecting Gross' 20-million-dollar-a-year gambling empire.

Steward, now operator of the Boro Lounge, a tavern in Queens, said that in his telephone job, during World War 2, he had jurisdiction over applications for new telephone lines.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Victor Herwitz, prosecuting attorney, asked whether there were other bookmakers in addition to Gross who obtained lines.

Was Clearing House

"There were," said Steward, "but Harry acted as the clearing house. He was supposed to be the big shot and have the contacts."

"Then you and Harry Gross got many telephones for bookmakers?" asked Herwitz.

"Yes, I would say hundreds," Steward replied.

Nathan Mandel, a former runner for Gross, said he once submitted to an "accommodation" or "stand-in" arrest by one of the 34 policemen on trial.

All 34 are charged with sharing in the million-dollars-a-year graft Gross says he paid for police protection of his reputed 20-millions-a-year Brooklyn gambling empire.

Mandel, of Brooklyn, was one of two former Gross runners who testified yesterday. Both said they had been arrested several times while they worked for Gross between 1947 and 1950.

In 1948, Mandel said, a Gross lieutenant told him to submit to an accommodation arrest. Mandel said he was in a horse betting room at the time and walked outside.

Golden Was Waiting

Waiting to take him to a police station, Mandel testified, was Patrolman Richard Golden, a defendant. An "accommodation" arrest is one made to make a police officer's record look good.

Peter Koch, of 57-30 79th street, Elmhurst, Queens, was the other former Gross runner who testified yesterday. Questioned about one horse betting room, Koch said he took no precautions against arrest, because "I was under the impression that the spot was paid for and taken care of."

In an affair related to the Gross investigation, the wife of a former policeman yesterday was indicted for criminal contempt for refusing to discuss her husband's finances before the Brooklyn Grand Jury that broke the Gross empire. The woman, Mrs. Eleanor Monaghan, pleaded innocent and was paroled in the custody of her husband, Walter, for trial Aug. 11.

Florida Paper Endorses General

St. Petersburg, Fla., July 30 (AP)—The St. Petersburg Independent today endorsed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sen. Richard M. Nixon.

In a full-page editorial the Independent said "we believe the time has come for the south to shake itself loose from the left wing of the Democratic party which no longer represents the principles and beliefs of the southern people, and take its rightful role in American political affairs."

The Independent backed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the same reasons in 1948. Its principal circulation area, Pinellas county, went Republican in that presidential year by a 10,000 vote majority.

Two to Join Ike For GOP Fight; South Grumbles

South Loses Crops, Tennessee Listed As Disaster Area

Hot, Dry Belt Extends Over Huge Section —Dever to Seek Federal Aid

(By The Associated Press)

The south's long spell of hot and humid weather continued today, increasing the threat of heavy damage to crops in many areas. Crops also were in danger from the drouth in Massachusetts.

The hot, dry belt extended over most of Texas, the Gulf States and the South Atlantic States.

The summer-long hot weather has virtually destroyed some crops, particularly corn, in some sections of the southeast. Pastures have been burned brown, forcing many farmers to sell livestock.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has declared Tennessee a disaster area. Other sections in the southeast, department officials said, may be designated as drouth disaster areas.

Dever Asks Assistance

In Boston, Gov. Paul A. Dever said he will ask the federal government to declare Massachusetts a disaster area because of the prolonged drouth. He said the drouth "has done irreparable damage to crops." Rainfall has measured less than one inch in July.

Yesterday was one of the hottest days of the summer season in many southeastern states, with temperatures climbing above 100 in cities in Alabama, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Arkansas. It hit 108 in Huntsville, Ala., and Anderson, S. C.; 107 at Columbia, S. C., and Tuscaloosa, Ala., and 106 in Birmingham and Muscle Shoals, Ala., and Rome, Ga.

It was generally fair and pleasant weather in other parts of the country today. Cool air extended over the northern tier of states from the Dakotas to New England.

Light rain was reported early today along the Mississippi valley, parts of Georgia, and the central Atlantic states, Arizona and Nevada.

Theft Is Reported

Helsinki, July 30 (AP)—Mrs. Zoe Ann Olsen Jensen, U. S. Olympic spring board diver, said about $300 in currency and a diamond wrist watch were stolen from her room in the women's Olympic village yesterday evening. Mrs. Jensen, wife of the Washington Senators outfielder, Jackie Jensen, said that she was visiting friends just two doors down the hall at the time of the theft. She said that other items in her room, including her wedding ring, were not touched.

Will Go to Scotland

Keflavik, Iceland, July 30 (AP)—Four airmen, in two United States Air Rescue Service helicopters making a trans-Atlantic flight, planned to leave here after daybreak tomorrow for Prestwick, Scotland. The helicopters, Hopalong and Whirlaway, arrived here from Greenland at 9 p. m. (4 p. m. EST) yesterday, completing the 840-mile journey in nine hours 50 minutes. The flight to Prestwick is expected to take more than 11 hours.

Air Force Denies U.S. Is in Peril

BY VERN HAUGLAND
(AP Aviation Reporter)

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The air force says it's still checking into flying saucer reports, but it's certain of one thing: The saucers—whatever they are—don't seem to be a menace to the United States. Most of the sightings traced to date have turned out to be natural phenomena.

A flurry of reports that scores of unidentified objects had been spotted by radar in the Washington area during the past 10 days led the air force to call a special news conference yesterday to tell what it knew—or thought—of the saucers.

The official air force conclusion, announced yesterday:

About one-fifth of the sighting reports are "from credible observers, of relatively incredible things—so we keep on being concerned about them."

No Pattern Formed

Of the one-fifth for which there is no explanation, Maj. Gen. John A. Samford, intelligence director, said:

"No pattern has ever been found that reveals anything remotely like a purpose or consistency that can in any way be associated with any menace to the United States."

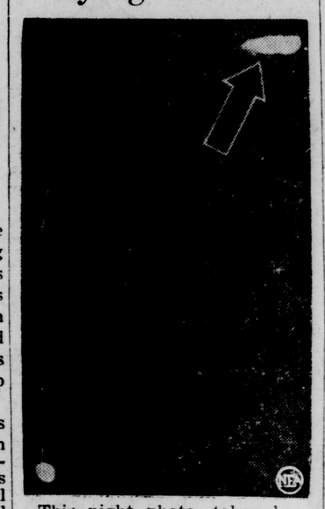

Samford is one of the air force's two top experts on saucers. The other is Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey, director of operations. Both attended the news conference to answer questions newsmen tossed their way.

Ramey and Samford announced that since 1947 the air force has analyzed about 2,000 reports of sightings of strange objects in the sky.

The bulk of these, after cross-checking, have been reasonably identified as the product of friendly aircraft, out-and-out hoaxes, or

Flying Saucer?

This night photo, taken by a plane spotter in Jersey City, N. J., is reported to show a "flying saucer" hurtling through the sky over New York city. The "saucer" is picked out by an arrow. Fixed circle at lower left is the light on the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building. Air Force officials began investigations as a new rash of "saucer" sightings were reported.

All-Time Lows For Date Broken In Parts of State

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—New York state imported an air-conditioner from Canada today and temperatures dipped to 41 to break all-time lows for the date.

The cold air mass from Canada brought a welcome turnabout to New Yorkers who sweltered through one of the hottest Julys on record.

The Weather Bureau said the cool, comfortable weather would linger at least through the weekend.

Temperatures were expected to rise into the 70s today and possibly reach 80 in some communities. Lows tonight were expected to be in the upper 50s.

The mercury dropped to 41 in Massena.

Records for the date were broken in Syracuse and Albany. At Syracuse it was 52, one degree under the record set in 1914. In Albany, it was 48, four degrees below the 1925 mark.

Other lows included: Glens Falls, 44; Oneonta, 45; Watertown, 46; Elmira, 48; Utica, 49; Dansville and Rome, 51; Binghamton and Poughkeepsie, 53; Buffalo, 56, and Dunkirk, 58.

Lamar 'Holler' Folks Tire Of Feudin'; It's Too Noisy

Bluefield, W. Va., July 30 (AP)—"Call the law, 'cause they're at it again," cried a youngster with buckshot in the seat of his pants.

"They better stop this shootin' so a man can get some sleep," complained another resident of nearby Lamar Hollow.

Both reflected the sentiments of folks in the hollow who would like to see an end to the four-family shootin' feud which has been outstanding for its poor marksmanship.

The indignant youngter and another neutral in the feud, a man with a peg leg, each were hit by wild shotgun pellets as the Howertons continued their argument with the Blankenships, Pendergrasses and Sigmans.

L. E. King, superintendent of a coal operation and a man prominent in the community since he has the only telephone, reported last night the wounding of the pair who had no interest or connection with the feudin' and fussin'.

Neither was hospitalized and their hurts apparently were no more serious than the slight wounds received earlier by one of the Blankenships and one of the Howertons.

And King added somewhat testily that his sleep has been broken twice in the last three nights as shots rang out in the argument over land ownership.

State Police say they've tightened their vigil around the area,

U. S. Will Tell Spain Price For Bases Must Be Lowered

FBI Claims It Has Proof of Aims

Says Party Asks Overthrow of U. S. by Force and Violence

Washington, July 30 (AP)—An FBI report claims documentary proof that the Communist party in the United States "teaches and advocates the overthrow and destruction of the U. S. government by force and violence."

The long-secret report was made public yesterday, with the permission of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, by the Senate internal security subcommittee headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev).

It says William Z. Foster, chairman of the Communist party in this country, in July 1949 called the writings of Stalin, Lenin, Engles and Marx "Communist classics * * * accepted by all Communist parties, including our own. * * * we American Communists apply them strategically and tactically in the need of specific American conditions."

The report then quotes from these "classics," asserting that "Lenin and Stalin both specifically reject 'peaceful means'—both insist on the necessity for violent revolution."

Says View Rejected

The FBI said Stalin, in his book called "Foundations of Leninism" published in 1939, wrote that Marx, a 19th century theorist and one of the founders of communism, believed there was an outside chance for a peaceful Communist revolution in the United States and Great Britain.

Stalin rejected this view, the FBI said, and wrote:

"The proletarian revolution is impossible without the forcible destruction of the bourgoise (middle class) state machine, and the substitution for it of a new one."

Lenin, Stalin's predecessor as leader of Communist Russia, was quoted in the FBI report as say-

Franco Would Use Cash Freely, Get Military Aid for Nation

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The United States is preparing to tell Franco Spain that its price for American use of air and naval bases on Spanish territory must be drastically reduced if agreement is to be reached.

American - Spanish negotiations covering the base problem and a program of American aid to Spain have been underway since early this year.

The avowed United States aim is to strengthen the western defense system against Russia by dealing directly with the Franco government, since there has long ben adamant opposition among the Atlantic Pact nations against bringing Spain into the treaty.

Terms Are Given

In an informal note received here within recent days, the Franco government spelled out in a general way its terms for entering into an agreement with the United States on problems.

Diplomatic informants said that in essence what Madrid proposed was that 125 million dollars which Congress appropriated for aid to Spain should be made available for Spanish use immediately with no strings attached about how it should be used. Also, the United States should undertake to provide Spain with what one informant called very large military aid.

Then Spain would be prepared to consider the desires of the United States for the use of bases in peace and war.

Informants said the United States could not accept such terms and the far-reaching commitments they imply with expenditures potentially running into billions of dollars, and that the Franco government would shortly be so informed.

Demonstration Staged

Brussels, Belgium, July 30 (AP)—Soldiers and workers demonstrated today against Belgium's two-year conscription period. Reports said windows were broken in a Brussels barrack by protesting soldiers while in Liege 10,000 workers went on a one-day strike. Eighty-five demonstrating soldiers were arrested in Namur last week following a clash with military and civilian police. The Social Christian government stepped up the conscription period from a year to two years, 18 months ago. Since then Socialists and Communists have conducted a campaign to have the period reduced.

Liberals Back Stevenson

New York, July 30 (AP)—Adolf A. Berle, Jr., state chairman of the Liberal party, is backing the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket. He says he will personally recommend at a party meeting Aug. 5 that the Democratic nominees be given Liberal party support. Berle made the statement last night in answer to a question on the "City Hall" television program of Station WPIX. He said he believed he would be joined in the recommendation by other officials of the Liberal party which is organized only in New York state.

U. S. Beats Brazil

Helsinki, July 30 (AP) — The United States Olympic basketball team came from behind in the second half to defeat Brazil, 57 to 53 today and remain undefeated in Olympic competition. Brazil led 26-24 at half time. It was the sixth straight Olympic victory for the United States, which now enters the final round-robin competition.

Van Fleet Reports Armistice Chances Poorer Than Ever

Says Communists Believe UN Will Not Attack to Force Truce With Them

Seoul, Korea, July 30 (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today there is less chance for an armistice in Korea than ever before.

The U. S. Eighth Army commander told a news conference the prospect for an armistice is in direct proportion to the amount of military pressure put on the Communists and that the Communists believe the United Nations forces will not attack to force a truce.

He said the Reds "still have the capability of striking at any point with considerable surprise."

But he added they have been "thinning out their front line strength quite a bit over a period of many weeks" to the point where it is "thinner than ever before."

Cites Their Reasons

He said their reasons for doing so were:

1. Floods.
2. UN close air support of infantry attacks.
3. Pressure on the ground by the Eighth Army.
4. Lack of supplies in the Communist forward areas.
5. Threat of a UN amphibious offensive.
6. A Communist decision that the UN forces will not attack and that there will not be an armistice.

Armistice talks at Panmunjom are in recess until Sunday.

Van Fleet said the Communists were "in a position of readiness to wait out a war."

"Whether this is connected with an armistice or not is anybody's guess," he said.

Van Fleet sail although the Reds had "thinned out" their frontlines, they still had almost a million men in Korea. He said he believed the main reason the Reds thinned their front line forces was the Eighth Army's "heavy pressure by artillery fire.

"At long last, it has become apparent to the enemy that he has been a damn fool to stay in the frontlines for us to shoot at."

South Africa and Australia Will Supply Uranium Ore

By FRANK CAREY
(AP Science Reporter)

Washington, July 3 (AP)—Precious uranium ore for America's ever-expanding atomic program will soon be coming from two new foreign sources—South Africa and Australia—the United States revealed today in a report also disclosing substantial progress in developing improved atomic weapons during the past six months.

The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) in its 12th semi-annual report to Congress further disclosed that additional uranium may come from new sources in Canada—long an American supplier—and that new sources within the United States are nearly ready for initial production.

Implying a vastly increased tempo for its entire atomic enterprise, the AEC revealed that its plants for producing atomic fissionable materials for explosives and other uses had at times been pushed even beyond their designed operating capacities—even as new ones are being built and still others are in prospect under the recently approved 3½ billion dollars expansion program.

The AEC's report to Congress also listed:

1. Progress in the development of atomic propulsion for aircraft—with certain phases of design and development work having gained momentum in the past half-year.
2. Continuance of a project to build a second type of atomic engine for possible use in a submarine—even as work progresses on building a hull for a submarine which will house an atomic power plant of a different type.
3. Research accomplishments offering hope for the development of a powerful medicine with which to treat people severely exposed to atomic radiation.
4. Significant advances towards developing improved atomic reactors—or "furnaces"—which might be used some day for producing useful atomic power and for other purposes.
5. Increased production of raw uranium ore from existing domestic sources—even as "new sources, both foreign and domestic are nearly ready for initial production."

Regarding weapons developments, the AEC followed its usual policy of guarded, close-to-the-vest statements.

But it made two separate references to the fact that it couldn't say much publicly along these lines—thereby prompting speculation that the weapons developments are really hot stuff.

"Although for reasons of security, it is impossible here to specify

Kingsburys Are To Be Welcomed By Friends of Reds

Woodstock, July 30—The board of directors of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship will hold a reception to welcome home Dr. John A. Kingsbury, national chairman, and Mrs. Kingsbury, both of Shady, Thursday evening, at the Hotel Capitol, Eighth avenue at 51st street, New York.

The Kingsburys according to officials of the organization, are returning August 1, from one year's travel abroad.

An invitation to the reception received in this village relates the following:

Dr. Kingsbury comes directly from one month's tour in June 1952 of the Peoples' Republic of China and attendance at the Peace Conference in Peking.

Dr. and Mrs. Kingsbury spent two months in traveling in the Soviet Union last fall. Dr. Kingsbury has been twice in the Soviet capital in recent weeks.

They were in continuous attendance at the sessions of the last General Assembly of the United Nations in Paris.

During the past year, Dr. Kingsbury has addressed national and international peace meetings in the major capitals of Europe.

Dr. Kingsbury will speak of all these travels at the reception and answer the questions of the audience.

Lawmakers Out to Help Eisenhower

Plank Is Scored

Four Southern States Hit at Civil Rights Rather Than at Nominees

(By The Associated Press)

New voices were added to the Republican harmony chorus today as notes of discord sounded among Democrats in the south.

Two senators who backed the unsuccessful fight of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio to win the GOP presidential nomination were welcomed into the camp of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the party nominee. They are Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois and Sen. Hugh Butler of Nebraska.

Dirksen, who touched off a demonstration at the Republican convention in a speech blasting Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, an Eisenhower strategist, disclosed through his office that he will fly to Denver Saturday to participate in a weekend series of Eisenhower campaign strategy conferences.

Called on Eisenhower

Butler called on Eisenhower yesterday and came out predicting victory for the general in Nebraska and expressing confidence that Taft will take an active part in the campaign to put Eisenhower in the White House.

In Indiana, the pre-convention state committee for Eisenhower decided to stay in existence, but agreed to cooperate with the pro-Taft regular Republican state organization.

In the Democratic camp, rumblings of discontent were heard in Virginia, South Carolina, Louisiana and Mississippi. They appeared to be directed more at the Democratic platform's civil rights plank than at the party's nominees, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama.

Would Have Voted

In South Carolina, Gov. James F. Byrnes said he would have voted against the platform if he had the chance. He said he will make his views on the candidates known when the state Democratic convention reconvenes Aug. 6 to decide upon a course of action.

The Richmond, Va., News Leader became the first Richmond newspaper to support a non-Democratic presidential candidate since 1896. It came out for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket. But a political source close to the Virginia state Democratic central committee predicted that the state convention would not be reconvened to bolt the Democratic ticket. A decision is left up to state party leaders.

In Mississippi, former Lt. Gov. Sam Lumpkin of Tupelo said Eisenhower's name will be suggested for possible endorsement at the Aug. 28 reopening of the state Democratic convention. But Gov. Hugh White has said he will support the national Democratic ticket.

Will Make Decision

Louisiana Gov. Robert Kennon said the state Democratic central committee will decide whether to support the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket.

In Tuesday's Democratic primary in Arkansas, Sid McMath, seeking a third term as governor with President Truman's support, led four opponents but was forced

McMahon Death Will Make Tighter Battle in Senate

Democratic Majority Drops to Three, Makes 35 Seats Sought in Election

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Most politicians agreed today the death of Sen. Brien McMahon (D.-Conn.) will make even tighter the already touch-and-go battle between Democrats and Republicans for control of the Senate this fall.

McMahon's death Monday reduced the wobbly Senate Democratic majority to three and boosted to 35 the number of seats at stake in the November elections.

As matters now stand, there are 46 Republican senators, 49 Democrats and one vacancy in the 96 Senate seats.

Of the 35 seats to be filled this fall, 15 are now held by Democrats and 20 by Republicans. The majority of the present senators are still serving out their six-year terms and are not up for re-election.

Republicans to regain Senate control in 1953 must elect at least 23 senators this fall to gain a bare majority of 49.

Need 14 Winners

Democrats need only 14 winners in Senate contests to retain a bare majority. Many of the Senate contests are in southern or border states where Democrats normally win.

Republican enthusiasts for Dwight D. Eisenhower, GOP presidential nominee, are counting on his vote-getting ability at the head of the ticket to produce majorities in both the House and Senate.

Boosters for Democratic nominee Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois expect the same of him.

Each Loses One

Because both vice presidential nominees are senators, Republican Richard Nixon of California and Democrat John Sparkman of Alabama, the winning ticket automatically will lose a Senate seat temporarily.

However governors of their states are of the same party as the nominees, and are expected to appoint successors from the same party, keeping the balance unchanged.

One thing is certain: There will be at least six new faces in the Senate in January:

They will be successors to Sens. Connally (D.-Tex.), O'Conor (D.-Mo.) and Seaton (R.-Neb.) who are not seeking re-election; McMahon; Brewster (R.-Me.), who lost in a primary; and to the successful vice presidential candidate.

One Dead, 10 Missing

Tokyo, July 30 (AP)—One person is dead and 10 are missing as a result of heavy rains last night on southern Honshu, largest of the Japanese islands. Kyodo News Agency said about 3,000 homes and 1,087 acres of farmland were flooded.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The position of the treasury July 28: Net budget receipts $107,046,173.15. Budget expenditures $224,684,933.60. Cash balance $8,010,630,373.55 Customs receipts for month $41,643,007.15. Budget receipts fiscal year July 1, $2,904,348,036.06 Budget expenditures fiscal year $5,756,480,031.33. Budget deficit $2,852,131,995.27. Total debt $262,969,942,737.28. Increase over previous day $11,941,604.92. Gold assets $23,349,874,833.04.

About one-fifth of the sighting reports are "from credible observers, of relatively incredible things—so we keep on being concerned about them."

No Pattern Formed

Of the one-fifth for which there is no explanation, Maj. Gen. John A. Samford, intelligence director, said:

"No pattern has ever been found that reveals anything remotely like a purpose or consistency that can in any way be associated with any menace to the United States."

Samford is one of the air force's two top experts on saucers. The other is Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey, director of operations. Both attended the news conference to answer questions newsmen tossed their way.

Ramey and Samford announced that since 1947 the air force has analyzed about 2,000 reports of sightings of strange objects in the sky.

The bulk of these, after cross-checking, have been reasonably identified as the product of friendly aircraft, out-and-out hoaxes, or

All-Time Lows For Date Broken In Parts of State

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—New York state imported an air-conditioner from Canada today and temperatures dipped to 41 to break all-time lows for the date.

The cold air mass from Canada brought a welcome turnabout to New Yorkers who sweltered through one of the hottest Julys on record.

The Weather Bureau said the cool, comfortable weather would linger at least through the weekend.

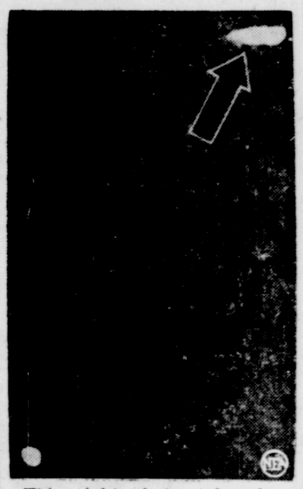

Temperatures were expected to rise into the 70s today and possibly reach 80 in some communities. Lows tonight were expected to be in the upper 50s.

The mercury dropped to 41 in Massena.

Records for the date were broken in Syracuse and Albany. At Syracuse it was 52, one degree under the record set in 1914. In Albany, it was 48, four degrees below the 1925 mark.

Other lows included: Glens Falls, 44; Oneonta, 45; Watertown, 46; Elmira, 48; Utica, 49; Dansville and Rome, 51; Binghamton and Poughkeepsie, 53; Buffalo, 56, and Dunkirk, 58.

Flying Saucer?

This night photo, taken by a plane spotter in Jersey City, N. J., is reported to show a "flying saucer" hurtling through the sky over New York city. The "saucer" is picked out by an arrow. Fixed circle at lower left is the light on the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building. Air Force officials began investigations as a new rash of "saucer" sightings were reported.

McMahon Death Will Make Tighter Battle in Senate

Democratic Majority Drops to Three, Makes 35 Seats Sought in Election

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Most politicians agreed today the death of Sen. Brien McMahon (D.-Conn.) will make even tighter the already touch-and-go battle between Democrats and Republicans for control of the Senate this fall.

McMahon's death Monday reduced the wobbly Senate Democratic majority to three and boosted to 35 the number of seats at stake in the November elections.

As matters now stand, there are 46 Republican senators, 49 Democrats and one vacancy in the 96 Senate seats.

Of the 35 seats to be filled this fall, 15 are now held by Democrats and 20 by Republicans. The majority of the present senators are still serving out their six-year terms and are not up for re-election.

Republicans to regain Senate control in 1953 must elect at least 23 senators this fall to gain a bare majority of 49.

Need 14 Winners

Democrats need only 14 winners in Senate contests to retain a bare majority. Many of the Senate contests are in southern or border states where Democrats normally win.

Republican enthusiasts for Dwight D. Eisenhower, GOP presidential nominee, are counting on his vote-getting ability at the head of the ticket to produce majorities in both the House and Senate.

Boosters for Democratic nominee Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois expect the same of him.

Each Loses One

Because both vice presidential nominees are senators, Republican Richard Nixon of California and Democrat John Sparkman of Alabama, the winning ticket automatically will lose a Senate seat temporarily.

However governors of their states are of the same party as the nominees, and are expected to appoint successors from the same party, keeping the balance unchanged.

One thing is certain: There will be at least six new faces in the Senate in January:

They will be successors to Sens. Connally (D.-Tex.), O'Conor (D.-Md.) and Seaton (R.-Neb.) who are not seeking re-election; McMahon; Brewster (R.-Me.), who lost in a primary; and to the successful vice presidential candidate.

One Dead, 10 Missing

Tokyo, July 30 (AP)—One person is dead and 10 are missing as a result of heavy rains last night on southern Honshu, largest of the Japanese islands. Kyodo News Agency said about 3,000 homes and 1,087 acres of farmland were flooded.

Lawmakers Out to Help Eisenhower

Plank Is Scored

Four Southern States Hit at Civil Rights Rather Than at Nominees

(By The Associated Press)

New voices were added to the Republican harmony chorus today as notes of discord sounded among Democrats in the south.

Two senators who backed the unsuccessful fight of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio to win the GOP presidential nomination were welcomed into the camp of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the party nominee. They are Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois and Sen. Hugh Butler of Nebraska.

Dirksen, who touched off a demonstration at the Republican convention in a speech blasting Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, an Eisenhower strategist, disclosed through his office that he will fly to Denver Saturday to participate in a weekend series of Eisenhower campaign strategy conferences.

Called on Eisenhower

Butler called on Eisenhower yesterday and came out predicting victory for the general in Nebraska and expressing confidence that Taft will take an active part in the campaign to put Eisenhower in the White House.

In Indiana, the pre-convention state committee for Eisenhower decided to stay in existence, but agreed to cooperate with the pro-Taft regular Republican state organization.

In the Democratic camp, rumblings of discontent were heard in Virginia, South Carolina, Louisiana and Mississippi. They appeared to be directed more at the Democratic platform's civil rights plank than at the party's nominees, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama.

Would Have Voted

In South Carolina, Gov. James F. Byrnes said he would have voted against the platform if he had the chance. He said he will make his views on the candidates known when the state Democratic convention reconvenes Aug. 6 to decide upon a course of action.

The Richmond, Va., News Leader became the first Richmond newspaper to support a non-Democratic presidential candidate since 1896. It came out for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket. But a political source close to the Virginia state Democratic central committee predicted that the state convention would not be reconvened to bolt the Democratic ticket. A decision is left up to state party leaders.

In Mississippi, former Lt. Gov. Sam Lumpkin of Tupelo said Eisenhower's name will be suggested for possible endorsement at the Aug. 28 reopening of the state Democratic convention. But Gov. Hugh White has said he will support the national Democratic ticket.

Will Make Decision

Louisiana Gov. Robert Kennon said the state Democratic central committee will decide whether to support the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket.

In Tuesday's Democratic primary in Arkansas, Sid McMath, seeking a third term as governor with President Truman's support, led four opponents but was forced

U. S. Will Tell Spain Price For Bases Must Be Lowered

FBI Claims It Has Proof of Aims

Says Party Asks Overthrow of U. S. by Force and Violence

Washington, July 30 (AP)—An FBI report claims documentary proof that the Communist party in the United States "teaches and advocates the overthrow and destruction of the U. S. government by force and violence."

The long-secret report was made public yesterday, with the permission of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, by the Senate internal security subcommittee headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev).

It says William Z. Foster, chairman of the Communist party in this country, in July 1949 called the writings of Stalin, Lenin, Engles and Marx "Communist classics * * * accepted by all Communist parties, including our own. * * * we American Communists apply them strategically and tactically in the need of specific American conditions."

The report then quotes from these "classics," asserting that "Lenin and Stalin both specifically reject 'peaceful means'—both insist on the necessity for violent revolution."

Says View Rejected

The FBI said Stalin, in his book called "Foundations of Leninism" published in 1939, wrote that Marx, a 19th century theorist and one of the founders of communism, believed there was an outside chance for a peaceful Communist revolution in the United States and Great Britain.

Stalin rejected this view, the FBI said, and wrote:

"The proletarian revolution is impossible without the forcible destruction of the bourgoise (middle class) state machine, and the substitution for it of a new one."

Lenin, Stalin's predecessor as leader of Communist Russia, was quoted in the FBI report as say-

Franco Would Use Cash Freely, Get Military Aid for Nation

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The United States is preparing to tell Franco Spain that its price for American use of air and naval bases on Spanish territory must be drastically reduced if agreement is to be reached.

American - Spanish negotiations covering the base problem and a program of American aid to Spain have been underway since early this year.

The avowed United States aim is to strengthen the western defense system against Russia by dealing directly with the Franco government, since there has long ben adamant opposition among the Atlantic Pact nations against bringing Spain into the treaty.

Terms Are Given

In an informal note received here within recent days, the Franco government spelled out in a general way its terms for entering into an agreement with the United States on problems.

Diplomatic informants said that in essence what Madrid proposed was that 125 million dollars which Congress appropriated for aid to Spain should be made available for Spanish use immediately with no strings attached about how it should be used. Also, the United States should undertake to provide Spain with what one informant called very large military aid.

Then Spain would be prepared to consider the desires of the United States for the use of bases in peace and war.

Informants said the United States could not accept such terms and the far-reaching commitments they imply with expenditures potentially running into billions of dollars, and that the Franco government would shortly be so informed.

Demonstration Staged

Brussels, Belgium, July 30 (AP)—Soldiers and workers demonstrated today against Belgium's two-year conscription period. Reports said windows were broken in a Brussels barrack by protesting soldiers while in Liege 10,000 workers went on a one-day strike. Eighty-five demonstrating soldiers were arrested in Namur last week following a clash with military and civilian police. The Social Christian government stepped up the conscription period from a year to two years, 18 months ago. Since then Socialists and Communists have conducted a campaign to have the period reduced.

Liberals Back Stevenson

New York, July 30 (AP)—Adolf A. Berle, Jr., state chairman of the Liberal party, is backing the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket. He says he will personally recommend at a party meeting Aug. 5 that the Democratic nominees be given Liberal party support. Berle made the statement last night in answer to a question on the "City Hall" television program of Station WPIX. He said he believed he would be joined in the recommendation by other officials of the Liberal party which is organized only in New York state.

U. S. Beats Brazil

Helsinki, July 30 (AP) — The United States Olympic basketball team came from behind in the second half to defeat Brazil, 57 to 53 today and remain undefeated in Olympic competition. Brazil led 26-24 at half time. It was the sixth straight Olympic victory for the United States, which now enters the final round-robin competition.

Van Fleet Reports Armistice Chances Poorer Than Ever

Says Communists Believe UN Will Not Attack to Force Truce With Them

Seoul, Korea, July 30 (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today there is less chance for an armistice in Korea than ever before.

The U. S. Eighth Army commander told a news conference the prospect for an armistice is in direct proportion to the amount of military pressure put on the Communists and that the Communists believe the United Nations forces will not attack to force a truce.

He said the Reds "still have the capability of striking at any point with considerable surprise."

But he added they have been "thinning out their front line strength quite a bit over a period of many weeks" to the point where it is "thinner than ever before."

Cites Their Reasons

He said their reasons for doing so were:

1. Floods.
2. UN close air support of infantry attacks.
3. Pressure on the ground by the Eighth Army.
4. Lack of supplies in the Communist forward areas.
5. Threat of a UN amphibious offensive.
6. A Communist decision that the UN forces will not attack and that there will not be an armistice.

Armistice talks at Panmunjom are in recess until Sunday.

Van Fleet said the Communists were "in a position of readiness to wait out a war."

"Whether this is connected with an armistice or not is anybody's guess," he said.

Van Fleet sail although the Reds had "thinned out" their frontlines, they still had almost a million men in Korea. He said he believed the main reason the Reds thinned their front line forces was the Eighth Army's "heavy pressure by artillery fire.

"At long last, it has become apparent to the enemy that he has been a damn fool to stay in the frontlines for us to shoot at."

South Africa and Australia Will Supply Uranium Ore

By FRANK CAREY
(AP Science Reporter)

Washington, July 3. (AP)—Precious uranium ore for America's ever-expanding atomic program will soon be coming from two new foreign sources—South Africa and Australia—the United States revealed today in a report also disclosing substantial progress in developing improved atomic weapons during the past six months.

The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) in its 12th semi-annual report to Congress further disclosed that additional uranium may come from new sources in Canada—long an American supplier—and that new sources within the United States are nearly ready for initial production.

Implying a vastly increased tempo for its entire atomic enterprise, the AEC revealed that its plants for producing atomic fissionable materials for explosives and other uses had at times been pushed even beyond their designed operating capacities—even as new ones are being built and still others are in prospect under the recently approved 3½ billion dollars expansion program.

The AEC's report to Congress also listed:

1. Progress in the development of atomic propulsion for aircraft—with certain phases of design and development work having gained momentum in the past half-year.
2. Continuance of a project to build a second type of atomic engine for possible use in a submarine—even as work progresses on building a hull for a submarine which will house an atomic power plant of a different type.
3. Research accomplishments offering hope for the development of a powerful medicine with which to treat people severely exposed to atomic radiation.
4. Significant advances towards developing improved atomic reactors—or "furnaces"—which might be used some day for producing useful atomic power and for other purposes.
5. Increased production of raw uranium ore from existing domestic sources—even as "new sources, both foreign and domestic are nearly ready for initial production."

Regarding weapons developments, the AEC followed its usual policy of guarded, close-to-the-vest statements.

But it made two separate references to the fact that it couldn't say much publicly along these lines—thereby prompting speculation that the weapons developments are really hot stuff.

"Although for reasons of security, it is impossible here to specify

Kingsburys Are To Be Welcomed By Friends of Reds

Woodstock, July 30—The board of directors of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship will hold a reception to welcome home Dr. John A. Kingsbury, national chairman, and Mrs. Kingsbury, both of Shady, Thursday evening, at the Hotel Capitol, Eighth avenue at 51st street, New York.

The Kingsburys according to officials of the organization, are returning August 1, from one year's travel abroad.

An invitation to the reception received in this village relates the following:

Dr. Kingsbury comes directly from one month's tour in June 1952 of the Peoples' Republic of China and attendance at the Peace Conference in Peking.

Dr. and Mrs. Kingsbury spent two months in traveling in the Soviet Union last fall. Dr. Kingsbury has been twice in the Soviet capital in recent weeks.

They were in continuous attendance at the sessions of the last General Assembly of the United Nations in Paris.

During the past year, Dr. Kingsbury has addressed national and international peace meetings in the major capitals of Europe.

Dr. Kingsbury will speak of all these travels at the reception and answer the questions of the audience.

Lamar 'Holler' Folks Tire Of Feudin'; It's Too Noisy

Bluefield, W. Va., July 30 (AP)—"Call the law, 'cause they're at it again," cried a youngster with buckshot in the seat of his pants.

"They better stop this shootin' so a man can get some sleep," complained another resident of nearby Lamar Hollow.

Both reflected the sentiments of folks in the hollow who would like to see an end to the four-family shootin' feud which has been outstanding for its poor marksmanship.

The indignant youngter and another neutral in the feud, a man with a peg leg, each were hit by wild shotgun pellets as the Howertons continued their argument with the Blankenships, Pendergrasses and Sigmans.

L. E. King, superintendent of a coal operation and a man prominent in the community since he has the only telephone, reported last night the wounding of the pair who had no interest or connection with the feudin' and fussin'.

Neither was hospitalized and their hurts apparently were no more serious than the slight wounds received earlier by one of the Blankenships and one of the Howertons.

And King added somewhat testily that his sleep has been broken twice in the last three nights as shots rang out in the argument over land ownership.

State Police say they've tightened their vigil around the area,

Rhee Has Hopes For Better Policy

Pusan, Korea, July 30 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said today he hoped the United States presidential campaign will produce "a more definite and comprehensive Far Eastern foreign policy."

The 77-year-old president, long a strong critic of U. S. policy in Asia, predicted that Korea would provide "one of the hotly contested campaign issues." Rhee said he thought increased attention paid by Americans to Korea would be "a very wholesome thing."

The aging Korea leader declined to express any preference as between Democratic candidate Adlai Stevenson and Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Rhee made his comments in answer to questions submitted by the Associated Press.

Huge Box Reaches City

New York, July 30 (AP)—A 17-000-ton concrete and steel box, which will eventually become part of the foundation of a pier at the foot of West 15th street, arrived here by water today. The floating piece of concrete was towed 38 miles down the Hudson river from Grassy Point, where it was constructed. It is 360 feet long, 80 feet wide, and 26 feet high at its highest point. The pier that will be built on the caisson and two other caissons to be brought here later will replace a pier destroyed by fire in 1947.

Wants Ordinary Chow

Pittsburgh (AP) — Elettra Marconi, 21-year-old daughter of the late Guglielmo Marconi, enjoyed the best of American food during a recent visit here to witness the dedication of a bust in honor of her famous father. Finally, Elettra told her escort she would enjoy some "ordinary" food. That's why the attractive girl took a few minutes out from the banquet grind to munch hotdogs and hamburgers.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, July 30—Miss Beverly Short of Newburgh will give a twirling exhibition at the Methodist Church fair tonight on Main street here. Miss Short, acrobatic twirler with the All Girl Drum Corps of Newburgh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson W. Short, former local residents.

Mrs. Kenneth Best who has been ill at her home on Schryver street is improving.

Mrs. Edward Scully who has been visiting her niece, Mrs. James O'Reilly at her home in Andover, Mass., has returned home. Mrs. Scully also spent several days at Cape Cod.

Mrs. Joseph Stadt is home with a sprained ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Howe, Jr., have returned to their home in Syracuse after spending the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Howe, Sr. Mr. Howe was guest soloist at the morning service in the Port Ewen Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Short were weekend guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Reilly at their home in Andover, Mass.

The Port Ewen Drum Corps will meet for rehearsal at Hercules Powder Lane on Thursday night.

There will be novena to Our Lady of Perpetual Help at Church of the Presentation tonight at 7:30, with sermon and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. There will be confessions Thursday from 7 to 8:30 p. m. in preparation for First Friday. There will be Mass that day at 8 a. m. Holy Communion will be given at 6:30, before and during the Mass.

NEW HURLEY

New Hurley, July 30 — Bently Cocks has returned to New York after spending a week at the home of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Garrison.

Anna Theus of New York is spending her vacation at the home of her mother and sister, Mrs. Joseph Hess and Mrs. Ella Gregg.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Heidke left Sunday night for their home in Denver, Col., after spending several days at the Heidke home. Their father, Fred Heidke, is ill at Goshen Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Powell and Miss Bertha Sutton were dinner guests Sunday at the home of their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Wright, in Gardiner.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilkin has been named John Ross after both grandfathers.

Senior choir rehearsal will be held at the church on Thursday at 8 p. m.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Gerow Wilkin August 6 at 2:30 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Baright, Bruce and Beverly Baright called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Beatty and family Wednesday evening.

Susan Koehler of Jeffersonville has returned home after spending several days at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Dolan.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Beatty, Anne and Jean Beatty attended the funeral of their cousin, Alice Smith at the Carpenter Funeral Home in Highland on Friday of last week.

Mrs. Laurence Dolan, Janet, Sally and Jimmie Dolan and Miss Reta Dolan visited relatives in Jeffersonville on Monday.

A crowd attended the New Hurley Church fair under the auspices of the Young Women's Club at the Church Hall at Sherwood Corners last Wednesday evening. A cafeteria supper was enjoyed and there were various booths which were well patronized. The club extended thanks to all who helped.

The Young Women's Club will hold a picnic at Midway Beach near Gardiner on August 7. Each member is requested to bring a covered dish, sandwiches and dishes.

Postal Clerks May Smoke

New York (AP)—Postoffice clerks in Manhattan now are permitted to smoke at their desks, play the radio and send out for coffee on the long night shifts. Clerks now may smoke except when dealing directly with the public (selling stamps) or when working around open mail sacks. Playing the radio is restricted to hours when the postoffice is closed to the public and coffee calls are permitted only in regular time-off periods. Similar policies have been in effect for years at other general postoffices in the city. It was found that outright prohibition of smoking resulted in the time-consuming practices of smoking in washrooms or elsewhere.

Wounded Veterans Offered Song Writing

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Wounded veterans have a new outlet for their talents: Song writing. And it could pay off in fame—and cash.

The Veterans Administration said yesterday it is conducting a song-writing contest Sept. 15-Nov. 15. Patients who have been in VA hospitals at least 30 days prior to submitting an entry are eligible to take part.

The three top prize winners will have their songs published by affiliates of Broadcast Music, Inc. In addition, the first prize winner will get $250, second $150 and third $100 in U. S. Savings bond.

There also will be 11 awards of $50 bonds and 11 more of $25 bonds.

Boy Scout News

Campaign Dates Given

Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, has set August 2 through 16 as the dates for its campaign to raise $23,000 for operating expenses. The council serves Ulster and Greene counties.

The drive will open officially with a kick-off luncheon at the New York State Armory on Manor avenue Saturday at 1 p. m. Ray Quackenbush of Saugerties, council president, will be the main speaker.

General chairman for the two-county drive is Maynard Mizel of Kingston.

The goal was set to meet an estimated 13-month budget. Major items include $8,450 for executives salaries, $4,333 for secretaries salaries, $1,630 for transportation, and $1,000 each for camp operation and campaign expense.

Other items included in the tentative budget are office rent, supplies, training and equipment, awards, acitvities, an item for the 1953 National Jambouree, and other fixed items such as telephone, retirement fund and Social Security.

The drive will extend to 47 communities in the two counties. Goals in each district have been based on percentage of population.

Kingston—Lewis Short, Richard Waltman, Robert Tremper. (Ward chairmen will be announced.)

Rondout valley — Harry M. Thayer, Pierce Palmer, Harry Dembo, Dr. William Galeota, Major T. J. Hanlon, Clyde Benson, Ray Schaupp.

Saugerties—Daniel Lamb, Gerald Overbaugh, Ray Quackenbush, Harold Van Voorhis, Thomas Ball, John Lasher.

Northern—William Graff, Fred Rheinhardt, Lester Story, Louis DeLucas, Rev. Francis Potter.

Mountain — Conrad Johnson, Newton Ford, Albert O'Brien, James West, Val Morrow.

Western — Ernest Gardner, the Rev. Harvey I. Todd, Clifford Carnright, Donald Bishop.

The initial gifts committee consists of Arthur J. Burns, George Matthews, David Mendell, William S. Keyser, Walter T. Tremper and Jules Kirschner.

William S. Keyser is the council's public relations chairman, and G. Herbert DeKay is the campaign publicity chairman.

Dog Mourned

Yorkton, Sask. (AP)—Bert Lexier closed his billiard hall here for two days in respect to "Snooky," his pet Boston bulldog that died at the venerable age of 14.

GARDINER

Gardiner, July 30 — Firemen from here paraded Saturday in Saugerties.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Funk and two sons of Baltimore, Md., spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Mary Clinton.

Mrs. Edward Sears of New York was a supper guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Stella Woolsey last Wednesday.

Mrs. Grace Cavanaugh of New York is the guest of her sister, Miss Carrie Scriven.

Mr. and Mrs. John Manning and two children of Mount Holly, N. J., were weekend guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will meet at the church hall Wednesday, Aug. 6, at 8 p. m. Hostesses will be Mrs. John Van Strien, Mrs. Cora Wells, Mrs. Myron Wells and Mrs. Pauline Welz.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ryan and son of Peekskill, Mrs. William Hissey of Lake Secor, and Miss Mary Sagendorf of Kingston were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Bowers.

'Calamity' Pallbearer

Rapid City, S. D., (AP)—Black Hills historians for years have differed on basic facts in the life of "Calamity Jane," frontier gunmoll and close friend of "Wild Bill" Hickock. At least one disputed point appeared to be cleared up recently. A Deadwood, S. D., citizen, George Leeman, claimed to be the sixth pallbearer at "Calamity's" funeral. "I was standing in front of the church," Leeman recalled, "and the boys were taking 'Calamity' out and there were only five of them. One pallbearer, I think it was F. X. Smith, was sick. "George Hopkins, he was one of the pallbearers, he said, 'Well, there's George, he's an old-timer and he knew 'Calamity,' so they asked me to step in. And that way, sort of by accident, I was pallbearer at 'Calamity Jane's' funeral. "But I never got my name in the newspaper.

Woman Had Marijuana

Worcester, Mass., July 30 (AP)—Mrs. Marie Lee, 28, clerk in a Front street hotel, was arrested yesterday on charges of possessing marijuana cigarettes. Police Capt. Lawrence W. Henry said four marijuana cigarettes and more than $1,400 in cash were found in the woman's possession. He added she had been paroled from the Bedford, N. Y., Women's Reformatory and that authorities there planned to come to Worcester with a warrant charging her with violation of parole.

Farmer Has Troubles

York, Neb. (AP)—It was one trouble after another on the Lloyd Morgan farm. First the crops were damaged by hail. Then mink began raiding the Morgan henhouse, killing more than 120 baby chicks and two plump hens. So the Morgans set a trap for the mink. They caught the family cat.

BOOTLEGGING AND LIQUOR TAXES

The increase in the number of arrests and convictions for the operation of illicit alcohol producing stills may be laid to Congress, which has raised the tax on distilled spirits so high that the bootleggers are back at their pots turning out their stuff and robbing the government.

The extent to which the government has gone in taxing the liquor industry is seen in the amount of taxes collected last year. Alcoholic beverage taxes netted the federal government $2,459,807,404, this was a million dollars more than the next highest amount collected, that on tobacco.

The law of diminishing returns is an economic storm signal that appears as soon as business or government goes overboard with whatever it is trying to do. Congress has forgotten the law of diminishing returns and regarded the liquor as a never failing spring. Last November it raised the tax on distilled spirits from $9 to $10.50 a gallon. And, as so often happens in these cases, it decreased rather than increased the flow of the spring. The drop in Federal revenue for the first three months was 22.7 per cent less than the amount collected in the comparable period of the preceding year. The bootleggers must have gotten a big haul during this period.

The Federal government recognizes the liquor industry as a legitimate business yet has raised the excise taxes on its product 367 per cent since 1939.

Taxes are supposed to be applied fairly and they are supposed to be used for revenue purposes only, not for the suppression of habits of which part of the population disapproves. What these high taxes have succeeded in doing besides reducing government income is to reduce the legitimate sale of liquor, because there is no evidence to show that liquor consumption has been reduced. The discovery of illicit stills shows that bootlegging is again a major factor in crime as well as in trade. Bootlegging increases as liquor taxes increase.

If we are not to return to the horrors of another bootlegging era, the liquor taxes must be reduced.

The Danish sword-swallower with indigestion who refused the doctor permission to insert a rubber tube in his throat said, "I can't swallow this." He has clearly been listening to the pre-convention back-biting in the U. S. A.

A BOY'S DREAM

Some time during the process of growing up almost every boy wants to become a major league baseball player. When the first warmth of spring takes the chill from the air, baseball gloves are taken down from the nail where they have hung all winter and every vacant lot in the land becomes a playing field for youngsters of all ages and sizes.

Few boys ever grow up to make the big leagues. But in the effort the youngsters get plenty of exercise in the fresh air and the sunlight. They learn the rules of give and take and how to win graciously and lose with a smile. And for a few of them the dream is realized and they earn a place on a major league team and become idolized by the nation's youngsters, even as they once hero-worshipped at the shrine of Ruth and Gehrig and DiMaggio.

Baseball is a great game whether it is played before thousands of people in a major league ballpark or without spectators on a neighborhood sandlot. And no one knows it better than the youngster with the cheap glove and the dream of baseball glory in his heart.

ADULT RESPONSIBILITY

Children are born without prejudice and bigotry. In their early play-groups they associate with each other freely and happily unaware of nationality, color or religious differences. In their earliest religious training they learn that God created all men and that all men are alike in His sight.

Bigotry and prejudice become a part of a child's make-up somewhere in the process of growing up. Careless words by adults, bigoted statements by parents or older friends gradually break down the innocent state of a child's mind in which all people are the children of God.

It is the responsibility of adults to keep the minds of the young from being poisoned with prejudice. It is a civic as well as a religious responsibility. No adults who shirk it can claim to be true followers of any religion, regardless of the church in which they may hold nominal membership.

PRICE PRESSURES

New apartment structures in New York City are very slow in filling. Many of them are half-empty. And chronic complaints about bad service in buildings that have gone up during the past five years are reaching the courts. The huge Schwab mansion property on Riverside Drive, with its 65 families, is the center of bitter controversy.

Price pressures are beginning to be felt. It is no wonder. Inflation is everywhere to be found in these structures. The service is poor considering what the apartment occupants are paying in rent.

Wages and general costs have soared. Bricklayers are getting $24.50 for a seven-hour day; carpenters $22.05; boilermakers $22.05; iron workers, $22.05; stone cutters $22.75; masons $22.75. Most of the primary workers on building construction are getting from $3.15 to $3.40 per hour.

By the time a structure is completed and open for occupancy, the owner finds himself with a very costly building and no matter how he finances it, his rent schedules are in the skies.

I have been renting apartments in New York City since my return from World War One. And my investigations of rental conditions extend over a period of 25 years. And I can fairly say that rents in new structures are at fantastic levels.

It is my opinion that few of the people presently enjoying inflationary income can really afford to live where they are.

The rental situation here is a hodge-podge. Apartment buildings constructed 25 years ago are, generally speaking, better structures by far to live in than those recently finished. The old structures are better built, better designed and much more commodious. From the owners' standpoint, the rental situation is ironic.

His rents are frozen. He is 100 per cent occupied. And his waiting list is large. For a beautiful seven room apartment, with three baths, the rent laws may allow him to charge $200 a month.

Yet, in a new building (that is half-empty) the owner, due to terrific costs, must get $400 a month for a poorly constructed five room apartment. Inflation infests the building. The financing, even, is shoe-string.

If I were a boilermaker, carpenter, electrical worker, elevator constructor, engineer, mason, painter, plumber or stone setter, working on these new structures, and I saw how empty they were, I would be greatly concerned. The price pressures would get me down.

Reports out of Washington written by government economists state that the economic health of the nation is excellent. Such reports remind me of 1927, 1928 and 1929 when, with call money at 20 per cent and broker' loans at $8,000,000,000, objective university economists were saying that everything was all right, that America was living in a new era.

Price pressures are very sobering. Yet, when wages and taxes and costs go up, up, up, the only thing an entrepreneur can do, if he is to remain solvent, is to increase prices. And high prices can put him in bankruptcy.

I have asked many renting agents in New York about the economic wisdom of their rental schedules. Invariably their answer is: "This is what we've got to get."

Every six months in this column for three years I have said: prices and costs and taxes and wages are too high for an enduring prosperity. Everywhere I see price pressures. They are the fulfillment of our deep-seated inflation.

Personally, I will not knowingly become a party to price pressures. I live in a 25-year-old apartment building where rents are reasonable because they are frozen. I maintain a good line of life and endowment insurance that carries no inflation. I own no low-yielding bonds because they mirror the inflation. I hold sound stocks for investment of corporations that are not inflated or, if there is a measure of inflation in them, the managers of the business are protecting the equities by proper depreciation charge-offs and reserve set-ups.

What values have you that are surrounded by price pressures?

That Body of Yours

PATIENT NEEDS MORE THAN MEDICINE

During the flu epidemic of 1918-1919, newspaper articles dwelt on the fact that the flu struck down hardest the stronger men of the armed forces, more of them in proportion dying than their weaker comrades. The truth of the matter was that when the flu attacked these "stronger" men, they refused to go to bed and walked about for several days until they finally became so weak that they had to go to bed, by which time they had used up the reserve strength of the heart. When the final test occurred, the "crisis," they had nothing left to fight off the flu or its complications, pneumonia and bronchopneumonia.

In commenting on how individuals respond to illness, Dr. E. Wittkower, Montreal, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, describes various conditions such as: (a) delay in consulting the doctor; (b) suppression or making light of symptoms so as to avoid entering hospital or undergoing operation; (c) illness causing symptoms of hysteria; (d) patient wanting someone on whom to lean or depend; (e) chronic illness causing "up and down" changes in the patient's morale, patient becoming irritable and irritating.

It can readily be seen that the physician must be fully acquainted with the make-up of his patient, firmly but quietly not lettitng the "hero" type of patient get up and about too soon nor letting the other type linger too long in convalescence. Dr. Charles Mayo stated some time ago that the doctor who does not take his patient into his full confidence is not an up-to-date doctor.

"Well known is the patient who tries to run before he can walk and the other in whom convalescence is delayed unrelated to and irrespective of disappearance of signs of illness. Some patients are obviously reluctant to give up the protection and other benefits which they received while they were ill, whereas others act foolishly against their doctor's advice and, incidentally, against their own interests."

Whatever the illness, the patient should follow the advice of his physician. There is no sense in trying to be a hero and remain up and about, once the ailment has taken hold. You may need all your heart's reserve strength to make a successful fight against the ailment.

Getting Harder and Harder to Hear

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The chief problem faced by the Democratic party is that which follows in the wake of every convention—binding up the wounds. Here are some of the wounds that will have to be healed:

Southern Wounds—With a few exceptions these are likely to heal more easily than the Chicago fireworks indicated.

Inside fact is that Chairman Frank McKinney called in the leaders of the three revolting states—Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana—one day before the big blowup on the convention floor and offered to seat them without any argument.

He said he would have the chairman of the Credentials Committee announce that he had examined the laws of these three states, that they were in conflict with the loyalty oath, and there was no reason why they could not be seated without taking an oath.

However, Senator Byrd of Virginia haughtily declined. He said that 70,000,000 people had seen Virginia humiliated before television and he would accept no compromise unless the governors of the three states made speeches before the convention that they were remaining in the convention without yielding a single inch.

This Chairman McKinney refused. He realized what a storm of protest he would get from the north and west.

Next day, the McKinney compromise was finally accepted—but only after hours of balloting, hours of speeches and hours of boiling tempers. All this could have been avoided if Byrd had not objected to the McKinney proposal the day before.

Cooler heads in the south, notably Sens. Burnet Maybank and Olin Johnston of South Carolina with Russell Long of Louisiana, prevented what might have been a bad blowup. Now the nomination of Alabama's able John Sparkman for vice president should help to bind up southern wounds.

Republicans Were Fairer

Public Wounds—May be a little harder to heal. Some of the Democratic leaders forgot that a good part of the American public was watching on television, and that the roughshod tactics used in the House of Representatives in gaveling laws to a vote could not be used in public. There is no television in the House of Representatives; so the public does not realize that the passage of certain laws sometimes depends merely on the ear of the presiding officer.

Therefore, Gov. Paul Dever of Massachusetts and at first Speaker Sam Rayburn gave the public a bad impression. West Virginia's Walter Hallanan, chairman of the Republican convention, impressed the public as much fairer. Hallanan's patient fairness in handling the Puerto Rican delegation was cabled all over Latin America, and made a profound impression.

Delegates also fumed when the Democratic platform, thousands of words long, was adopted by voice vote, with no printed copies distributed for scrutiny.

Personal Wounds — Will be hardest of all to heal. One of these was Truman's bitterness toward Estes Kefauver, based chiefly on the fact that Kefauver did not withdraw from the New Hampshire primary but gave the President a decisive beating there.

Truman's Hatred

The President's revenge tipped the scales at one decisive midnight huddle when Averell Harriman told Kefauver supporters that he could not throw his support to Kefauver because of his own loyalty to Truman and because of Truman's attitude toward the senator from Tennessee.

Harriman and Kefauver forces had been working together all during the convention to stop Stevenson. Kefauver had run the risk of alienating his southern friends on the question of seating the southern delegates. He knew that this would cut his ties with the south and ruin his chances of getting support from Senator Russell's followers. Nevertheless he remained with the Harriman group—only to have Harriman turn on him at the last minute and dump his support in Stevenson's lap.

This is a wound which will not easily be healed.

At one time Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, with Sen. Blair Moody and Gov. Mennen Williams of Michigan, contacted Stevenson to ask if he would take Kefauver for V.P. Stevenson replied that Kefauver was not his personal choice, though he thought he deserved it because of the fight he had made.

In the end, and right after Stevenson was nominated, a huddle was held in the private office of Chairman McKinney just behind the rostrum. It was attended by President Truman, Jake Avery, McKinney, Stevenson and other party leaders to decide on who should be vice president. Paul Fitzpatrick of New York proposed Kefauver and was vigorously supported by Senator Moody.

Lucas' Hate

However, Scott Lucas, the Illinois ex-senator who claims he was defeated by Kefauver's crime probe, hit the ceiling. So did Speaker Rayburn. In the face of opposition, plus the known coolness of the President, Kefauver was dropped. He never did get even a nod for the vice presidency.

Earlier in the convention, Sam Rayburn would not even permit a Kefauver representative to amend the platform with a plank on "integrity in government" and another denouncing "McCarthyism." William Whittaker, a Tennessee delegate, was waiting to introduce these two resolutions, while Joe Nellis, an aide to Kefauver, notified Rayburn personally that Whittaker was waiting.

Rayburn turned on his heel, went back to the rostrum and gaveled the platform to adoption. Then he made the lame announcement that Delegate Whittaker of Tennessee had not been on hand to introduce the amendments—when he had just been told Whittaker was waiting.

Rayburn was so ruthless that his old friend, Congressman Clarance Cannon of Missouri, turned to him.

"Sam," he cautioned, "this is going to help the Republicans."

THE GUN TREE

The gun is a Springfield Flint Lock, dated 1839, and was one of thirteen sent to Captain Sam Williams who had charge of Block House Smith near Oakville, Washington. Originally the gun was about 11 feet from the ground and the tree is 35 inches around at the point where the gun is enclosed. The tree has since been cut down.

Strife in Both Parties is Believed to Be Exaggerated; Some Always Disappointed

By DAVID LAWRENCE

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 30 — Disaffection in both political parties is probably exaggerated. Always after national party conventions there is disappointment and sometimes a bolting of the ticket. But as November approaches the basis for deserting one party and embracing another is often altered.

"Lifelong Republicans" and "lifelong Democrats" rarely abandon their traditional position, but "independent" voters move from party to party depending on their appraisal of the candidate or the issues in each campaign.

The reports that some of the Kefauver supporters will not vote for Governor Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, are similar to the reports that many supporters of Senator Taft, who thought he should have been nominated, will not vote for General Eisenhower.

There are some Taft men who say they will stay away from the polls altogether. This may happen in a few cases but it doesn't sound plausible. A citizen who doesn't want to vote for the candidates for Congress and state candidates just because he doesn't like the national nominees is a rare individual. There may be some who want to disenfranchise themselves completely this year but they probably aren't numerous.

Then there are those who will vote for local candidates but will ignore the top tickets. A Republican who doesn't vote at all for either presidential nominee is, in effect, casting half a vote for the Democratic ticket.

Just why any Republican who supported Senator Taft would contribute a full vote or half a vote to elect a president of the United States whose candidacy has the full support of President Truman and the CIO and the Fair Dealers is a little hard to understand in view of the position the Taft Republicans have repeatedly taken—namely, that they are unalterably opposed to a continuance of the Democratic administration for another four years.

Maybe these Taft Republicans—probably a small minority—really believe all the bunkum that was distributed during the preconvention campaign to the effect that, because General Eisenhower served in the army and had a high military post, he made all the important decisions in the civilian branch of the government or was responsible for them and that this makes him a Fair Dealer or a New Dealer. Apparently General MacArthur, who also served in a high command, isn't considered to have become obligated to the president who signed his commission.

Perhaps the real explanation is that, in their zeal to get Taft nominated, some of his supporters actually swallowed a variety of reports about General Eisenhower—as, for instance, the idea that he was Truman's choice or that he couldn't attack the Truman administration or that he was a New Dealer and Fair Dealer.

It is well established that emissaries from the Truman administration last year tried to interest General Eisenhower in the Democratic presidential nomination. They tried it in 1948, too. But in every instance he refused to embrace the idea.

Whether General Eisenhower will or will not attack the Truman policies, domestic and foreign, remains to be seen. During the campaign that point will certainly be cleared up by his speeches. If it is, then the dissatisfied Republicans will have to make up their minds whether they want to furnish a full vote or half a vote to elect a president who will have the power to appoint Supreme Court Justices in the next vacancies, the power to appoint all the members of the 80 government agencies which have been filled by New Dealers and Fair Dealers, and the power to man all the executive departments of the government with Truman appointees or successors whose main allegiance is to the Fair Deal and the New Deal.

Likewise, the disappointed Kefauver supporters are going to have to choose between helping a Republican get elected or giving their votes to Governor Stevenson as at least being more interested in the Fair Deal and New Deal than any Republican regime will be.

When November comes, the disaffected vote in both parties will probably turn out to be much smaller than it appears to be today. Pique is a luxury in politics, especially among the hungry who have been out of power for 20 years.

Train Children to Face Envy, Malice of Workaday World

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

I know a charming, intelligent young woman with a degree from a noted university who, although talented, has made poor progress in her work.

Recently she applied for a job. After her interview, she called me excitedly to tell me that her prospectice employer had promisd her $5000 a year, quick increases and sure advancement. "Isn't it blissful?" she asked me. "The woman I talked to was so kind and helpful! It's just the job I've been waiting for!"

When the job didn't materialize, she came to see me as depressed as she had been exhilarated.

I said, "Beth, what led you to want to believe in the integrity of someone who made you such a big promise without knowing anything important about you?"

She stared at me. Then her lovely blue eyes filled with tears. "Oh, Mrs. Lawrence," she reproached me, "if you talk like that, you'll destroy my faith in people!"

This is a dependent child. Her training in "faith" in everyone's loving kindness has been bad training. It has been training in evasion and dependence.

Her university degree has not been able to counterbalance this evasive dependence. Her need to believe in the goodwill and kindness of everyone she has worked for is a self-protected device. She has to believe in them because she does not know what to do with ill-will and unkindness. To survive, she has had to pretend that they do not exist. As they do exist, she has had a hard time surviving.

As human beings are only loving and kind part of the time, children get into trouble when they don't know how to handle what goes on in human beings the rest of the time.

Last month, our universities graduated thousands of young Americans into the world of ambition, malice and envy as well as the world of justice and kindness. I sincerely hope they are not going to entrust their professional futures to the loving kindness of their associates without sufficient reasons to do so.

Harry's success as a business man may depend not on his degree but on his fearless recognition of envy in himself and those around him. Mary's art degree will be of small use if she feels it is ignoble to see through the unwarranted criticism by her ambitious advertising director.

It is our refusal to brief young people on the malice and envy of the workaday world that makes them their victims. We refuse this education because we secretly fear what malice and envy can do. We take refuge from the burden of this instruction in pious talk about "faith" and "trust" in people. Instead we should say, "Where there are justice and love, trust them. Where there are none, do not trust."

I was shocked by the attitude of my young friend. Her parents are adults who pride themselves on their religious devotion and moral worth. We have no moral or religious grounds at all for ascribing good motives to those who are struggling with bad ones. We are just afraid of what the bad ones can do to us.

Hamilton, Canada (AP) — Mrs. Berta Kittler is again taking lessons in English, a language which cost her dearly 15 years ago. At that time in her native Russia Mrs. Kittler and her husband began studying English. The result: five years in Siberia for her and death for her husband. The Soviet high tribunal imposed these sentences for what is described as "treacherous behavior," in learning the language of the "capitalistic imperialists." Mrs. Kittler, a university graduate, speaks seven languages. She is now a cleaning-woman in Hamilton. Her 17-year-old son attends high school.

K.K.K. Out of Business

Edmonton, Alta. (AP)—The "Alberta Realm" of the Ku Klux Klan, which had its heyday in the early 1930's, appears to be out of business. The current issue of the Alberta Gazette lists it among societies liable to be struck off the register for failing to comply with the Societies Act, which requires organizations to register the address of their official headquarters, hold annual meetings, and submit reports to the provincial register. Nothing has been heard of the K.K.K. in Edmonton since August, 1937, when 250 Klansmen and their followers held a picnic and burned fiery crosses.

The bootleggers must have gotten a big haul during this period.

The Federal government recognizes the liquor industry as a legitimate business yet has raised the excise taxes on its product 367 per cent since 1939.

Taxes are supposed to be applied fairly and they are supposed to be used for revenue purposes only, not for the suppression of habits of which part of the population disapproves. What these high taxes have succeeded in doing besides reducing government income is to reduce the legitimate sale of liquor, because there is no evidence to show that liquor consumption has been reduced. The discovery of illicit stills shows that bootlegging is again a major factor in crime as well as in trade. Bootlegging increases as liquor taxes increase.

If we are not to return to the horrors of another bootlegging era, the liquor taxes must be reduced.

The Danish sword-swallower with indigestion who refused the doctor permission to insert a rubber tube in his throat said, "I can't swallow this." He has clearly been listening to the pre-convention back-biting in the U. S. A.

A BOY'S DREAM

Some time during the process of growing up almost every boy wants to become a major league baseball player. When the first warmth of spring takes the chill from the air, baseball gloves are taken down from the nail where they have hung all winter and every vacant lot in the land becomes a playing field for youngsters of all ages and sizes.

Few boys ever grow up to make the big leagues. But in the effort the youngsters get plenty of exercise in the fresh air and the sunlight. They learn the rules of give and take and how to win graciously and lose with a smile. And for a few of them the dream is realized and they earn a place on a major league team and become idolized by the nation's youngsters, even as they once hero-worshipped at the shrine of Ruth and Gehrig and DiMaggio.

Baseball is a great game whether it is played before thousands of people in a major league ballpark or without spectators on a neighborhood sandlot. And no one knows it better than the youngster with the cheap glove and the dream of baseball glory in his heart.

ADULT RESPONSIBILITY

Children are born without prejudice and bigotry. In their early play-groups they associate with each other freely and happily unaware of nationality, color or religious differences. In their earliest religious training they learn that God created all men and that all men are alike in His sight.

Bigotry and prejudice become a part of a child's make-up somewhere in the process of growing up. Careless words by adults, bigoted statements by parents or older friends gradually break down the innocent state of a child's mind in which all people are the children of God.

It is the responsibility of adults to keep the minds of the young from being poisoned with prejudice. It is a civic as well as a religious responsibility. No adults who shirk it can claim to be true followers of any religion, regardless of the church in which they may hold nominal membership.

PRICE PRESSURES

New apartment structures in New York City are very slow in filling. Many of them are half-empty. And chronic complaints about bad service in buildings that have gone up during the past five years are reaching the courts. The huge Schwab mansion property on Riverside Drive, with its 65 families, is the center of bitter controversy.

Price pressures are beginning to be felt. It is no wonder. Inflation is everywhere to be found in these structures. The service is poor considering what the apartment occupants are paying in rent.

Wages and general costs have soared. Bricklayers are getting $24.50 for a seven-hour day; carpenters $22.05; boilermakers $22.05; iron workers, $22.05; stone cutters $22.75; masons $22.75. Most of the primary workers on building construction are getting from $3.15 to $3.40 per hour.

By the time a structure is completed and open for occupancy, the owner finds himself with a very costly building and no matter how he finances it, his rent schedules are in the skies.

I have been renting apartments in New York City since my return from World War One. And my investigations of rental conditions extend over a period of 25 years. And I can fairly say that rents in new structures are at fantastic levels.

It is my opinion that few of the people presently enjoying inflationary income can really afford to live where they are.

The rental situation here is a hodge-podge. Apartment buildings constructed 25 years ago are, generally speaking, better structures by far to live in than those recently finished. The old structures are better built, better designed and much more commodious. From the owners' standpoint, the rental situation is ironic.

His rents are frozen. He is 100 per cent occupied. And his waiting list is large. For a beautiful seven room apartment, with three baths, the rent laws may allow him to charge $200 a month.

Yet, in a new building (that is half-empty) the owner, due to terrific costs, must get $400 a month for a poorly constructed five room apartment. Inflation infests the building. The financing, even, is shoe-string.

If I were a boilermaker, carpenter, electrical worker, elevator constructor, engineer, mason, painter, plumber or stone setter, working on these new structures, and I saw how empty they were, I would be greatly concerned. The price pressures would get me down.

Reports out of Washington written by government economists state that the economic health of the nation is excellent. Such reports remind me of 1927, 1928 and 1929 when, with call money at 20 per cent and broker' loans at $8,000,000,000, objective university economists were saying that everything was all right, that America was living in a new era.

Price pressures are very sobering. Yet, when wages and taxes and costs go up, up, up, the only thing an entrepreneur can do, if he is to remain solvent, is to increase prices. And high prices can put him in bankruptcy.

I have asked many renting agents in New York about the economic wisdom of their rental schedules. Invariably their answer is: "This is what we've got to get."

Every six months in this column for three years I have said: prices and costs and taxes and wages are too high for an enduring prosperity. Everywhere I see price pressures. They are the fulfillment of our deep-seated inflation.

Personally, I will not knowingly become a party to price pressures. I live in a 25-year-old apartment building where rents are reasonable because they are frozen. I maintain a good line of life and endowment insurance that carries no inflation. I own no low-yielding bonds because they mirror the inflation. I hold sound stocks for investment of corporations that are not inflated or, if there is a measure of inflation in them, the managers of the business are protecting the equities by proper depreciation charge-offs and reserve set-ups.

What values have you that are surrounded by price pressures?

PATIENT NEEDS MORE THAN MEDICINE

During the flu epidemic of 1918-1919, newspaper articles dwelt on the fact that the flu struck down hardest the stronger men of the armed forces, more of them in proportion dying than their weaker comrades. The truth of the matter was that when the flu attacked these "stronger" men, they refused to go to bed and walked about for several days until they finally became so weak that they had to go to bed, by which time they had used up the reserve strength of the heart. When the final test occurred, the "crisis," they had nothing left to fight off the flu or its complications, pneumonia and bronchopneumonia.

In commenting on how individuals respond to illness, Dr. E. Wittkower, Montreal, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, describes various conditions such as: (a) delay in consulting the doctor; (b) suppression or making light of symptoms so as to avoid entering hospital or undergoing operation; (c) illness causing symptoms of hysteria; (d) patient wanting someone on whom to lean or depend; (e) chronic illness causing "up and down" changes in the patient's morale, patient becoming irritable and irritating.

It can readily be seen that the physician must be fully acquainted with the make-up of his patient, firmly but quietly not lettitng the "hero" type of patient get up and about too soon nor letting the other type linger too long in convalescence. Dr. Charles Mayo stated some time ago that the doctor who does not take his patient into his full confidence is not an up-to-date doctor.

"Well known is the patient who tries to run before he can walk and the other in whom convalescence is delayed unrelated to and irrespective of disappearance of signs of illness. Some patients are obviously reluctant to give up the protection and other benefits which they received while they were ill, whereas others act foolishly against their doctor's advice and, incidentally, against their own interests."

Whatever the illness, the patient should follow the advice of his physician. There is no sense in trying to be a hero and remain up and about, once the ailment has taken hold. You may need all your heart's reserve strength to make a successful fight against the ailment.

Getting Harder and Harder to Hear

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The chief problem faced by the Democratic party is that which follows in the wake of every convention—binding up the wounds. Here are some of the wounds that will have to be healed:

Southern Wounds—With a few exceptions these are likely to heal more easily than the Chicago fireworks indicated.

Inside fact is that Chairman Frank McKinney called in the leaders of the three revolting states—Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana—one day before the big blowup on the convention floor and offered to seat them without any argument.

He said he would have the chairman of the Credentials Committee announce that he had examined the laws of these three states, that they were in conflict with the loyalty oath, and there was no reason why they could not be seated without taking an oath.

However, Senator Byrd of Virginia haughtily declined. He said that 70,000,000 people had seen Virginia humiliated before television and he would accept no compromise unless the governors of the three states made speeches before the convention that they were remaining in the convention without yielding a single inch.

This Chairman McKinney refused. He realized what a storm of protest he would get from the north and west.

Next day, the McKinney compromise was finally accepted—but only after hours of balloting, hours of speeches and hours of boiling tempers. All this could have been avoided if Byrd had not objected to the McKinney proposal the day before.

Cooler heads in the south, notably Sens. Burnet Maybank and Olin Johnston of South Carolina with Russell Long of Louisiana, prevented what might have been a bad blowup. Now the nomination of Alabama's able John Sparkman for vice president should help to bind up southern wounds.

Republicans Were Fairer

Public Wounds—May be a little harder to heal. Some of the Democratic leaders forgot that a good part of the American public was watching on television, and that the roughshod tactics used in the House of Representatives in gaveling laws to a vote could not be used in public. There is no television in the House of Representatives; so the public does not realize that the passage of certain laws sometimes depends merely on the ear of the presiding officer.

Therefore, Gov. Paul Dever of Massachusetts and at first Speaker Sam Rayburn gave the public a bad impression. West Virginia's Walter Hallanan, chairman of the Republican convention, impressed the public as much fairer. Hallanan's patient fairness in handling the Puerto Rican delegation was cabled all over Latin America, and made a profound impression.

Delegates also fumed when the Democratic platform, thousands of words long, was adopted by voice vote, with no printed copies distributed for scrutiny.

Personal Wounds — Will be hardest of all to heal. One of these was Truman's bitterness toward Estes Kefauver, based chiefly on the fact that Kefauver did not withdraw from the New Hampshire primary but gave the President a decisive beating there.

Truman's Hatred

The President's revenge tipped the scales at one decisive midnight huddle when Averell Harriman told Kefauver supporters that he could not throw his support to Kefauver because of his own loyalty to Truman and because of Truman's attitude toward the senator from Tennessee.

Harriman and Kefauver forces had been working together all during the convention to stop Stevenson. Kefauver had run the risk of alienating his southern friends on the question of seating the southern delegates. He knew that this would cut his ties with the south and ruin his chances of getting support from Senator Russell's followers. Nevertheless he remained with the Harriman group—only to have Harriman turn on him at the last minute and dump his support in Stevenson's lap.

This is a wound which will not easily be healed.

At one time Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, with Sen. Blair Moody and Gov. Mennen Williams of Michigan, contacted Stevenson to ask if he would take Kefauver for V.P. Stevenson replied that Kefauver was not his personal choice, though he thought he deserved it because of the fight he had made.

In the end, and right after Stevenson was nominated, a huddle was held in the private office of Chairman McKinney just behind the rostrum. It was attended by President Truman, Jake Avery, McKinney, Stevenson and other party leaders to decide on who should be vice president. Paul Fitzpatrick of New York proposed Kefauver and was vigorously supported by Senator Moody.

Lucas' Hate

However, Scott Lucas, the Illinois ex-senator who claims he was defeated by Kefauver's crime probe, hit the ceiling. So did Speaker Rayburn. In the face of opposition, plus the known coolness of the President, Kefauver was dropped. He never did get even a nod for the vice presidency.

Earlier in the convention, Sam Rayburn would not even permit a Kefauver representative to amend the platform with a plank on "integrity in government" and another denouncing "McCarthyism." William Whittaker, a Tennessee delegate, was waiting to introduce these two resolutions, while Joe Nellis, an aide to Kefauver, notified Rayburn personally that Whittaker was waiting.

Rayburn turned on his heel, went back to the rostrum and gaveled the platform to adoption. Then he made the lame announcement that Delegate Whittaker of Tennessee had not been on hand to introduce the amendments—when he had just been told Whittaker was waiting.

Rayburn was so ruthless that his old friend, Congressman Clarance Cannon of Missouri, turned to him.

"Sam," he cautioned, "this is going to help the Republicans."

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

July 30, 1932—The summer high school sessions had an enrollment of 451.

Growth of business at the market at Hasbrouck avenue and Mill street indicated need of more space.

The education board adopted its budget setting a school tax rate of $6.50.

Capt. Goodsell and his tri-motored plane visited the city.

July 30, 1942—Plans advanced for the forming of a fire district to take in the village of Hurley.

An investigation of the knife murder of Mrs. Yolanda Stroncone, 37, at Tucker's Corners, switched to her Brooklyn neighborhood.

Arrangements were reported in progress for reopening the main Sahler sanitarium building by Mrs. W. N. Fessenden.

William P. Glass, who had been grand jury stenographer for 35 years, died July 29 at his Janet street home.

Goshen Man Appointed

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today reappointed Michael F. Rombousek of Goshen to a full nine-year term on the board of trustees of the Orange County Community College at Middletown. The governor also reappointed Miss Eva Sherwood Potter of Brooklyn to the board of visitors of Pilgrim State Hospital at Brentwood for a full seven-year term. Members of both boards serve without pay.

Strife in Both Parties Is Believed to Be Exaggerated; Some Always Disappointed

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 30 — Disaffection in both political parties is probably exaggerated. Always after national party conventions there is disappointment and sometimes a bolting of the ticket. But as November approaches the basis for deserting one party and embracing another is often altered.

"Lifelong Republicans" and "lifelong Democrats" rarely abandon their traditional position, but "independent" voters move from party to party depending on their appraisal of the candidate or the issues in each campaign.

The reports that some of the Kefauver supporters will not vote for Governor Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, are similar to the reports that many supporters of Senator Taft, who thought he should have been nominated, will not vote for General Eisenhower.

There are some Taft men who say they will stay away from the polls altogether. This may happen in a few cases but it doesn't sound plausible. A citizen who doesn't want to vote for the candidates for Congress and state candidates just because he doesn't like the national nominees is a rare individual. There may be some who want to disenfranchise themselves completely this year but they probably aren't numerous.

Then there are those who will vote for local candidates but will ignore the top tickets. A Republican who doesn't vote at all for either presidential nominee is, in effect, casting half a vote for the Democratic ticket.

Just why any Republican who supported Senator Taft would contribute a full vote or half a vote to elect a president of the United States whose candidacy has the full support of President Truman and the CIO and the Fair Dealers is a little hard to understand in view of the position the Taft Republicans have repeatedly taken—namely, that they are unalterably opposed to a continuance of the Democratic administration for another four years.

Maybe these Taft Republicans—probably a small minority—really believe all the bunkum that was distributed during the preconvention campaign to the effect that, because General Eisenhower served in the army and had a high military post, he made all the important decisions in the civilian branch of the government or was responsible for them and that this makes him a Fair Dealer or a New Dealer. Apparently General MacArthur, who also served in a high command, isn't considered to have become obligated to the president who signed his commission.

Perhaps the real explanation is that, in their zeal to get Taft nominated, some of his supporters actually swallowed a variety of reports about General Eisenhower—as, for instance, the idea that he was Truman's choice or that he couldn't attack the Truman administration or that he was a New Dealer and Fair Dealer.

It is well established that emissaries from the Truman administration last year tried to interest General Eisenhower in the Democratic presidential nomination. They tried it in 1948, too. But in every instance he refused to embrace the idea.

Whether General Eisenhower will or will not attack the Truman policies, domestic and foreign, remains to be seen. During the campaign that point will certainly be cleared up by his speeches. If it is, then the dissatisfied Republicans will have to make up their minds whether they want to furnish a full vote or half a vote to elect a president who will have the power to appoint Supreme Court Justices in the next vacancies, the power to appoint all the members of the 80 government agencies which have been filled by New Dealers and Fair Dealers, and the power to man all the executive departments of the government with Truman appointees or successors whose main allegiance is to the Fair Deal and the New Deal.

Likewise, the disappointed Kefauver supporters are going to have to choose between helping a Republican get elected or giving their votes to Governor Stevenson as at least being more interested in the Fair Deal and New Deal than any Republican regime will be.

When November comes, the disaffected vote in both parties will probably turn out to be much smaller than it appears to be today. Pique is a luxury in politics, especially among the hungry who have been out of power for 20 years.

Train Children to Face Envy, Malice of Workaday World

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

I know a charming, intelligent young woman with a degree from a noted university who, although talented, has made poor progress in her work.

Recently she applied for a job. After her interview, she called me excitedly to tell me that her prospectice employer had promisd her $5000 a year, quick increases and sure advancement. "Isn't it blissful?" she asked me. "The woman I talked to was so kind and helpful! It's just the job I've been waiting for!"

When the job didn't materialize, she came to see me as depressed as she had been exhilarated.

I said, "Beth, what led you to want to believe in the integrity of someone who made you such a big promise without knowing anything important about you?"

She stared at me. Then her lovely blue eyes filled with tears. "Oh, Mrs. Lawrence," she reproached me, "if you talk like that, you'll destroy my faith in people!"

This is a dependent child. Her training in "faith" in everyone's loving kindness has been bad training. It has been training in evasion and dependence.

Her university degree has not been able to counterbalance this evasive dependence. Her need to believe in the goodwill and kindness of everyone she has worked for is a self-protected device. She has to believe in them because she does not know what to do with ill-will and unkindness. To survive, she has had to pretend that they do not exist. As they do exist, she has had a hard time surviving.

As human beings are only loving and kind part of the time, children get into trouble when they don't know how to handle what goes on in human beings the rest of the time.

Last month, our universities graduated thousands of young Americans into the world of ambition, malice and envy as well as the world of justice and kindness. I sincerely hope they are not going to entrust their professional futures to the loving kindness of their associates without sufficient reasons to do so.

Harry's success as a business man may depend not on his degree but on his fearless recognition of envy in himself and those around him. Mary's art degree will be of small use if she feels it is ignoble to see through the unwarranted criticism by her ambitious advertising director.

It is our refusal to brief young people on the malice and envy of the workaday world that makes them their victims. We refuse this education because we secretly fear what malice and envy can do. We take refuge from the burden of this instruction in pious talk about "faith" and "trust" in people. Instead we should say, "Where there are justice and love, trust them. Where there are none, do not trust."

I was shocked by the attitude of my young friend. Her parents are adults who pride themselves on their religious devotion and moral worth. We have no moral or religious grounds at all for ascribing good motives to those who are struggling with bad ones. We are just afraid of what the bad ones can do to us.

Halted English Study

Hamilton, Canada (AP) — Mrs. Berta Kittler is again taking lessons in English, a language which cost her dearly 15 years ago. At that time in her native Russia Mrs. Kittler and her husband began studying English. The result: five years in Siberia for her and death for her husband. The Soviet high tribunal imposed these sentences for what is described as "treacherous behavior," in learning the language of the "capitalistic imperialists." Mrs. Kittler, a university graduate, speaks seven languages. She is now a cleaning-woman in Hamilton. Her 17-year-old son attends high school.

K.K.K. Out of Business

Edmonton, Alta. (AP)—The "Alberta Realm" of the Ku Klux Klan, which had its heyday in the early 1930's, appears to be out of business. The current issue of the Alberta Gazette lists it among societies liable to be struck off the register for failing to comply with the Societies Act, which requires organizations to register the address of their official headquarters, hold annual meetings, and submit reports to the provincial register. Nothing has been heard of the K.K.K. in Edmonton since August, 1937, when 250 Klansmen and their followers held a picnic and burned fiery crosses.

Questions — Answers

Q—What is the basic principle of radar?

A—Radio waves are sent out into space. When they strike an object they are reflected, or "bounced" back, to their source. The time they take to go and return gives the distance to the object.

Q—When did Neville Chamberlain use the now famous words "Peace in our time"?

THE GUN TREE

The gun is a Springfield Flint Lock, dated 1839, and was one of thirteen sent to Captain Sam Williams who had charge of Block House Smith near Oakville, Washington. Originally the gun was about 11 feet from the ground and the tree is 35 inches around at the point where the gun is enclosed. The tree has since been cut down.

9 Types Business Under Wage Rules

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Nine types of small business enterprises have been put under wage controls by economic stabilizer Roger L. Putnam.

They are:

Trucking outfits; tool and die enterprises; automotive repair; logging operations and sawmills; building and construction industry; all Alaska concerns; new small businesses which expect to hire more than eight employes soon; concerns in which the pay of one or more employes is set up on an industry or area basis; and enterprises (other than banks) which get 25 per cent or more of their business income from dividends, interest, rents or royalties.

Congress exempted small business—defined as one employing eight or fewer persons — from wage and salary controls but allowed President Truman to reimpose them if he thought it necessary.

Unemployment Is Noted

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—There were dark spots on New York's industrial employment map today, although the roar of new fires in open-hearth furnaces was summoning steelworkers back to their jobs across the state. Fluctuating figures prevented a close estimate of the number still idle in the state after the nation's costliest steel strike. But indications were that steel production would lag below normal for at least two weeks. Related industries may take as long as six weeks to regain their stride.

Reds Ask Change In Papers' Wording

Munsan, Korea, July 30 (AP)—The Communists today suggested a possibly significant change in the wording of the proposed Korean armistice document now under study by staff officers of both sides.

It dealt with a paragraph relating to war prisoners. The issue of prisoner exchange has blocked a truce for months.

The Reds proposed changing the term "captured personnel" to "prisoner of war" in paragraph 52, which would then read:

"Each side agrees to insure that it shall not employ in acts of war in the Korean conflict any prisoners of war released from custody incident to the armistice."

Col. Duncan S. Somerville, UN command staff officer, said he had asked the Reds for clarification.

During recent secret truce talks, Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior UN armistice delegate, told the Reds the term captured personnel meant all people in custody, even those opposing repatriation. War prisoners, he added, were all those persons who were to be repatriated.

Vogeler Denies Part

New York, July 30 (AP)—Robert A. Vogeler said today he will not lecture nor in any way take part in a contemplated course in "Techniques of Espionage" at Peekskill (N.Y.) Military Academy. Vogeler spent 17 months in a Hungarian prison as an accused spy. An agency spokesman for the school said he incorrectly assumed Vogeler might do some lecturing if such a course is offered in the fall. Vogeler is a trustee of the school. "I am not going to conduct or lecture at a course for the academy on any subject. Such an idea was never even discussed with me," Vogeler said.

Brawl Is Result

Tokyo, July 30 (AP)—A self-styled "Mountain and Village Corps" of Communists invaded a laborers' field camp near Tokyo last night to give a show of lantern slides—and wound up in a club-swinging brawl with the laborers who didn't want to look. Kyodo News Agency reported 17 Reds tangled with about 50 construction workers. Several laborers were seriously injured. Nine Communists were arrested.

Third Polio Case Reported

Ulster county's third case of polio for the month of July was reported to the health department Tuesday afternoon. The patient is a non-resident, 16, who has been hospitalized at Vassar Brothers Hospital, Poughkeepsie. The case is the seventh reported in the county this year.

Lovett Has Reason For 'Flying Saucer'

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Even Secretary of Defense Lovett has seen a "flying saucer"—but he had an explanation for it.

Pentagon sources said Lovett, returning to Washington from New York Sunday, was a fellow passenger aboard an airliner with persons who insisted they had seen a white disc whirling along beside the plane.

Lovett, however, reportedly said he had been watching a searchlight playing into the clear, moonlit sky and at one point its cone of light caught and held a tuft of cumulus cloud, creating the impression of a circular body keeping pace with the plane.

"That's how many a flying saucer gets born," one officer said.

Polio Cases Decrease Outside New York

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Reports of new cases of poliomyelitis in counties outside New York city dropped slightly last week, but the 1952 total still exceeds that of last year, the state health department said today.

The department reported 40 new cases for the weekended July 26, compared with 51 the preceding week. Last week's total was seven over the 33 cases reported during the corresponding week last year.

Orange county reported 12 new cases, boosting the county's 1952 total to 36, highest in the state. Erie county had six new cases for a total of 21.

Other counties that reported new cases were: Westchester and Suffolk, five each; Nassau and Broome, three each, and Cattaraugus, Chenango, Ontario, Otsego, Rockland and Ulster, one each.

Must Post Watchman

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today ordered the Long Island Rail Road to station a watchman at the William Floyd Parkway grade crossing in the town of Brookhaven, Suffolk county, on days when school is in session. The order directed a watchman be posted between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. on school days, until the railroad completes the installation of automatic flashing-light warning signals at the crossing.

Lions Club Is Told Of Anniversary Results

Kingston's 300th Anniversary year events have succeeded in giving residents a new pride in their city and a greater understanding of its history, Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said in an address Tuesday noon to members of the Lions Club.

Speaking at the club's regular meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel, Kurdt added that the celebration has attracted many visitors to the city, has stimulated business and has gained for the area widespread publicity.

Kurdt termed the pageant, "A Land of Beauty," which was staged at the municipal stadium last week, an undertaking which "well pleased" all who saw it.

Particular tribute was paid by Kurdt to Mrs. Raymond Gross, its author, and Irving Rose, who had charge of its production. "I don't think many people realize how much work they put in," he said, adding that they received no remuneration for their time. Many others also worked hard and long to make the pageant a success, he said.

Mentioning the public inspection of old stone houses in Hurley last weekend, Kurdt stated that "maybe we are missing a bet in Kingston." Noting that "two or three" busloads of visitors came from New York to see the historic homes, Kurdt indicated that the same thing might be a good thing for Kingston to do. He added that the Hurley Reformed Church netted approximately $1,100 by the promotion.

At the conclusion of Kurdt's talk, Robert E. Teetsel, Lions Club president, expressed his appreciation to the Chamber of Commerce, without which, he said, the celebration of Kingston's 300th anniversary would have been impossible.

Firemen Put Out Blaze With Difficulty

Nashville, Tenn., July 30 (AP)—Suburban Woodbine firemen put out a barn fire last night, but it was a struggle.

The first truck which set out overturned during a thunderstorm. Firemen Claiborn Ross and Curtis Hall, both 21, were unhurt.

Ross hastened to a nearby house to call the department. The woman who lived there refused to let him in to telephone because he was too wet.

On his departure, the woman's dog bit him.

Minor Fight Takes Place in Korea

Seoul, Korea, July 30 (AP)—One minor action was reported today as rain drenched the Korean battle front for the six straight day.

Mainly ground contact was limited to brief exchanges between patrols.

But on the western front, near the shell ripped hill Old Baldy, UN troops counterattacked a second time against an advance position seized by 200 Reds early Tuesday.

A thunderous artillery barrage and allied infantry charge early this morning failed to dislodge the Reds.

The U. S. Eighth Army said it had no late report on the second attack.

Police Solve Case With Complete Form

New York, July 30 (AP)—Police had a snap solving a tailor shop robbery last night. The robber left a paper giving his name, address and description.

The "calling card" was a completed application form for city employment, which apparently had popped unnoticed from the robber's pocket when he drew his gun.

Police reported they found the applicant, Moses Haynes, 21, Negro, at his Brooklyn address. They said he told them he committed the $26 robbery to pay an employment agency fee. He was charged with robbery.

Big Toll Bridge Opens

Sandy Point, Md., July 30 (AP)—A 45-million-dollar toll bridge spanning Chesapeake Bay was opened today. Reaching over a 4.3-mile stretch of water just above Annapolis, it is the third longest bridge in the world. The bridge fits into the long range plan for super-highways along the east coast. Its eastern end ultimately will be connected by expressways to the Delaware Memorial Bridge and the New Jersey Turnpike. Others are taking shape west to Washington and South to Richmond. It is on U. S. 50 and substitutes a 12-minute crossing for a ferry shuttle.

Woman Opens Drive With Orange Address

Newburgh, July 30 (AP)—Mrs. Marian K. Sanders, until recently editor of the U. S. State Department's discontinued Russian-language magazine, "Amerika," started her campaign for Congress last night.

Mrs. Sanders, a Democrat, is opposing Rep. Katharine St. George, Republican incumbent in the 28th Congressional District.

Speaking to the Orange County Democratic Club, Mrs. Sanders referred to her opponent and said that "extreme rightists" in Congress are "the closest allies of Russia."

She said she expected to get a large number of "Eisenhower votes," charging that Mrs. St. George had consistently voted against appropriations and programs for which Gen. Dwight Eisenhower had been fighting in recent years.

9 Types Business Under Wage Rules

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Nine types of small business enterprises have been put under wage controls by economic stabilizer Roger L. Putnam.

They are:

Trucking outfits; tool and die enterprises; automotive repair; logging operations and sawmills; building and construction industry; all Alaska concerns; new small businesses which expect to hire more than eight employes soon; concerns in which the pay of one or more employes is set up on an industry or area basis; and enterprises (other than banks) which get 25 per cent or more of their business income from dividends, interest, rents or royalties.

Congress exempted small business—defined as one employing eight or fewer persons — from wage and salary controls but allowed President Truman to reimpose them if he thought it necessary.

Unemployment Is Noted

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—There were dark spots on New York's industrial employment map today, although the roar of new fires in open-hearth furnaces was summoning steelworkers back to their jobs across the state. Fluctuating figures prevented a close estimate of the number still idle in the state after the nation's costliest steel strike. But indications were that steel production would lag below normal for at least two weeks. Related industries may take as long as six weeks to regain their stride.

Reds Ask Change In Papers' Wording

Munsan, Korea, July 30 (AP)—The Communists today suggested a possibly significant change in the wording of the proposed Korean armistice document now under study by staff officers of both sides.

It dealt with a paragraph relating to war prisoners. The issue of prisoner exchange has blocked a truce for months.

The Reds proposed changing the term "captured personnel" to "prisoner of war" in paragraph 52, which would then read:

"Each side agrees to insure that it shall not employ in acts of war in the Korean conflict any prisoners of war released from custody incident to the armistice."

Col. Duncan S. Somerville, UN command staff officer, said he had asked the Reds for clarification.

During recent secret truce talks, Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior UN armistice delegate, told the Reds the term captured personnel meant all people in custody, even those opposing repatriation. War prisoners, he added, were all those persons who were to be repatriated.

Vogeler Denies Part

New York, July 30 (AP)—Robert A. Vogeler said today he will not lecture nor in any way take part in a contemplated course in "Techniques of Espionage" at Peekskill (N.Y.) Military Academy. Vogeler spent 17 months in a Hungarian prison as an accused spy. An agency spokesman for the school said he incorrectly assumed Vogeler might do some lecturing if such a course is offered in the fall. Vogeler is a trustee of the school. "I am not going to conduct or lecture at a course for the academy on any subject. Such an idea was never even discussed with me," Vogeler said.

Brawl Is Result

Tokyo, July 30 (AP)—A self-styled "Mountain and Village Corps" of Communists invaded a laborers' field camp near Tokyo last night to give a show of lantern slides—and wound up in a club-swinging brawl with the laborers who didn't want to look. Kyodo News Agency reported 17 Reds tangled with about 50 construction workers. Several laborers were seriously injured. Nine Communists were arrested.

Third Polio Case Reported

Ulster county's third case of polio for the month of July was reported to the health department Tuesday afternoon. The patient is a non-resident, 16, who has been hospitalized at Vassar Brothers Hospital, Poughkeepsie. The case is the seventh reported in the county this year.

Lovett Has Reason For 'Flying Saucer'

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Even Secretary of Defense Lovett has seen a "flying saucer"—but he had an explanation for it.

Pentagon sources said Lovett, returning to Washington from New York Sunday, was a fellow passenger aboard an airliner with persons who insisted they had seen a white disc whirling along beside the plane.

Lovett, however, reportedly said he had been watching a searchlight playing into the clear, moonlit sky and at one point its cone of light caught and held a tuft of cumulus cloud, creating the impression of a circular body keeping pace with the plane.

"That's how many a flying saucer gets born," one officer said.

Polio Cases Decrease Outside New York

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Reports of new cases of poliomyelitis in counties outside New York city dropped slightly last week, but the 1952 total still exceeds that of last year, the state health department said today.

The department reported 40 new cases for the weekended July 26, compared with 51 the preceding week. Last week's total was seven over the 33 cases reported during the corresponding week last year.

Orange county reported 12 new cases, boosting the county's 1952 total to 36, highest in the state. Erie county had six new cases for a total of 21.

Other counties that reported new cases were: Westchester and Suffolk, five each; Nassau and Broome, three each, and Cattaraugus, Chenango, Ontario, Otsego, Rockland and Ulster, one each.

Must Post Watchman

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today ordered the Long Island Rail Road to station a watchman at the William Floyd Parkway grade crossing in the town of Brookhaven, Suffolk county, on days when school is in session. The order directed a watchman be posted between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. on school days, until the railroad completes the installation of automatic flashing-light warning signals at the crossing.

Lions Club Is Told Of Anniversary Results

Kingston's 300th Anniversary year events have succeeded in giving residents a new pride in their city and a greater understanding of its history, Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said in an address Tuesday noon to members of the Lions Club.

Speaking at the club's regular meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel, Kurdt added that the celebration has attracted many visitors to the city, has stimulated business and has gained for the area widespread publicity.

Kurdt termed the pageant, "A Land of Beauty," which was staged at the municipal stadium last week, an undertaking which "well pleased" all who saw it.

Particular tribute was paid by Kurdt to Mrs. Raymond Gross, its author, and Irving Rose, who had charge of its production. "I don't think many people realize how much work they put in," he said, adding that they received no remuneration for their time. Many others also worked hard and long to make the pageant a success, he said.

Mentioning the public inspection of old stone houses in Hurley last weekend, Kurdt stated that "maybe we are missing a bet in Kingston." Noting that "two or three" busloads of visitors came from New York to see the historic homes, Kurdt indicated that the same thing might be a good thing for Kingston to do. He added that the Hurley Reformed Church netted approximately $1,100 by the promotion.

At the conclusion of Kurdt's talk, Robert E. Teetsel, Lions Club president, expressed his appreciation to the Chamber of Commerce, without which, he said, the celebration of Kingston's 300th anniversary would have been impossible.

Firemen Put Out Blaze With Difficulty

Nashville, Tenn., July 30 (AP)—Suburban Woodbine firemen put out a barn fire last night, but it was a struggle.

The first truck which set out overturned during a thunderstorm. Firemen Claiborn Ross and Curtis Hall, both 21, were unhurt.

Ross hastened to a nearby house to call the department. The woman who lived there refused to let him in to telephone because he was too wet.

On his departure, the woman's dog bit him.

Minor Fight Takes Place in Korea

Seoul, Korea, July 30 (AP)—One minor action was reported today as rain drenched the Korean battle front for the six straight day.

Mainly ground contact was limited to brief exchanges between patrols.

But on the western front, near the shell ripped hill Old Baldy, UN troops counterattacked a second time against an advance position seized by 200 Reds early Tuesday.

A thunderous artillery barrage and allied infantry charge early this morning failed to dislodge the Reds.

The U. S. Eighth Army said it had no late report on the second attack.

The Stevenson Profile

(This third of a five-part series on the life of Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic nominee for president, covers the war years, the birth of the UN and the Alger Hiss case.)

By Roger F. Lane

Springfield, Ill., July 29 (AP)—When he returned to Washington in 1941, Adlai Stevenson already had acquired a vision of America's place in the shrinking, strife-ridden world.

His knowledge of international relations grew in succeeding years, until eventually he assisted in the birth of the United Nations and participated in its first and second general assemblies.

By the middle 1940s, Stevenson was working on foreign policy problems with the late Senator Arthur Vandenberg, John Foster Dulles and Senator Tom Connally, all far better known then to the public.

His original interest in the subject probably sprang from boyhood travels with his family in Europe and his experiences in 1926 on a tour of the Near East and Russia.

Welcomed Diplomats

It ripened in the 1930s as a member, and finally president, of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. The council welcomed foreign diplomats, debated their pronouncements and weighted possible effects on the United States of far away events.

Its discussions—and Stevenson's voice—were out of harmony with the predominant sentiments of a city whose mayor once threatened to bust King George of England in the "snoot" and which became a stronghold of the America first movement.

Stevenson's willingness to swim against the tide gave a glimpse of a characteristic that reappeared in the Alger Hiss case and in some unpopular acts as governor of Illinois.

He held resolutely to his foreign policy views. In 1940 after Adolf Hitler's Panzers sliced through northern France to Paris, he became Chicago chairman of the William Allen White Committee to defend America by aiding the allies.

Returns to Washington

Stevenson returned to Washington as a special assistant to Navy Secretary Frank Knox, one of two Republicans then in FDR's cabinet.

Knox put him to work laying legal groundwork for seizue of struck shipyards at Kearney, N. J. The machinery he devised served as a pattern for 60 subsequent seizures.

After Japan's Dec. 7, 1947 strike against Pearl Harbor plunged the U. S. into World War 2, Stevenson was dispatched to the Caribbean area and the Panama Canal Zone to gather information on defense preparations.

Next, he accompanied Knox and high navy officers on a tour of the nation's bastions in the Pacific.

Further wartime travels lay ahead. Before he was through, Stevenson visited Algeria, Tunis and Liberia in Africa, and Italy, France, England, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany in Europe.

Perhaps his most important assignment was as chief of a Foreign Economic Administration Mission to Italy. Its purpose was to plan for relief and rehabilitation of the liberated areas.

Wins Commendation

His report, covering agriculture, industry, communications, currency, transportation and import problems, won commendation from superiors in Washington as a model document of its kind.

In Italy, Stevenson met the man who eight years afterwards was to be his rival for the presidency—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The brief encounter occurred in the corridor of a Naples office building. Eisenhower asked how things were going and Stevenson said as well as could be expected. That's all there was to the exchange.

Knox died in April 1944 and Stevenson resigned. However, he undertook another wartime assassignment that fall, serving on an Army Air Mission to evaluate strategic bombing damage in Germany.

In 1945 Stevenson moved over a few notches into the domain of diplomacy proper.

The State Department, mindful of his growing experience, called on Stevenson to help promote public understanding of the forthcoming United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Press Relations Sag

When the conference started, press relations of the United States delegation sagged and Stevenson was given the job of sprucing them up. He performed creditably.

He served as deputy to former Secretary of State Stettinius, who headed the U. S. delegation, at the UN Preparatory Commission meeting in London in the fall of 1945. He filled Stettinius's shoes when the latter took sick.

He was "senior adviser" to the U. S. delegation at the first General Assembly of the UN in New York the following January. That fall, and in the 1947 meeting of the General Assembly, he served as an alternate delegate.

In his various capacities connected with the creation and early functions of the UN Stevenson was brought in touch with Alger Hiss.

He first met Hiss in 1933 when both were employed by the AAA. Their contact at this time was "frequent but not close or daily," in the words of the controversial deposition Stevenson made for use at the first trial of Hiss on perjury charges.

After 1933, Stevenson said he saw no more of Hiss for nearly 12 years. The two renewed their acquaintance early in 1945 when both were employed by the State Department.

Their Paths Cross

In the next two years, Stevenson and Hiss followed official paths that verged and crossed several times. They met at intradepartmental conferences of the State Department in Washington and discussed press relations at the San Francisco Conference. Hiss was secretary general of the conference.

This sort of contact continued intermittently into the latter part of 1947, when they had their final encounter—in New York. At that time, Stevenson was a UN alternate delegate and Hiss was connected with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Eighteen months passed. Stevenson now was governor of Illinois. Hiss stood accused in a federal Court in New York of lying to conceal theft of secret U. S. documents.

Pursuant to a court order, Stevenson was approached on June 2, 1949, by a U. S. commissioner in Springfield, Ill., to answer some questions under oath.

Main Questions

The main questions concerned the length of Stevenson's acquaintance with Hiss, the history and circumstances of their association and whether—from what Stevenson had heard about Hiss from other persons up until then—he considered good or bad the accussed's reputation for loyalty, integrity and truthfulness.

Stevenson answered the questions. He said Hiss had a good reputation, among their acquaintances in common, on each of the specific points raised.

The first Hiss trial ended in a hung jury. Hiss was tried a second time, and convicted.

Early this year, Stevenson was asked about the deposition by a reporter in a television interview. He related how it came about and added this:

"I'm a lawyer. I think that one of the most fundamental responsibilities, not only of every citizen but particularly of lawyers, is to give testimony in a court of law, to give it honestly and willingly, and it will be a very unhappy day for Anglo-Saxon justice when a man, even a man in public life, is too timid to state what he knows and what he has heard about a defendant in a criminal trial for fear that the defendant might later be convicted."

Then the interviewer asked: "Now that so many of the facts have come out in the Hiss case, what is your judgment or feeling about the verdict of the court."

"I am a lawyer," Stevenson replied. "I believe explicitly that a jury of one's peers must find the right answer or else we can have no faith in our judicial system."

Jacoby on Canasta

CONTRACT DISCARD PILE TO WIN

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When you are playing for a big score it is not enough to win the first substantial discard pile. That is only the first battle in a campaign. The rest of the campaign consists in getting more cards into your partner's hand and then keeping control of the discard pile until somebody melds out.

There is a regular style to follow in getting additional cards into your partner's hand. The first principle is: Don't meld any more than you have to when picking up the pack.

This principle can be modified a bit if you pick up a really large pile—say, more than 30 cards. In such a case you would meld any natural canastas that happened to be in the pile, and you would meld three of any five of a kind or four of any six of a kind. That is, you would meld anything provided you could still keep a natural pair in your hand.

Your reason for holding a pair in your hand is that this prevents the opponents from freezing the pack. If you melded, the opponents could freeze and then discard their remaining cards in that meld.

Even this tactic isn't completely safe. Sometimes you get a large pack at a time when the opponents are threatening to meld out quickly. In such a case you must meld six of a kind rather than keep a pair of them in your hand.

This gives your partner a chance to complete the canasta, if he has a seventh card, when his turn comes. After all, you may not get another chance, for the right-hand opponent may meld out.

Having melded very sparingly, as a general rule, your second step is to make a safe discard. A black three is best, and is usually available when you have won a big pack.

It is now up to your partner. He must refuse any card that is offered to him by the next player. He doesn't want to pick up a two-card discard pile; but he will be happy to get six cards at his next turn, or 10 cards at the turn after that.

To preserve his chance for the pack he must not meld anything—not even to complete a natural canasta. Instead, he must simply hold on to all of his cards except for the safest possible discard.

When your own turn comes again, you must put down a few three-card melds. These will help him win the pick at a time when it is worth winning. Once you can help him get five or six additional cards into his hand the partnership can control the discard pile until the hand comes to an end.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

To Present Classics

Verona, Italy (AP)—Aspiring actors from universities in eight countries will present ancient and modern classics of the theatre in this traditional home of Romeo and Juliet. Their performances next month will be the major part of the second international Festival of University Theatres sponsored by the International Delphic Institute. The institute was founded in 1949 at Mainz, Germany. It is now aided by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

The Stevenson Profile

(This third of a five-part series on the life of Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic nominee for president, covers the war years, the birth of the UN and the Alger Hiss case.)

By Roger F. Lane

Springfield, Ill., July 29 (AP)—When he returned to Washington in 1941, Adlai Stevenson already had acquired a vision of America's place in the shrinking, strife-ridden world.

His knowledge of international relations grew in succeeding years, until eventually he assisted in the birth of the United Nations and participated in its first and second general assemblies.

By the middle 1940s, Stevenson was working on foreign policy problems with the late Senator Arthur Vandenberg, John Foster Dulles and Senator Tom Connally, all far better known then to the public.

His original interest in the subject probably sprang from boyhood travels with his family in Europe and his experiences in 1926 on a tour of the Near East and Russia.

Welcomed Diplomats

It ripened in the 1930s as a member, and finally president, of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. The council welcomed foreign diplomats, debated their pronouncements and weighted possible effects on the United States of far away events.

Its discussions—and Stevenson's voice—were out of harmony with the predominant sentiments of a city whose mayor once threatened to bust King George of England in the "snoot" and which became a stronghold of the America first movement.

Stevenson's willingness to swim against the tide gave a glimpse of a characteristic that reappeared in the Alger Hiss case and in some unpopular acts as governor of Illinois.

He held resolutely to his foreign policy views. In 1940 after Adolf Hitler's Panzers sliced through northern France to Paris, he became Chicago chairman of the William Allen White Committee to defend America by aiding the allies.

Returns to Washington

Stevenson returned to Washington as a special assistant to Navy Secretary Frank Knox, one of two Republicans then in FDR's cabinet.

Knox put him to work laying legal groundwork for seizue of struck shipyards at Kearney, N. J. The machinery he devised served as a pattern for 60 subsequent seizures.

After Japan's Dec. 7, 1947 strike against Pearl Harbor plunged the U. S. into World War 2, Stevenson was dispatched to the Caribbean area and the Panama Canal Zone to gather information on defense preparations.

Next, he accompanied Knox and high navy officers on a tour of the nation's bastions in the Pacific.

Further wartime travels lay ahead. Before he was through, Stevenson visited Algeria, Tunis and Liberia in Africa, and Italy, France, England, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany in Europe.

Perhaps his most important assignment was as chief of a Foreign Economic Administration Mission to Italy. Its purpose was to plan for relief and rehabilitation of the liberated areas.

Wins Commendation

His report, covering agriculture, industry, communications, currency, transportation and import problems, won commendation from superiors in Washington as a model document of its kind.

In Italy, Stevenson met the man who eight years afterwards was to be his rival for the presidency—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The brief encounter occurred in the corridor of a Naples office building. Eisenhower asked how things were going and Stevenson said as well as could be expected. That's all there was to the exchange.

Knox died in April 1944 and Stevenson resigned. However, he undertook another wartime assignment that fall, serving on an Army Air Mission to evaluate strategic bombing damage in Germany.

In 1945 Stevenson moved over a few notches into the domain of diplomacy proper.

The State Department, mindful of his growing experience, called on Stevenson to help promote public understanding of the forthcoming United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Press Relations Sag

When the conference started, press relations of the United States delegation sagged and Stevenson was given the job of sprucing them up. He performed creditably.

He served as deputy to former Secretary of State Stettinius, who headed the U. S. delegation, at the UN Preparatory Commission meeting in London in the fall of 1945. He filled Stettinius's shoes when the latter took sick.

He was "senior adviser" to the U. S. delegation at the first General Assembly of the UN in New York the following January. That fall, and in the 1947 meeting of the General Assembly, he served as an alternate delegate.

In his various capacities connected with the creation and early functions of the UN Stevenson was brought in touch with Alger Hiss.

He first met Hiss in 1933 when both were employed by the AAA. Their contact at this time was "frequent but not close or daily," in the words of the controversial deposition Stevenson made for use at the first trial of Hiss on perjury charges.

After 1933, Stevenson said he saw no more of Hiss for nearly 12 years. The two renewed their acquaintance early in 1945 when both were employed by the State Department.

Their Paths Cross

In the next two years, Stevenson and Hiss followed official paths that verged and crossed several times. They met at intradepartmental conferences of the State Department in Washington and discussed press relations at the San Francisco Conference. Hiss was secretary general of the conference.

This sort of contact continued intermittently into the latter part of 1947, when they had their final encounter—in New York. At that time, Stevenson was a UN alternate delegate and Hiss was connected with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Eighteen months passed. Stevenson now was governor of Illinois. Hiss stood accused in a federal Court in New York of lying to conceal theft of secret U. S. documents.

Pursuant to a court order, Stevenson was approached on June 2, 1949, by a U. S. commissioner in Springfield, Ill., to answer some questions under oath.

Main Questions

The main questions concerned the length of Stevenson's acquaintance with Hiss, the history and circumstances of their association and whether—from what Stevenson had heard about Hiss from other persons up until then—he considered good or bad the accussed's reputation for loyalty, integrity and truthfulness.

Stevenson answered the questions. He said Hiss had a good reputation, among their acquaintances in common, on each of the specific points raised.

The first Hiss trial ended in a hung jury. Hiss was tried a second time, and convicted.

Early this year, Stevenson was asked about the deposition by a reporter in a television interview. He related how it came about and added this:

"I'm a lawyer. I think that one of the most fundamental responsibilities, not only of every citizen but particularly of lawyers, is to give testimony in a court of law, to give it honestly and willingly, and it will be a very unhappy day for Anglo-Saxon justice when a man, even a man in public life, is too timid to state what he knows and what he has heard about a defendant in a criminal trial for fear that the defendant might later be convicted."

Then the interviewer asked: "Now that so many of the facts have come out in the Hiss case, what is your judgment or feeling about the verdict of the court."

"I am a lawyer," Stevenson replied. "I believe explicitly that a jury of one's peers must find the right answer or else we can have no faith in our judicial system."

CONTRACT DISCARD PILE TO WIN

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When you are playing for a big score it is not enough to win the first substantial discard pile. That is only the first battle in a campaign. The rest of the campaign consists in getting more cards into your partner's hand and then keeping control of the discard pile until somebody melds out.

There is a regular style to follow in getting additional cards into your partner's hand. The first principle is: Don't meld any more than you have to when picking up the pack.

This principle can be modified a bit if you pick up a really large pile—say, more than 30 cards. In such a case you would meld any natural canastas that happened to be in the pile, and you would meld three of any five of a kind or four of any six of a kind. That is, you would meld anything provided you could still keep a natural pair in your hand.

Your reason for holding a pair in your hand is that this prevents the opponents from freezing the pack. If you melded, the opponents could freeze and then discard their remaining cards in that meld.

Even this tactic isn't completely safe. Sometimes you get a large pack at a time when the opponents are threatening to meld out quickly. In such a case you must meld six of a kind rather than keep a pair of them in your hand.

This gives your partner a chance to complete the canasta, if he has a seventh card, when his turn comes. After all, you may not get another chance, for the right-hand opponent may meld out.

Having melded very sparingly, as a general rule, your second step is to make a safe discard. A black three is best, and is usually available when you have won a big pack.

It is now up to your partner. He must refuse any card that is offered to him by the next player. He doesn't want to pick up a two-card discard pile; but he will be happy to get six cards at his next turn, or 10 cards at the turn after that.

To preserve his chance for the pack he must not meld anything—not even to complete a natural canasta. Instead, he must simply hold on to all of his cards except for the safest possible discard.

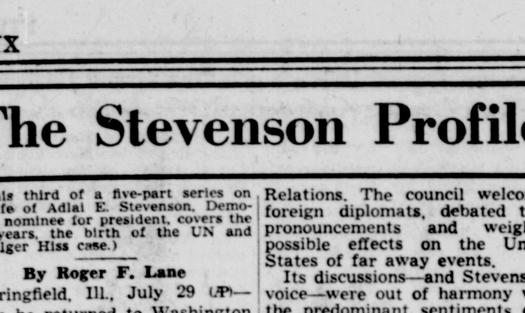

When your own turn comes again, you must put down a few three-card melds. These will help him win the pick at a time when it is worth winning. Once you can help him get five or six additional cards into his hand the partnership can control the discard pile until the hand comes to an end.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

To Present Classics

Verona, Italy (AP)—Aspiring actors from universities in eight countries will present ancient and modern classics of the theatre in this traditional home of Romeo and Juliet. Their performances next month will be the major part of the second international Festival of University Theatres sponsored by the International Delphic Institute. The institute was founded in 1949 at Mainz, Germany. It is now aided by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Burned Letters Found in Store

Discovery of partially burned letters on the inside of a mail slot at the Broadway Drygoods store, 638 Broadway last night led to an investigation by police and firemen.

Police headquarters were notified at 8:30 p. m., and it was reported then that Louis Levy, owner of the store, which has been closed for several months, had found the charred letters when he went there to show a prospective buyer the property.

The report said it appeared as though someone had thrown "something in through a mail slot in the door and set fire to mail on the floor." The mail was partially burned and the door seared.

Deputy Fire Chief James Brett and Officers Kenneth Gaffney and James Harbeck investigated. The letters were turned over to Postmaster William R. Kraft, but it was explained that since the mail had been delivered, no postal authority action was required. Contents of the letters appeared to be intact, and the letters were to be redelivered.

Circumstances resulting so far from the investigation indicate that the fire was the result of a thoughtless or mischievous act that could have resulted in serious damage by fire, the authorities indicated.

Take Adjournment In E. H. Kelly Case

An application to County Judge John M. Cashin for a new trial in the Edward H. Kelly first degree murder case, returnable today before the court was postponed by consent of the parties until August 5, due to the absence of Judge Cashin.

Kelly, now in Sing Sing prison awaiting execution for the killing of Mrs. Eloise McHugh following the jury's verdict of guilty, through his counsel Whitman Knapp of New York and Howard C. St. John of Kingston has secured an order seeking a new trial on the grounds that certain evidence can now be produced which, if presented to a jury, might change the verdict.

The motion was to be heard today but due to the absence of Judge Cashin, was postponed until next Tuesday. District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn and defense counsel agreed to the adjournment.

Jersey Youth Killed

Port Jervis, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—One New Jersey youth was fatally injured and another was critically hurt early today in an automobile accident five miles north of here on Route 209. Edward M. Grudus, 18, of Rochelle Park, N. J., driver of the car, died in St. Francis Hospital a few hours after the accident. Lester Jackson, 17, of Maywood, N. J., a passenger in the car, was in St. Francis Hospital suffering from fractured ribs, cuts and bruises. Cpl. Ernest Goodspeed, of the New York State Police, said the boys were enroute to Lake George, N. Y., on a vacation trip. He said the car swerved off the left side of the road, knocked down several guardrail posts and crashed into the end of a concrete culvert.

Attempts Are Ended

Terre Haute, Ind., July 30 (AP)—An AFL union has agreed to call off any more attempts to break through a CIO picketline—to go to work in the strikebound Allis-Chalmers jet engine parts plant. Eight men, including members from both groups, were hurt in an outbreak Monday, when some AFL men forced their way into the plant. The AFL withdrawal promise came at the request of State Labor Commissioner Thomas R. Hutson, who suggested "violence might mean martial law." Gov. Henry E. Schricker also asked the AFL operating engineers to get away from the plant. The pickets are CIO United Auto Workers, a union which is official bargaining agent for the workers.

Mrs. Reed Convicted

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 30 (AP)—Mrs. Katherine G. Reed, 44, of Mount Clemens, Mich., wife of an American air force colonel, was convicted today of five charges of selling coffee and gasoline coupons and making illegal currency exchanges on the German black market. She was found innocent of two other charges of importing coffee for re-sale and buying military scrip for American dollars. Judge DeWitt White of Morgantown, W. Va., after announcing the verdict, said he will sentence her later.

Liner Is Delayed

New York, July 30 (AP)—The welcome mat was out today for the new French liner Flandre on her maiden voyage, but late in the morning she still hadn't crossed the threshold of New York's upper harbor. Mechanical troubles kept the vessel anchored off Staten Island—nearly 24 hours late in docking. Greeters stewed and official welcome plans were scrambled. About 200 persons waited at the French Line pier. A 38-car motorcade was waiting to take French line and government officials to city hall.

'Pattern' Is Altered

London, July 30 (AP)—Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that because of financial difficulties it has been decided to "alter the pattern of the defense program," freeing part of the engineering industry to make goods for export.

Military Ballots Are Explained

The Department of State's Division for Servicemen's Voting today issued a statement stressing the right of all men in the services to vote.

"To obtain a military ballot," it said, "a serviceman may file an application or he may write a letter giving his full name and rank, his home residence address and his military address. Applications or letters must be subscribed by the servicemen, but need not be sworn to nor attested."

It also stressed that "The spouse, parent or child of a serviceman who resides in the same election district as the serviceman, and who accompanies him, may likewise vote a military ballot. The application for the military ballot for such person is the same as that used by the serviceman."

The division has postcard applications available to any person or organization requesting them. At present the nation has more than 3,500,000 men and women in the armed forces.

Civil Service Gives Examination Results

The Municipal Civil Service Commission today announced the following results of the June 24 examination for positions in the City of Kingston Laboratory:

Blood bank nurse (open competitive) Mary K. Wiseman, 156 Wall street, 84.88; Laboratory technician (promotional) Charles P. Emerick, Lay street, 84.34, including five "disabled veteran" points, and Mary M. Mills, 131 Albany avenue, 77.07; Laboratory aide (competitive) Thomas P. Fickus, 753 Broadway, 88.68, including 10 "disabled veteran" points.

He's Not Concerned

Los Angeles, July 30 (AP)—Physicist Albert Einstein is serenely unconcerned about flying saucers. Evangelist Louis A. Gardner wrote Einstein at Princeton to ask his opinion. Einstein replied: "These people have seen something. What it is I do not know and I am not curious to know." This was the extent of his reply, typewritten on stationery with the letterhead of the Institute for Advanced Study, School of Mathematics, Princeton, New Jersey. The Rev. Gardner, an interdenominitional evangelist, said he asked Einstein whether saucers originate in outer space, coming from Mars or Venus, or if they are products of military rivals or the U. S. Air Force.

Royalty Is Secluded

Isle of Capri, July 30 (AP)—Ex-King Farouk and his girl-queen Narriman remained secluded in their hotel today to the great disappointment of scores of curious waiting for a glimpse of Egypt's exiled royalty. Attendants at his hotel, perched on the cliffs of Anacapri, one of the highest points on the island, reported the former playboy monarch of the Nile kingdom made numerous long distance telephone calls during the morning. Lsat night a forlorn Farouk began his exile on foreign soil sitting alone with his thoughts on his secluded hotel balcony overlooking the Bay of Naples. It was near midnight when he went to his room. Ex-Queen Narriman turned out the lights in her separate apartment two hours earlier.

Sat on Tracks

Toledo, O., July 30 (AP)—Two hymn-singing spinster sisters, loaded with money and behind bars because they wouldn't stop sitting on railroad tracks, get a hearing in Municipal Court today. Miss Palestine Jarrell, 62, and Miss Ollie Jarrell, 55, of Atlanta, Ga., were arrested last night while sitting on tracks in Toledo's Central Union Terminal. They were carrying $8,132 in cash and a $4,262 cash certificate. Police, who said they also have at least $16,500 more in Atlanta banks, quoted them as saying only the Lord could order them off the tracks. Two railroad policemen accomplished the deed, but got a few scratches to show for it.

Body Is on View

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 30 (AP)—The body of Eva Peron remained on public view today, her funeral postponed indefinitely until the crush of mourners slows down. There was no letup, however, in the thousands crowding into the capital. President Juan D. Peron announced his wife's body would lie in state until all had viewed it. The funeral originally was planned for yesterday. Mrs. Peron died Saturday after a long illness.

Didn't Hear Anything

San Jose, Calif., July 30 (AP)—While a female flagpole sitter slept peacefully on her perch 35 feet above, thieves sledged away at a safe in the office of a drive-in theatre. Laverne Lamb, sitting as a promotion stunt, later shouted down to police that she hadn't heard the yeggs who hammered the safe open and escaped with $2,572.

8th Polio Case

Another case of polio was reported today in Ulster county, bringing the total for the year to eight. The Ulster County Health Department said that the latest case was a 30-year-old male residing in the rural area. This is the fourth case reported for the month of July, three of which have been resident and one non-resident.

Fire Is Checked

The Town of Ulster Fire Department was called at 7:23 p. m., yesterday to check a fire in a refrigerator in the cabin of W. L. O'Connor, and on a property near the Gates farm, Neighborhood Road. It was unoccupied at the time, the report said.

Wyant Condition Reported Serious

The condition of Edward Wyant, 25, of 65 Wrentham street, an employe of Thomson's Laundry, who was injured in an accident on Route 9W north of the Glasco road Friday afternoon, was described at Benedictine Hospital today as "still serious with no change."

Wyant, who suffered a fractured skull, was a passenger in the truck driven by Donald Keyser, 19, of 25 Broadway. The laundry truck was in collision with a vehicle operated by Joseph Fabiano, 19, of Glasco.

Keyser was arrested by state police of the Kingston station on a charge of operating the truck without a license and was fined $10 by Judge Glenford Myers of Saugerties. Police indicated today that a charge of permitting an unlicensed operator to drive would probably be lodged against Wyant.

Twin Lakes Aide Arrested in Albany

An employe of the Twin Lakes Mountain Lodge on Lucas avenue extension was arrested in Albany last night charged with robbery second degree, state police of the Kingston station said today.

Police charged that Robert Falconer, 29, of 53 North 18th street, East Orange, N. J., took $90 from a guest at the Lodge Tuesday. He was the object of an all-day search by Sgt. A. A. Reilly and Trooper E. J. Devine of the state police who traced him from Kingston to Saugerties.

A description was placed on the police teletype service and Falconer was picked up by Albany city police late last night. Sgt. Reilly and Trooper J. J. Cullen made the trip to Albany about 11 p. m. to return Falconer to Kingston where he was committed to the Ulster county jail.

He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Clarence Rappleyea of the Town of Ulster this morning and held for the grand jury.

Boiteux Is Winner

Helsinki, July 30 (AP) — Jean Boiteux of France won the Olympic championship in the men's 400-meter free style swimming today, setting a new Olympic record. Ford Konno, Ohio State University star from Hawaii was second and Per-Olaf Ostrand of Sweden was third. The fabulous Frenchman, who broke the previous Olympic record in a trial heat yesterday, was timed in four minutes, 30.7 seconds in the final today. His mark yesterday was 4:33.1. The listed Olympic record, set in 1948 at the London Olympics, was 4:41 by Bill Smith of the United States.

Only Two Days Left

Only two more days remain on which the public may inspect the loan exhibit of the Julia Dillon paintings at the Ulster County Historical Society house on Route 209, Marbletown. More than 100 have visited the exhibit at the Bevier house during the public showing. The hostesses for Thursday afternoon will be Mrs. Myron Teller, Mrs. Walter H. Son, and Mrs. O. R. Hiltebrant. The exhibit will close on Saturday.

Two Escape Prison

Windsor, Vt., July 30 (AP)—Two prisoners crashed out of the Vermont State Prison today by driving a big work truck through a steel gate. Donald E. Demag, 29, of Burlington, serving a life term for murder, and Francis Blair, 31, of Fitchburg, Mass., serving seven to ten years for grand larceny, abandoned the truck 12 miles from the prison.

Lewis Talks Reported

Washington, July 30 (AP)—John L. Lewis reportedly has begun talks with a major part of the soft coal industry, probably to lay the groundwork for full-scale contract negotiations. An informed source, who is in touch with the situation but declined use of his name, said today Lewis had conferred with the industry yesterday.

Cargo Is Unloaded

Pusan, Korea, July 30 (AP)—U. S. and South Korean soldiers and sailors today unloaded military cargo from ships in this busy port as a strike of 1,500 Korean stevedores went into its second day. The Korean longshoremen, whose average wage is approximately 50 cents a day, are asking $1.40 per day.

Will Marry Friday

Hollywood, July 30 (AP)—Comedian Jack Carson and actress Lola Albright have announced they plan to be married Friday at the Little Brown Church in San Fernando. Carson was divorced two years ago from singer Kay St. Germain.

Dog Warns of Fire

Centralia, Ill. (AP) — A Southern Illinois couple wouldn't part now with a dog they once tried to give away and couldn't. The Louis Troys at Pinckneyville credit Fritzie, a 3-year-old with Spitz and other ancestry, with saving their grocery store and perhaps their lives. A night fire broke out in a mechanical cooler near Fritzie's sleeping spot. He went to their bed and they said Fritzie barked until they got up and investigated. Neighbors helped carry the fire safely outside.

Road Map Memento

After a road trip why not keep your road map as a memento of the tour? Paste it to the wall of your den or rumpus room by coating the back of the map with shellac. When it is pasted down, give the surface a thin coat of white shellac.

New Board to Be In Looks Like Old

Washington, July 30 (AP)—A new Wage Stabilization Board free from the bitterness and controversy which surrounds its predecessor came into legal existence today.

As yet unnamed, the new board will look much like the old WSB which, with a membership of 18 representing the public interest, labor and industry, was ordered disbanded by Congress because of recommendations it made last March in its effort to settle the critical steel dispute.

The new WSB has no power to deal with nationwide labor disputes; all its members will need Senate confirmation; and all regulations it may issue to control wages must be cleared first by the Economic Stabilization Agency headed by Roger L. Putnam.

The new board has already crossed one hurdle: The AFL announced that it will reappoint its representation on the old board to the new board.

The CIO maintained official silence but there was no question it too would agree to participate.

Slated for chairmanship is Harvard Law Professor Archibald Cox, a young labor relations expert who now is co-chairman of the Construction Industry Stabilization Commission.

The new WSB will likely contain several men who served on the old board. Although President Truman has said he will name an 18-man board, it may be several weeks before the full complement is reached.

Record Year Seen For Racing Fees

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—The state's pari-mutuel racing revenue apparently is headed for a new record this year, the tax commission noted today.

The state's take from the four flat tracks and six harness tracks in the first quarter of the fiscal year—April, May and June—totaled $14,921,948, compared with $12,968,778 for the corresponding period last year. Figures for July are expected to boost the increase further.

Racing revenue in New York last year hit a high of $35,017,959.92 from all sources—parimutuels, admissions and license fees.

Among the most recent parimutuel revenue figures made available were those of the summer meetings at Empire-at-Jamaica and Aqueduct tracks.

In the six-day meeting that ended July 19, Empire bettors poured $654,277 into the state till. Despite an attendance slump from 138,010 in the 1951 meeting of 130,438, the revenue was up $16,669.

In the 27-day summer meeting at Aqueduct, which ended July 12, the state's haul was $3,232,432. In Aqueduct's 20-day meeting last year the state collected $2,205,770. The proportional increase, based on a like number of days, was 8.6 per cent.

Employer Aid Says Claims Erroneous

New York, July 30 (AP)—An employer spokesman disputes union claims of effectiveness of an "organizational strike" against non-union firms in the women's coat and suit manufacturing industry.

The union demonstration, started yesterday, is aimed at 55 firms in the garment center here and 45 others in New York state, New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

The management claim came from Hyman Deutchman, treasurer of the Independent Association of Women's Apparel Manufacturers, a newly-formed non-union employer group. He disputed the union claim that most of the 3,000-to-3,500 employes in the non-union shops had quit their jobs.

The strike was called yesterday by the cloak joint board of the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU).

The union says about 62,000 of the 65,000 workers in the women's coat and suit industry are union members.

Picketing of the non-union firms—authorized by union officials last Wednesday—started yesterday.

Isadore Nagler, manager of the union's joint board, called the strike successful and said last night that "we are very optimistic as to its outcome."

Deutchman said in a statement:

"We have no quarrel with organized labor. Our quarrel is with the type of leadership which seeks to blackjack employes into joining a union not of their own choosing."

The union denied any coercion on workers to join.

Earnings Are Reported

New York, July 30 (AP)—General Motors Corp. earned $1.59 a share for its stockholders during the second quarter of 1952 as against $1.55 a share in the same three months a year ago. But for the six months ended June 30 per share earnings declined to $3.01 from $3.13 in the year-ago period, the company's quarterly report discloses. Net income for the first half was 269 million dollars in 1952 vs. 280 million the year before. Net for the 2nd quarter increased to 142 million from 139 million in 1951.

Burned Letters Found in Store

Discovery of partially burned letters on the inside of a mail slot at the Broadway Drygoods store, 638 Broadway last night led to an investigation by police and firemen.

Police headquarters were notified at 8:30 p. m., and it was reported then that Louis Levy, owner of the store, which has been closed for several months, had found the charred letters when he went there to show a prospective buyer the property.

The report said it appeared as though someone had thrown "something in through a mail slot in the door and set fire to mail on the floor." The mail was partially burned and the door seared.

Deputy Fire Chief James Brett and Officers Kenneth Gaffney and James Harbeck investigated. The letters were turned over to Postmaster William R. Kraft, but it was explained that since the mail had been delivered, no postal authority action was required. Contents of the letters appeared to be intact, and the letters were to be redelivered.

Circumstances resulting so far from the investigation indicate that the fire was the result of a thoughtless or mischievous act that could have resulted in serious damage by fire, the authorities indicated.

Take Adjournment In E. H. Kelly Case

An application to County Judge John M. Cashin for a new trial in the Edward H. Kelly first degree murder case, returnable today before the court was postponed by consent of the parties until August 5, due to the absence of Judge Cashin.

Kelly, now in Sing Sing prison awaiting execution for the killing of Mrs. Eloise McHugh following the jury's verdict of guilty, through his counsel Whitman Knapp of New York and Howard C. St. John of Kingston has secured an order seeking a new trial on the grounds that certain evidence can now be produced which, if presented to a jury, might change the verdict.

The motion was to be heard today but due to the absence of Judge Cashin, was postponed until next Tuesday. District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn and defense counsel agreed to the adjournment.

Jersey Youth Killed

Port Jervis, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—One New Jersey youth was fatally injured and another was critically hurt early today in an automobile accident five miles north of here on Route 209. Edward M. Grudus, 18, of Rochelle Park, N. J., driver of the car, died in St. Francis Hospital a few hours after the accident. Lester Jackson, 17, of Maywood, N. J., a passenger in the car, was in St. Francis Hospital suffering from fractured ribs, cuts and bruises. Cpl. Ernest Goodspeed, of the New York State Police, said the boys were enroute to Lake George, N. Y., on a vacation trip. He said the car swerved off the left side of the road, knocked down several guardrail posts and crashed into the end of a concrete culvert.

Attempts Are Ended

Terre Haute, Ind., July 30 (AP)—An AFL union has agreed to call off any more attempts to break through a CIO picketline—to go to work in the strikebound Allis-Chalmers jet engine parts plant. Eight men, including members from both groups, were hurt in an outbreak Monday, when some AFL men forced their way into the plant. The AFL withdrawal promise came at the request of State Labor Commissioner Thomas R. Hutson, who suggested "violence might mean martial law." Gov. Henry E. Schricker also asked the AFL operating engineers to get away from the plant. The pickets are CIO United Auto Workers, a union which is official bargaining agent for the workers.

Mrs. Reed Convicted

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 30 (AP)—Mrs. Katherine G. Reed, 44, of Mount Clemens, Mich., wife of an American air force colonel, was convicted today of five charges of selling coffee and gasoline coupons and making illegal currency exchanges on the German black market. She was found innocent of two other charges of importing coffee for re-sale and buying military scrip for American dollars. Judge DeWitt White of Morgantown, W. Va., after announcing the verdict, said he will sentence her later.

Liner Is Delayed

New York, July 30 (AP)—The welcome mat was out today for the new French liner Flandre on her maiden voyage, but late in the morning she still hadn't crossed the threshold of New York's upper harbor. Mechanical troubles kept the vessel anchored off Staten Island—nearly 24 hours late in docking. Greeters stewed and official welcome plans were scrambled. About 200 persons waited at the French Line pier. A 38-car motorcade was waiting to take French line and government officials to city hall.

'Pattern' Is Altered

London, July 30 (AP)—Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that because of financial difficulties it has been decided to "alter the pattern of the defense program," freeing part of the engineering industry to make goods for export.

Military Ballots Are Explained

The Department of State's Division for Servicemen's Voting today issued a statement stressing the right of all men in the services to vote.

"To obtain a military ballot," it said, "a serviceman may file an application or he may write a letter giving his full name and rank, his home residence address and his military address. Applications or letters must be subscribed by the servicemen, but need not be sworn to nor attested."

It also stressed that "The spouse, parent or child of a serviceman who resides in the same election district as the serviceman, and who accompanies him, may likewise vote a military ballot. The application for the military ballot for such person is the same as that used by the serviceman."

The division has postcard applications available to any person or organization requesting them. At present the nation has more than 3,500,000 men and women in the armed forces.

Civil Service Gives Examination Results

The Municipal Civil Service Commission today announced the following results of the June 24 examination for positions in the City of Kingston Laboratory:

Blood bank nurse (open competitive) Mary K. Wiseman, 156 Wall street, 84.88; Laboratory technician (promotional) Charles P. Emerick, Lay street, 84.34, including five "disabled veteran" points, and Mary M. Mills, 131 Albany avenue, 77.07; Laboratory aide (competitive) Thomas P. Fickus, 753 Broadway, 88.68, including 10 "disabled veteran" points.

He's Not Concerned

Los Angeles, July 30 (AP)—Physicist Albert Einstein is serenely unconcerned about flying saucers. Evangelist Louis A. Gardner wrote Einstein at Princeton to ask his opinion. Einstein replied: "These people have seen something. What it is I do not know and I am not curious to know." This was the extent of his reply, typewritten on stationery with the letterhead of the Institute for Advanced Study, School of Mathematics, Princeton, New Jersey. The Rev. Gardner, an interdenominitional evangelist, said he asked Einstein whether saucers originate in outer space, coming from Mars or Venus, or if they are products of military rivals or the U. S. Air Force.

Royalty Is Secluded

Isle of Capri, July 30 (AP)—Ex-King Farouk and his girl-queen Narriman remained secluded in their hotel today to the great disappointment of scores of curious waiting for a glimpse of Egypt's exiled royalty. Attendants at his hotel, perched on the cliffs of Anacapri, one of the highest points on the island, reported the former playboy monarch of the Nile kingdom made numerous long distance telephone calls during the morning. Lsat night a forlorn Farouk began his exile on foreign soil sitting alone with his thoughts on his secluded hotel balcony overlooking the Bay of Naples. It was near midnight when he went to his room. Ex-Queen Narriman turned out the lights in her separate apartment two hours earlier.

Sat on Tracks

Toledo, O., July 30 (AP)—Two hymn-singing spinster sisters, loaded with money and behind bars because they wouldn't stop sitting on railroad tracks, get a hearing in Municipal Court today. Miss Palestine Jarrell, 62, and Miss Ollie Jarrell, 55, of Atlanta, Ga., were arrested last night while sitting on tracks in Toledo's Central Union Terminal. They were carrying $8,132 in cash and a $4,262 cash certificate. Police, who said they also have at least $16,500 more in Atlanta banks, quoted them as saying only the Lord could order them off the tracks. Two railroad policemen accomplished the deed, but got a few scratches to show for it.

Body Is on View

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 30 (AP)—The body of Eva Peron remained on public view today, her funeral postponed indefinitely until the crush of mourners slows down. There was no letup, however, in the thousands crowding into the capital. President Juan D. Peron announced his wife's body would lie in state until all had viewed it. The funeral originally was planned for yesterday. Mrs. Peron died Saturday after a long illness.

Didn't Hear Anything

San Jose, Calif., July 30 (AP)—While a female flagpole sitter slept peacefully on her perch 35 feet above, thieves sledged away at a safe in the office of a drive-in theatre. Laverne Lamb, sitting as a promotion stunt, later shouted down to police that she hadn't heard the yeggs who hammered the safe open and escaped with $2,572.

8th Polio Case

Another case of polio was reported today in Ulster county, bringing the total for the year to eight. The Ulster County Health Department said that the latest case was a 30-year-old male residing in the rural area. This is the fourth case reported for the month of July, three of which have been resident and one non-resident.

Fire Is Checked

The Town of Ulster Fire Department was called at 7:23 p. m., yesterday to check a fire in a refrigerator in the cabin of W. L. O'Connor, and on a property near the Gates farm, Neighborhood Road. It was unoccupied at the time, the report said.

Wyant Condition Reported Serious

The condition of Edward Wyant, 25, of 65 Wrentham street, an employe of Thomson's Laundry, who was injured in an accident on Route 9W north of the Glasco road Friday afternoon, was described at Benedictine Hospital today as "still serious with no change."

Wyant, who suffered a fractured skull, was a passenger in the truck driven by Donald Keyser, 19, of 25 Broadway. The laundry truck was in collision with a vehicle operated by Joseph Fabiano, 19, of Glasco.

Keyser was arrested by state police of the Kingston station on a charge of operating the truck without a license and was fined $10 by Judge Glenford Myers of Saugerties. Police indicated today that a charge of permitting an unlicensed operator to drive would probably be lodged against Wyant.

Twin Lakes Aide Arrested in Albany

An employe of the Twin Lakes Mountain Lodge on Lucas avenue extension was arrested in Albany last night charged with robbery second degree, state police of the Kingston station said today.

Police charged that Robert Falconer, 29, of 53 North 18th street, East Orange, N. J., took $90 from a guest at the Lodge Tuesday. He was the object of an all-day search by Sgt. A. A. Reilly and Trooper E. J. Devine of the state police who traced him from Kingston to Saugerties.

A description was placed on the police teletype service and Falconer was picked up by Albany city police late last night. Sgt. Reilly and Trooper J. J. Cullen made the trip to Albany about 11 p. m. to return Falconer to Kingston where he was committed to the Ulster county jail.

He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Clarence Rappleyea of the Town of Ulster this morning and held for the grand jury.

Boiteux Is Winner

Helsinki, July 30 (AP) — Jean Boiteux of France won the Olympic championship in the men's 400-meter free style swimming today, setting a new Olympic record. Ford Konno, Ohio State University star from Hawaii was second and Per-Olaf Ostrand of Sweden was third. The fabulous Frenchman, who broke the previous Olympic record in a trial heat yesterday, was timed in four minutes, 30.7 seconds in the final today. His mark yesterday was 4:33.1. The listed Olympic record, set in 1948 at the London Olympics, was 4:41 by Bill Smith of the United States.

Only Two Days Left

Only two more days remain on which the public may inspect the loan exhibit of the Julia Dillon paintings at the Ulster County Historical Society house on Route 209, Marbletown. More than 100 have visited the exhibit at the Bevier house during the public showing. The hostesses for Thursday afternoon will be Mrs. Myron Teller, Mrs. Walter H. Son, and Mrs. O. R. Hiltebrant. The exhibit will close on Saturday.

Two Escape Prison

Windsor, Vt., July 30 (AP)—Two prisoners crashed out of the Vermont State Prison today by driving a big work truck through a steel gate. Donald E. Demag, 29, of Burlington, serving a life term for murder, and Francis Blair, 31, of Fitchburg, Mass., serving seven to ten years for grand larceny, abandoned the truck 12 miles from the prison.

Lewis Talks Reported

Washington, July 30 (AP)—John L. Lewis reportedly has begun talks with a major part of the soft coal industry, probably to lay the groundwork for full-scale contract negotiations. An informed source, who is in touch with the situation but declined use of his name, said today Lewis had conferred with the industry yesterday.

Cargo Is Unloaded

Pusan, Korea, July 30 (AP)—U. S. and South Korean soldiers and sailors today unloaded military cargo from ships in this busy port as a strike of 1,500 Korean stevedores went into its second day. The Korean longshoremen, whose average wage is approximately 50 cents a day, are asking $1.40 per day.

Will Marry Friday

Hollywood, July 30 (AP)—Comedian Jack Carson and actress Lola Albright have announced they plan to be married Friday at the Little Brown Church in San Fernando. Carson was divorced two years ago from singer Kay St. Germain.

Dog Warns of Fire

Centralia, Ill. (AP) — A Southern Illinois couple wouldn't part now with a dog they once tried to give away and couldn't. The Louis Troys at Pinckneyville credit Fritzie, a 3-year-old with Spitz and other ancestry, with saving their grocery store and perhaps their lives. A night fire broke out in a mechanical cooler near Fritzie's sleeping spot. He went to their bed and they said Fritzie barked until they got up and investigated. Neighbors helped carry the fire safely outside.

New Board to Be In Looks Like Old

Washington, July 30 (AP)—A new Wage Stabilization Board free from the bitterness and controversy which surrounds its predecessor came into legal existence today.

As yet unnamed, the new board will look much like the old WSB which, with a membership of 18 representing the public interest, labor and industry, was ordered disbanded by Congress because of recommendations it made last March in its effort to settle the critical steel dispute.

The new WSB has no power to deal with nationwide labor disputes; all its members will need Senate confirmation; and all regulations it may issue to control wages must be cleared first by the Economic Stabilization Agency headed by Roger L. Putnam.

The new board has already crossed one hurdle: The AFL announced that it will reappoint its representation on the old board to the new board.

The CIO maintained official silence but there was no question it too would agree to participate.

Slated for chairmanship is Harvard Law Professor Archibald Cox, a young labor relations expert who now is co-chairman of the Construction Industry Stabilization Commission.

The new WSB will likely contain several men who served on the old board. Although President Truman has said he will name an 18-man board, it may be several weeks before the full complement is reached.

Record Year Seen For Racing Fees

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—The state's pari-mutuel racing revenue apparently is headed for a new record this year, the tax commission noted today.

The state's take from the four flat tracks and six harness tracks in the first quarter of the fiscal year—April, May and June—totaled $14,921,948, compared with $12,968,778 for the corresponding period last year. Figures for July are expected to boost the increase further.

Racing revenue in New York last year hit a high of $35,017,959.92 from all sources—parimutuels, admissions and license fees.

Among the most recent parimutuel revenue figures made available were those of the summer meetings at Empire-at-Jamaica and Aqueduct tracks.

In the six-day meeting that ended July 19, Empire bettors poured $654,277 into the state till. Despite an attendance slump from 138,010 in the 1951 meeting of 130,438, the revenue was up $16,669.

In the 27-day summer meeting at Aqueduct, which ended July 12, the state's haul was $3,232,432. In Aqueduct's 20-day meeting last year the state collected $2,205,770. The proportional increase, based on a like number of days, was 8.6 per cent.

Employer Aid Says Claims Erroneous

New York, July 30 (AP)—An employer spokesman disputes union claims of effectiveness of an "organizational strike" against non-union firms in the women's coat and suit manufacturing industry.

The union demonstration, started yesterday, is aimed at 55 firms in the garment center here and 45 others in New York state, New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

The management claim came from Hyman Deutchman, treasurer of the Independent Association of Women's Apparel Manufacturers, a newly-formed non-union employer group. He disputed the union claim that most of the 3,000-to-3,500 employes in the non-union shops had quit their jobs.

The strike was called yesterday by the cloak joint board of the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU).

The union says about 62,000 of the 65,000 workers in the women's coat and suit industry are union members.

Picketing of the non-union firms—authorized by union officials last Wednesday—started yesterday.

Isadore Nagler, manager of the union's joint board, called the strike successful and said last night that "we are very optimistic as to its outcome."

Deutchman said in a statement:

"We have no quarrel with organized labor. Our quarrel is with the type of leadership which seeks to blackjack employes into joining a union not of their own choosing."

The union denied any coercion on workers to join.

Earnings Are Reported

New York, July 30 (AP)—General Motors Corp. earned $1.59 a share for its stockholders during the second quarter of 1952 as against $1.55 a share in the same three months a year ago. But for the six months ended June 30 per share earnings declined to $3.01 from $3.13 in the year-ago period, the company's quarterly report discloses. Net income for the first half was 269 million dollars in 1952 vs. 280 million the year before. Net for the 2nd quarter increased to 142 million from 139 million in 1951.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

It seems important to the Ruminator to recognize that we have just completed a climax in domestic affairs, and that events over the next month or two are likely to appear anticlimactic.

We are so accustomed to sensationalism and excitement I think it will seem very strange not to have a lot of things to get het up about, as we say here in Vermont.

Let's make note of the climaxes: First in importance to the economic well-being of the nation was the settlement of the long steel strike (the longest and most costly in our history).

This will have an immediate bearing upon business activity, obviously. And it will also have an influence upon the November elections, because it assures industrial activity when people are making up their minds whom to vote for—and gives talking points to the campaigners.

Second, the nominating conventions are over. The two candidates chosen are "unexcitable" in character. They are the opposite of demagogs. Neither man, from what we know of them now, seems destined to stir up strife or hot arguments.

It is difficult to catalogue individuals, but you might characterize Stevenson as a somewhat conservative New Dealer, and Eisenhower as a liberal conservative. The Ruminator ventures to predict that neither Stevenson nor Eisenhower will set the public on fire with their speeches; rather, that they will both be liked. That is, it seems improbable that any such partisanship will prevail in this campaign as has prevailed in the elections since the Roosevelt revolution commenced.

The other speech-makers from both sides will attempt to stir up emotional excitement. Messrs. Truman and Barkley will put on a show, but it is a fair guess that neither man will have the appeal they had four years ago. Both Truman and Barkley have bowed out and will have lost much of their "punch" when they take to the road in September. Millions of people are so delighted to know that the Truman Fair Deal is a dead deal that they will not get much excited at his whistle-stopping this year.

The Democratic party is Labor's party, of course, and we'll find unions stumping for Stevenson. However, it will not be at all surprising if the General gets a fair slice of the labor vote, because a great many members of unions have become fearful that their leaders have become too autocratic and dictatorial.

On the Republican side, it looks now that Taft will not be asked to campaign much, if any. The Ruminator believes that the Eisenhower forces made a serious fundamental mistake in attacking the so-called Taft-Hoover-MacArthur group prior to the convention. It now makes it extremely difficult to draw them into the campaign. So this leaves the big question: What will the millions of Taft followers do; vote for Eisenhower or simply refuse to vote?

The foregoing may not seem important, but I think it is. We have lived in a state of hyper political tension for 20 years. If it should happen (as I think it will) that neither political party will have an intense or passionate appeal to partisan groups, it will prove anticlimactic indeed. At the same time, no great issues will be decided. We shall rock along indecisively, until events once again take control. There will be more heated arguments between the liberals and middle-roaders of the Democratic party, and between the Taft partisans and the Eisenhower followers, than there will be between the two parties themselves. A strange political situation, after what we have been through in recent years.

While the professionals slug it out in their personal campaigns, the two near-amateurs — one of which will be the President of the United States—will address us on the promising future that lies before us.

But while an anti-climax may be the domestic development, it also appears probable that in international affairs we are likely to witness an acceleration toward a foreign climax. It has been the Ruminator's guess that no critical events abroad were likely to develop until the conventions were over. As the final gavel struck last week, the Iranian and Egyptian crises once again were in the headlines.

From a contrary standpoint, it is this writer's belief that you will see significant moves on the part of Russia now that both political parties have nominated candidates who are fully in support of "collective security" and continued foreign aid. It will be "quiet" at home, but rough abroad. At least, that's my guess.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Strange as it may seem, it is exactly 50 years ago that the mammoth pageant "Oriental Opera Egypta" was played at the old Kingston Opera House on March 11 and 12 of 1902. The caste consisted of a large number, some of the names being familiar to me. There were eight companions to the princess, among which I see Julia Styles, Essie Teller, Jennie Weeks Frey. Of the six shepherdesses I see Norma Terry, Mildred Bennett. Among the 11 Hebrew maidens there were Serena Ostrander, Irene Lampman and Ollie Meeker. Besides that they had angels, Assyrian maidens, Egyptian maidens, Jewish maidens, Israelite maidens, shepherds, executioners, pages, fan bearers and the King's attendant, who was Jansen H. Preston. The Prince's attendant was Louis Hasbrouck. They had gate keepers, emblem bearers, banner bearers, oriental dancers, royal legions. William Kraft was one. Frank Eastman was one of the armor bearers. There were some 200 names from the grand chorus of children, many names being familiar. Besides that they had a grand chorus of adult singers, among the bassos were I. W. Scott, Harry Dodge and W. A. Frey. They called it "The wondrous story of the Nile." Well, they certainly had a lot of people on the stage. I would like to hear more about it.

There were many interesting advs. in the book. One illustrated the Herbert Carl Dry Goods Co. which building now houses Montgomery Ward. It reads in part: "The first sale in our new store. We have bought a stock for half price. This and some of our original stock will go the same way in our half-price and reduction sale beginning March 8, for one week. . . . We will expect everybody at this sale, because it means money in your pocket. There is everything here for your comfort and convenience. Our lunch counter is no small feature. For a very small sum you get a fine lunch." In years to come, when Rose and Gorman ran the store, the upstairs balcony was used for a ladies' rest room and offices. I often thought how wonderful that picture window overlooking the mountains would be for a lunch-room. In fact, I even spoke to Mr. Gorman about it. The view is magnificent from that balcony. It would be so pleasant and relaxing for a working person's lunch period. Old timers certainly knew about the comforts of life.

Weston's Laundry had an adv. in the book, so did Steven's Cream Cheese, manufactured by the Rip Van Winkle Creamery Co. of West Shokan, with offices at 48 East Strand. Crosby & Ennist down at 4 and 6 Broadway had an adv. in on "Ladies' suits, separate skirts, silk and wash waists." At 40 Broadway, which would be about one store below the late Dr Sam Stern's place was J. F. Schmidt, the cash grocer, dealer in high grade teas, coffees and fine groceries. Special sale every week. both telephones. The Robert Woolsey store at 113 Clinton avenue had "delivery to any part of the city." No doubt it was done with horse and wagon. Woolsey sold groceries and provisions.

German Marriage Mart

Frankfurt, Germany (AP)—Salesgirls who are 24 have the best chance to get married in Germany, which has a surplus of 2,800,000 women. Young housemaids run a close second in nuptial prospects, a survey by the West German Statistical Bureau indicates. But the bureau estimates that 1,000,000 German girls never will get married. Next to 24-year-olds, those who are 22 and 18 are most likely to find husbands. For the group between 26 and 39, it's liable to be a lonely existence. Over 40, demand again picks up. A well-groomed widow with an apartment of her own is sure-fire to receive proposals.

Old Christening Robe Used

Colonsay, Canada (AP) — A 98-year-old christening robe was used when the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Leigh was christened here. Little Robert Bruce wore the same robe that was used for the christening of his father, grandfather and great-grandfather.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Tourneys Will Give One Many Thrills

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The national championships now being held by the American Contract Bridge League in Cincinnati remind me of one of the most dramatic hands of last year's tournament. The hero was Alan P. Harvey, Jr., of Cincinnati, a member of the team that landed second in the contest for the national team championship.

The bidding was reasonably normal for a closely contested team match. West hated to sell out to North at a contract of one spade, but he was very sorry that he had struggled for the part score when North bulldozed his way to a game.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued the suit, hoping that dummy would be embarrassed by the ruff. Harvey, playing the South hand, decided to ensure an entry to his own hand later on. He therefore ruffed the second round of diamonds with dummy's queen of hearts.

At the third trick, Harvey returned a low trump from dummy, allowing West to take his king. West promptly returned a second trump, and this rode around to declarer's hand.

Now South could lead a spade from his own hand, and finesse dummy's jack. East could win with the ace of spades, but was unable to defeat the contract. When he returned a diamond, dummy ruffed and cashed the top clubs and the king of spades.

Declarer then ruffed a spade in his own hand, to win the last two tricks with the high trump and the last club.

When this hand was played at the other table the declarer ruffed the second diamond with a low trump, and tackled the trump suit by laying down the ace and queen. West took the king of hearts and led a third trump, after which South was unable to make his contract. The defenders were bound to get the ace of spades and a second diamond trick.

A Column of Contrary Opinion

It seems important to the Ruminator to recognize that we have just completed a climax in domestic affairs, and that events over the next month or two are likely to appear anticlimactic.

We are so accustomed to sensationalism and excitement I think it will seem very strange not to have a lot of things to get het up about, as we say here in Vermont.

Let's make note of the climaxes: First in importance to the economic well-being of the nation was the settlement of the long steel strike (the longest and most costly in our history).

This will have an immediate bearing upon business activity, obviously. And it will also have an influence upon the November elections, because it assures industrial activity when people are making up their minds whom to vote for—and gives talking points to the campaigners.

Second, the nominating conventions are over. The two candidates chosen are "unexcitable" in character. They are the opposite of demagogs. Neither man, from what we know of them now, seems destined to stir up strife or hot arguments.

It is difficult to catalogue individuals, but you might characterize Stevenson as a somewhat conservative New Dealer, and Eisenhower as a liberal conservative. The Ruminator ventures to predict that neither Stevenson nor Eisenhower will set the public on fire with their speeches; rather, that they will both be liked. That is, it seems improbable that any such partisanship will prevail in this campaign as has prevailed in the elections since the Roosevelt revolution commenced.

The other speech-makers from both sides will attempt to stir up emotional excitement. Messrs. Truman and Barkley will put on a show, but it is a fair guess that neither man will have the appeal they had four years ago. Both Truman and Barkley have bowed out and will have lost much of their "punch" when they take to the road in September. Millions of people are so delighted to know that the Truman Fair Deal is a deal deal that they will not get much excited at his whistle-stopping this year.

The Democratic party is Labor's party, of course, and we'll find unions stumping for Stevenson. However, it will not be at all surprising if the General gets a fair slice of the labor vote, because a great many members of unions have become fearful that their leaders have become too autocratic and dictatorial.

On the Republican side, it looks now that Taft will not be asked to campaign much, if any. The Ruminator believes that the Eisenhower forces made a serious fundamental mistake in attacking the so-called Taft-Hoover-MacArthur group prior to the convention. It now makes it extremely difficult to draw them into the campaign. So this leaves the big question: What will the millions of Taft followers do; vote for Eisenhower or simply refuse to vote?

The foregoing may not seem important, but I think it is. We have lived in a state of hyper political tension for 20 years. If it should happen (as I think it will) that neither political party will have an intense or passionate appeal to partisan groups, it will prove anticlimactic indeed. At the same time, no great issues will be decided. We shall rock along indecisively, until events once again take control. There will be more heated arguments between the liberals and middle-roaders of the Democratic party, and between the Taft partisans and the Eisenhower followers, than there will be between the two parties themselves. A strange political situation, after what we have been through in recent years.

While the professionals slug it out in their personal campaigns, the two near-amateurs—one of which will be the President of the United States—will address us on the promising future that lies before us.

But while an anti-climax may be the domestic development, it also appears probable that in international affairs we are likely to witness an acceleration toward a foreign climax. It has been the Ruminator's guess that no critical events abroad were likely to develop until the conventions were over. As the final gavel struck last week, the Iranian and Egyptian crises once again were in the headlines.

From a contrary standpoint, it is this writer's belief that you will see significant moves on the part of Russia now that both political parties have nominated candidates who are fully in support of "collective security" and continued foreign aid. It will be "quiet" at home, but rough abroad. At least, that's my guess.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Strange as it may seem, it is exactly 50 years ago that the mammoth pageant "Oriental Opera Egypta" was played at the old Kingston Opera House on March 11 and 12 of 1902. The caste consisted of a large number, some of the names being familiar to me. There were eight companions to the princess, among which I see Julia Styles, Essie Teller, Jennie Weeks Frey. Of the six shepherdesses I see Norma Terry, Mildred Bennett. Among the 11 Hebrew maidens there were Serena Ostrander, Irene Lampman and Ollie Meeker. Besides that they had angels, Assyrian maidens, Egyptian maidens, Jewish maidens, Israelite maidens, shepherds, executioners, pages, fan bearers and the King's attendant, who was Jansen H. Preston. The Prince's attendant was Louis Hasbrouck. They had gate keepers, emblem bearers, banner bearers, oriental dancers, royal legions. William Kraft was one. Frank Eastman was one of the armor bearers. There were some 200 names from the grand chorus of children, many names being familiar. Besides that they had a grand chorus of adult singers, among the bassos were I. W. Scott, Harry Dodge and W. A. Frey. They called it "The wondrous story of the Nile." Well, they certainly had a lot of people on the stage. I would like to hear more about it.

There were many interesting advs. in the book. One illustrated the Herbert Carl Dry Goods Co. which building now houses Montgomery Ward. It reads in part: "The first sale in our new store. We have bought a stock for half price. This and some of our original stock will go the same way in our half-price and reduction sale beginning March 8, for one week. . . . We will expect everybody at this sale, because it means money in your pocket. There is everything here for your comfort and convenience. Our lunch counter is no small feature. For a very small sum you get a fine lunch." In years to come, when Rose and Gorman ran the store, the upstairs balcony was used for a ladies' rest room and offices. I often thought how wonderful that picture window overlooking the mountains would be for a lunch-room. In fact, I even spoke to Mr. Gorman about it. The view is magnificent from that balcony. It would be so pleasant and relaxing for a working person's lunch period. Old timers certainly knew about the comforts of life.

Weston's Laundry had an adv. in the book, so did Steven's Cream Cheese, manufactured by the Rip Van Winkle Creamery Co. of West Shokan, with offices at 48 East Strand. Crosby & Ennist down at 4 and 6 Broadway had an adv. in on "Ladies' suits, separate skirts, silk and wash waists." At 40 Broadway, which would be about one store below the late Dr. Sam Stern's place was J. F. Schmidt, the cash grocer, dealer in high grade teas, coffees and fine groceries. Special sale every week, both telephones. The Robert Woolsey store at 113 Clinton avenue had "delivery to any part of the city." No doubt it was done with horse and wagon. Woolsey sold groceries and provisions.

German Marriage Mart

Frankfurt, Germany (AP)—Salesgirls who are 24 have the best chance to get married in Germany, which has a surplus of 2,800,000 women. Young housemaids run a close second in nuptial prospects, a survey by the West German Statistical Bureau indicates. But the bureau estimates that 1,000,000 German girls never will get married. Next to 24-year-olds, those who are 22 and 18 are most likely to find husbands. For the group between 26 and 39, it's liable to be a lonely existence. Over 40, demand again picks up. A well-groomed widow with an apartment of her own is sure-fire to receive proposals.

Old Christening Robe Used

Colonsay, Canada (AP) — A 98-year-old christening robe was used when the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Leigh was christened here. Little Robert Bruce wore the same robe that was used for the christening of his father, grandfather and great-grandfather.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Tourneys Will Give One Many Thrills

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The national championships now being held by the American Contract Bridge League in Cincinnati remind me of one of the most dramatic hands of last year's tournament. The hero was Alan P. Harvey, Jr., of Cincinnati, a member of the team that landed second in the contest for the national team championship.

The bidding was reasonably normal for a closely contested team match. West hated to sell out to North at a contract of one spade, but he was very sorry that he had struggled for the part score when North bulldozed his way to a game.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued the suit, hoping that dummy would be embarrassed by the ruff. Harvey, playing the South hand, decided to ensure an entry to his own hand later on. He therefore ruffed the second round of diamonds with dummy's queen of hearts.

At the third trick, Harvey returned a low trump from dummy, allowing West to take his king. West promptly returned a second trump, and this rode around to declarer's hand.

Now South could lead a spade from his own hand, and finesse dummy's jack. East could win with the ace of spades, but was unable to defeat the contract. When he returned a diamond, dummy ruffed and cashed the top clubs and the king of spades.

Declarer then ruffed a spade in his own hand, to win the last two tricks with the high trump and the last club.

When this hand was played at the other table the declarer ruffed the second diamond with a low trump, and tackled the trump suit by laying down the ace and queen. West took the king of hearts and led a third trump, after which South was unable to make his contract. The defenders were bound to get the ace of spades and a second diamond trick.

Cragsmoor Playhouse Has Black Chiffon

Directed by Jay Strong with set and lighting by Jean LeSayeux the run of Black Chiffon will continue through Sunday with a special matinee on Sunday afternoon.

Following Black Chiffon, Ann Sorg will be starred in the Sarah Churchill role in Gramercy Ghost in the comedy which rocked New York the past season and which has been one of the better laugh shows in the barn circuit. Hill Bermont will again be featured as Nathaniel Coombes, the ghost who could not rest until his honor had been vindicated which circumstance provides a generous portion of laughable situations.

The cast of Black Chiffon includes besides those above mentioned Janet Foote, John Lamberson a recent addition to the Cragsmoor acting company. The Cragsmoor Playhouse, reseated and refloored has been complimented on the new improvements which includes a new exterior lighting arrangement.

Miss Purfield Wins Beauty Contest at Olive Legion Post

At a dance sponsored by the Auxiliary of the Olive Memorial Post 1627 held Saturday at Woodland Acres, West Shokan, Miss Patricia Purfield of West Shokan was unanimously selected as beauty queen.

Miss Purfield will represent the local group at the county Legion picnic scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 3, at Friedberg's Grove, West Shokan.

The post commander, Ernest Gardner, congratulated Miss Purfield and presented her with a ribbon, an emblem of her championship, and a jeweled compact. Six young ladies had competed for the honor.

The judges were Helmut Miller, West Shokan; Maurice Slavin, Shokan, and Howard Trowbride, Olive Bridge.

Pageant Cast Urged To Return Costumes

A plea has been issued by those in charge of the pageant staged last week in the municipal stadium, to immediately return all costumes, including hats, dresses, parasols and fans to Mrs. Raymond Gross at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The costumes and accessories have been borrowed and are charged to the costume committee.

Miss Marian DeWitt Becomes Bride of Robert Alan Heroy

Modena, July 30—Miss Marian Elizabeth DeWitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. DeWitt, Sr., of Modena, and Robert Alan Heroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Heroy of New Paltz, were married at the Modena Methodist Church on Sunday, July 27, at 2:30 p. m. The Rev. William A. Imler, pastor of the Modena-Clintondale Methodist Churches, performed the double ring ceremony.

Church decorations were white gladioli. Traditional wedding selections were played by Mrs. J. Leonard Coy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of white slipper satin lace trimmed, Victorian style having a fiitted bodice, long pointed sleeves, and circular train. Her finger-tip veil fell from a crown of seed pearls. She carried white gladioli.

Mrs. Richard Schoonmaker of Wallkill, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a gown of cotillion blue net and lace over satin, a headpiece of peach colored gladioli, and carried a bouquet of gladioli. The bridesmaids, Miss Marjorie Heroy, sister of the groom, New Paltz, and Miss Grace Coddington, cousin of the bride, also of New Paltz, wore identical gowns of flamingo net and lace over satin and headpieces of deep blue and white cornflowers. They carried colonial bouquets of gladioli.

The best man was Richard Heroy, brother of the groom, New Paltz. Serving as ushers were brothers of the bride, Gerald C. DeWitt of Modena and Earl B. DeWitt, Jr. of Poughkeepsie.

A reception for 70 guests was held at the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, New Paltz.

The bride was graduated from the Wallkill Central High School, class of 1950, and is employed by the DeLaval Separator Co., of Poughkeepsie. The bridegroom was graduated from the New Paltz Central High School, class of 1950, and is employed in construction work.

After a wedding trip to Lake George, Mr. and Mrs. Heroy will make their home in New Paltz. For traveling the bride chose a light blue suit with white accessories.

BRIDAL WHITE AT SECOND MARRIAGE

The usually decided answer to a woman who wants to wear white and a veil at her second marriage is "NO" because of the unpleasant publicity. But the situation describe in this letter from a young woman is exceptional: "When I was sixteen I eloped with a boy nineteen and, like in old-fashioned novels, my father got wind of our plan and arrived at the parsonage just as the clergyman pronounced us 'man and wife.' In spite of our protests he brought me home, and I never saw my husband after that nor did I bear his name. In fact afterwards the marriage was annuled. My question is may I wear a bridal dress and veil at my wedding to another, which is taking place five years after this impulsive and unhappy episode?"

In this exceptional case of parting at the parsonage it would be no more than just to approve of your wearing white and a veil and to advise you to put your "brief marital prelude" out of mind forever!

The Newcomers Want to Give a Party

Dear Mrs. Post: We moved into the neighborhood about a year ago and not long after that one of our neighbors invited us to her house and had four or five of the other families in the neighborhood. Everyone was very friendly and has continued to be so whenever we happen to meet them. But none of them has called or invited us to anything. Our garden is especially beautiful just now and we are very proud of it. We would so much like to give a tea in it if it would not be wrong to invite them first! Will you tell us if it is correct to make this move?

Answer: The "correct" answer is, of course, that newcomers wait for the older residents to invite them first. But the informality of the present day makes the question of friendliness the only one of importance. If you feel that these people all mean to be friendly but are just not in the habit of giving parties then I think you would be quite safe to invite them. On the other hand, if they are in the habit of giving parties but have failed to include you, then you as newcomers should not make the first move.

Cragsmoor Playhouse Has Black Chiffon

Directed by Jay Strong with set and lighting by Jean LeSayeux the run of Black Chiffon will continue through Sunday with a special matinee on Sunday afternoon.

Following Black Chiffon, Ann Sorg will be starred in the Sarah Churchill role in Gramercy Ghost in the comedy which rocked New York the past season and which has been one of the better laugh shows in the barn circuit. Hill Bermont will again be featured as Nathaniel Coombes, the ghost who could not rest until his honor had been vindicated which circumstance provides a generous portion of laughable situations.

The cast of Black Chiffon includes besides those above mentioned Janet Foote, John Lamberson a recent addition to the Cragsmoor acting company. The Cragsmoor Playhouse, reseated and refloored has been complimented on the new improvements which includes a new exterior lighting arrangement.

Art Association Exhibit Sells Works

The Ulster County Art Association announces the sale of three paintings from the current exhibit in the downstairs gallery of the Senate Museum on Fair street.

The works sold include the Old Senate House and Perrine's Bridge by Sebastian Siggia, and Old Stone Houses, by Doris Ashton.

Visiting hours for the exhibition are 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. weekdays, and 1 to 5 p. m. on Sunday through Monday, Aug. 4.

Miss Purfield Wins Beauty Contest at Olive Legion Post

At a dance sponsored by the Auxiliary of the Olive Memorial Post 1627 held Saturday at Woodland Acres, West Shokan, Miss Patricia Purfield of West Shokan was unanimously selected as beauty queen.

Miss Purfield will represent the local group at the county Legion picnic scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 3, at Friedberg's Grove, West Shokan.

The post commander, Ernest Gardner, congratulated Miss Purfield and presented her with a ribbon, an emblem of her championship, and a jeweled compact. Six young ladies had competed for the honor.

The judges were Helmut Miller, West Shokan; Maurice Slavin, Shokan, and Howard Trowbride, Olive Bridge.

Pageant Cast Urged To Return Costumes

A plea has been issued by those in charge of the pageant staged last week in the municipal stadium, to immediately return all costumes, including hats, dresses, parasols and fans to Mrs. Raymond Gross at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The costumes and accessories have been borrowed and are charged to the costume committee.

Miss Marian DeWitt Becomes Bride of Robert Alan Heroy

Modena, July 30—Miss Marian Elizabeth DeWitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. DeWitt, Sr., of Modena, and Robert Alan Heroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Heroy of New Paltz, were married at the Modena Methodist Church on Sunday, July 27, at 2:30 p. m. The Rev. William A. Imler, pastor of the Modena-Clintondale Methodist Churches, performed the double ring ceremony.

Church decorations were white gladioli. Traditional wedding selections were played by Mrs. J. Leonard Coy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of white slipper satin lace trimmed, Victorian style having a fiitted bodice, long pointed sleeves, and circular train. Her finger-tip veil fell from a crown of seed pearls. She carried white gladioli.

Mrs. Richard Schoonmaker of Wallkill, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a gown of cotillion blue net and lace over satin, a headpiece of peach colored gladioli, and carried a bouquet of gladioli. The bridesmaids, Miss Marjorie Heroy, sister of the groom, New Paltz, and Miss Grace Coddington, cousin of the bride, also of New Paltz, wore identical gowns of flamingo net and lace over satin and headpieces of deep blue and white cornflowers. They carried colonial bouquets of gladioli.

The best man was Richard Heroy, brother of the groom, New Paltz. Serving as ushers were brothers of the bride, Gerald C. DeWitt of Modena and Earl B. DeWitt, Jr. of Poughkeepsie.

A reception for 70 guests was held at the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, New Paltz.

The bride was graduated from the Wallkill Central High School, class of 1950, and is employed by the DeLaval Separator Co., of Poughkeepsie. The bridegroom was graduated from the New Paltz Central High School, class of 1950, and is employed in construction work.

After a wedding trip to Lake George, Mr. and Mrs. Heroy will make their home in New Paltz. For traveling the bride chose a light blue suit with white accessories.

Tervay-Szymanski

Mrs. Edna Tervay of 134 North Front street announces the engagement of her daughter, Peggy, to Frank Szymanski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Szymanski, 102 Fourth avenue. No date has been set for the wedding.

Married in St. Mary's Church

MRS. WILLIAM JAMES NYULASSY

The marriage of Miss Loretta Geraldine Quick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Quick, 18 Mill street, to William James Nyulassy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Nyulassy, Flatbush, took place Sunday, July 27, at 2 p. m. in St. Mary's Church. The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony. (Sterling photo)

BRIDAL WHITE AT SECOND MARRIAGE

The usually decided answer to a woman who wants to wear white and a veil at her second marriage is "NO" because of the unpleasant publicity. But the situation describe in this letter from a young woman is exceptional: "When I was sixteen I eloped with a boy nineteen and, like in old-fashioned novels, my father got wind of our plan and arrived at the parsonage just as the clergyman pronounced us 'man and wife.' In spite of our protests he brought me home, and I never saw my husband after that nor did I bear his name. In fact afterwards the marriage was annuled. My question is may I wear a bridal dress and veil at my wedding to another, which is taking place five years after this impulsive and unhappy episode?"

In this exceptional case of parting at the parsonage it would be no more than just to approve of your wearing white and a veil and to advise you to put your "brief marital prelude" out of mind forever!

The Newcomers Want to Give a Party

Dear Mrs. Post: We moved into the neighborhood about a year ago and not long after that one of our neighbors invited us to her house and had four or five of the other families in the neighborhood. Everyone was very friendly and has continued to be so whenever we happen to meet them. But none of them has called or invited us to anything. Our garden is especially beautiful just now and we are very proud of it. We would so much like to give a tea in it if it would not be wrong to invite them first! Will you tell us if it is correct to make this move?

Answer: The "correct" answer is, of course, that newcomers wait for the older residents to invite them first. But the informality of the present day makes the question of friendliness the only one of importance. If you feel that these people all mean to be friendly but are just not in the habit of giving parties then I think you would be quite safe to invite them. On the other hand, if they are in the habit of giving parties but have failed to include you, then you as newcomers should not make the first move.

Becomes Bride in Greek Orthodox Ceremony

Miss Melani Ayiotou, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Rallis, 37 Franklin street, became the bride of Charles Chambou, 666 Broadway, at 5 p. m. on Sunday, July 27, at the Church of the Holy Cross, this city. The pastor of the Greek Orthodox Church in Newburgh officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Attired in a traditional satin wedding gown and two veils, the bride was escorted by her uncle, Mr. Rallis. She carried a bouquet of roses. The honor attendants were the Misses Joanna Econonm of Poughkeepsie and Aphrodite Finales of Brooklyn. Atthenunnoulla Christou was flower girl.

The two best men were Anastasis Marroudis and George Demos.

A reception was held at the Cypress Inn.

The couple will reside at 666 Broadway upon their return from a trip to Canada.

Goldman Estate Is To Be Auctioned

The country estate of Dr. Edwin Franko Goldman, dean of bandmasters, is to be auctioned at Mt. Tremper, Saturday, Aug. 16, according to Fred Berger, New York auctioneer, who said the sale is to start at 3 p. m.

The estate, Maidstone, is situated on both sides of Route 28 at Mt. Tremper with frontage on Esopus creek, high in the Catskill mountains, and is considered one of the show places of the area.

Besides the main residence of stone, with 10 rooms, there is a music house with small auditorium, also other buildings including a library, studio and observatory.

Dr. Goldman is not only a world famous musician and conductor, but a composer of note, who wrote the popular march On the Mall.

Hurley Residents Gain at Hospital In Upstate City

Reports received last night from Binghamton indicate that the conditions of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lehtonen, Hurley residents, injured near that city Friday night in an automobile accident, is good.

According to Mrs. Lorin Smith, a neighbor and friend of the family, Lehtonen was allowed to sit up briefly yesterday. Lehtonen suffered a skull fracture. Mrs. Lehtonen, who sustained a badly wrenched ankle and a concussion, is still reported to be in shock from the crash, but is improving.

Their daughter, Adele, is with relatives in the Binghamton area.

The accident occurred about 11:15 o'clock Friday night on Route 17 when the car in which the Lehtonens were passengers, driven and owned by Clarence Wright, of Kingston, was struck in the rear by a vehicle driven by Thomas Barron, 24, of Binghamton, a police report said. Barron was apparently unhurt, according to a Broome county sheriff's office report.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright have returned to Kingston. They were not injured in the accident.

Worst Is Over for City As Water Is Restored

Binghamton, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Water was still precious in 24,000 homes here today, as this industrial city of 80,000 limped into its third straight day of drouth brought on by a pipeline rupture.

But the worst was over. Some water was supplied to most of the city yesterday, and the city's water superintendent, Grover E. Rickard, predicted full service would be restored today.

Hotels, ice plants, laundries and other business establishments closed after a water main broke early Monday were reopened yesterday. General Aniline Corp. recalled 300 workers it had laid off at its Ansco camera works.

One section on Binghamton's south side went dry yesterday for the first time when a 750,000-gallon reservoir was exhausted.

All residents were warned to boil their drinking water. Pumper trucks and water tankers from neighboring communities stood by to augment the city's fire fighting equipment.

Officials said the water main broke under an extra 20 pounds of pressure, added in an effort to improve service.

The Invisible Element

W. J. Sussin

The chances that our Universe was created accidentally are so remote as to defy mathematical calculation. That there is a creative intelligence is evident everywhere.

It is this same intelligence — which takes food and transforms it into vital living tissue, which controls every function, and makes you a normal healthy being.

This intelligence which created life is also the most important factor in health.

A bad fall, accident or emotional shock can cause a vertebra of the spine to press upon and thus interfere with the normal nerve supply of the body. The nervous system is the medium over which expression of this intelligence is carried in the form of measureable mental impulses from the brain to the entire body.

It has been scientifically established that a very high percentage of people unknowingly have nerve interference, existing for years without any association of pain.

Interference to normal nerve flow is the invisible element which is silently undermining your health.

Goldman Estate Is To Be Auctioned

The country estate of Dr. Edwin Franko Goldman, dean of bandmasters, is to be auctioned at Mt. Tremper, Saturday, Aug. 16, according to Fred Berger, New York auctioneer, who said the sale is to start at 3 p. m.

The estate, Maidstone, is situated on both sides of Route 28 at Mt. Tremper with frontage on Esopus creek, high in the Catskill mountains, and is considered one of the show places of the area.

Besides the main residence of stone, with 10 rooms, there is a music house with small auditorium, also other buildings including a library, studio and observatory.

Dr. Goldman is not only a world famous musician and conductor, but a composer of note, who wrote the popular march On the Mall.

The Invisible Element

W. J. Sussin

The chances that our Universe was created accidentally are so remote as to defy mathematical calculation. That there is a creative intelligence is evident everywhere.

It is this same intelligence — which takes food and transforms it into vital living tissue, which controls every function, and makes you a normal healthy being.

This intelligence which created life is also the most important factor in health.

A bad fall, accident or emotional shock can cause a vertebra of the spine to press upon and thus interfere with the normal nerve supply of the body. The nervous system is the medium over which expression of this intelligence is carried in the form of measureable mental impulses from the brain to the entire body.

It has been scientifically established that a very high percentage of people unknowingly have nerve interference, existing for years without any association of pain.

Interference to normal nerve flow is the invisible element which is silently undermining your health.

WILL PLAY IN DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

Spread across the above panel are the 14 youngsters who will represent the Kingston Athletic Association's Little League in the District 3 tournament now in progress at the 156th FA diamond. The Kingston team makes its tournament debut on Friday against the Poughkeepsie Nationals. The group on the extreme left is the outfield trio of George Uhl, George Norton and Hobart Armstrong, the Dodger slugger who has five homers to his credit. The second group shows the two catchers, Ray Reilly and Gene Nagele. The four top hurlers in the league are in the third panel, left to right, Danny Steltz, Yankees, of no-hit fame; Tommy Fisher, Charlie Boice and Glenn Newell. The five infielders are on the extreme right, in usual order, Robert Pratt, Paul Klonowski, Peter Esposito, Tom Van Etten and Tom Hallinan. (Freeman Photos)

Poughkeepsie Americans Beat Harlem Valley in LL Tournament Opener

Rally for 13-9 Win After Trailing by 9-1; Saugerties Powerhouse to Play Today

The batters had a field day as the Poughkeepsie Americans came from behind to trounce Harlem Valley, 13 to 9, in the District 3 Little League tournament opener before a large crowd yesterday at the 156 FA diamond.

But the emphasis will be on pitching in today's clash between Saugerties and Millerton at 5:45 p. m.

Yesterday's contestants pounded out 18 hits between them, mostly on sliced shots to right field, but the baseknocks are expected to be fewer and farther apart when the pitchers take over.

No-Hit Specialist

If the Saugerties master minds elect to lead with their ace, they will unveil Francis "Skippy" Kugelman, a strapping 155-pound, 12-year-old right hander, who has a no-hit, no-run game and a flock of one and two-hitters to his credit this season.

The Saugerties club also has good batting power and has been installed as a heavy favorite over the Dutchess swingers. A large delegation of rooters will accompany the upriver squad.

Poughkeepsie Rallies

Poughkeepsie trailed 9-1 when it came to bat in the bottom of the second, picked up six runs to slice the Harlem Valley margin to 9-7 and dominated the play the rest of the way.

While Bridge City relief pitchers were shutting out the Harlem Valley squad in the last four rounds, the Poughkeepsie team made it 9-8 in the third and went ahead to stay with four runs in the fourth.

Garry Davis, Harlem Valley third sacker, and Ed Mudrick, Poughkeepsie centerfielder and third baseman, each collected three hits. Johnson poled a single and triple for the winners.

Late in the game Harlem Valley brought on Paul Mulligan, a catcher who is probably the smallest receiver in Little League baseball.

Olympian Reversal

Helsinki, July 30 (AP)—An international jury, governing Olympic swimming and diving competition, today reversed the ruling made by judges yesterday which permitted Zoe Ann Jensen of Oakland, Calif., to have a second try on springboard dive after she complained the board had not worked properly. As a result, Mrs. Jensen was dropped to eighth place among women's springboard diving qualifiers instead of third. The finals will be held this afternoon.

Duck Season

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Federal hunting regulations for 1952-53 specify that in New York, Maine, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, scoter, eider and old-squaw ducks may be taken in open coastal waters only, beyond outer harbor lines, from Sept. 28 through Dec. 31. Secretary of the Interior Chapman announced yesterday that in areas other than those beyond outer harbor lines, such birds might be bagged during the open season established for other ducks.

The SCOREBoard

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Can lightning strike twice for Eddie Stanky? Will it be the Miracle of the Mound City in 1952 just as it was the Miracle of Coogan's Bluff in 1951.

Stanky is keeping discreetly quiet as his sizzling St. Louis Cardinals continue to apply pressure on the Dodgers and Giants in the National League race. But there is no doubt the scrappy little Redbird skipper is thinking if it happened once it can happen again.

Who will forget the '51 pennant race in which the Giants, sparked by Stanky, rose from a 13½ game deficit on Aug. 11 to nose out the Dodgers for the pennant in a playoff? With that in mind, it would be hazardous to discount the third place Cardinals because they trail the pace-setting Dodgers by eight and a half games with 57 more to go.

Especially when the Cards have won 39 and lost 20 since Memorial Day, have captured their last five in succession including four straight from Brooklyn and have sliced five games from the Dodgers' once awesome lead in as many days.

"To win we'd need a lot of help from the rest of the league because we're still 12 behind on the losing side," Stanky counselled.

But despite the terrific odds, the Redbirds battle on. They struggled through 13 innings last night before they finally downed the Braves in Boston, 6-5, to pick up a full game on the Dodgers and Giants.

Murry Dickson gained the honor of becoming the first Pittsburgh pitcher to defeat Brooklyn this season ending a 13-game Dodger winning streak over the Pirates with an eight-hit 7-1 triumph. Rookie Warren Hacker, with the help of veteran Dutch Leonard, gained his ninth triumph as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Giants, 4-2. Philadelphia's Phillies continued their blistering pace, sweeping a twi-night twin bill from Cincinnati, 6-1 and 4-3.

Mickey Mantle's grand slam home run with two out in the ninth inning gave the New York Yankees a thrilling 10-7 triumph over the Chicago White Sox and enabled them to retain their three-game first place margin over Cleveland. The Indians whipped Boston, 4-1, to drop the Red Sox 4½ games off the pace.

The St. Louis Browns won their sixth game in seven starts as Ned Garver and Earl Harrist pitched a 7-3 decision over Spec Shea and the Washington Senators. Philadelphia and Detroit split a doubleheader, the Tigers rallying to win the second game, 10-8, after Harry Byrd had hurled the Athletics to a 5-0 shutout victory in the opener.

Sturdy three-hit pitching by reliefer Al Brazle over the last nine innings helped the Cards to victory. The winning run came as a result of singles by Solly Hemus and Stan Musial, a sacrifice, a walk and Sibby Sisti's fumble of Del Rice's two-out grounder.

Home runs by Tommy Brown and Bill Serena, each with a man aboard, furnished all the Cubs runs off loser Max Lanier of the Giants. Homers also played a prominent part in Pittsburgh's win over Brooklyn. They were belted by Gus Bell (No. 14) and Joe Garagiola (No. 5). Billy Loes was the loser.

A seven-run ninth inning featured the Yankees' victory over the White Sox. Trailing 7-0, New York tallied three times in the seventh before the winning outburst. Hec Rodriguez' error with two out in the ninth opened the gates for the last six runs.

Early Wynn fanned a dozen batters as he registered his 12th Cleveland success. Luke Easter's 14th home run and Dale Mitchell's two-run single spelled defeat for Sid Hudson.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Those in the trade know that from the mouths of the bleacher wolves have come some of the most pungent, most terrifying barbs in sports history.

The sports literati, ensconced in their carefully-guarded ivory towers, will turn the deft phrase, the biting observation with grammatical purity and precision. But leave it to the bleacherite or the man in the low-priced seats to unleash the withering, soul-searing blast.

His is a strange genius, a diabolical gift to reach for the verbal stiletto extemporaneously and with utter disregard for the laws of grammar and syntax.

Like the three-dollar seat customer who consoled his buddy while leaving Yankee Stadium after Monday's heavyweight brawl between Rocky Marciano and Harry Matthews.

"Aw, don't let it get you down," said the one to the other, obviously a Matthews rooter. "Hurley can take it. He does everything else for Matthews. . . ."

The quip had an authentic ring. Everything Matthews had in the boxing game he owed to the sharp mind and quick tongue of one of boxing's all-time great managers. Hurley got as much mileage out of Matthews as any human being possibly could. Monday night, however, "The Athlete" was just out of his league.

● Dagmar Steals the Show:

As might be expected on a hot, stuffy night, the appropriately-clad beauties stole the show and created more excitement than the preliminaries. Dagmar, of TV and decollete fame, was much in evidence during the preliminary with a skin-tight dress and a sexy hairdo. If you will pardon the redundancy, Dagmar's decolletage appeared to be luxuriating in excessive air-conditioning. The boys whistled and whooped and Dagmar loved it. You can always set your clock for 15 minutes before any big time bout when Jake LaMotta, the Bronx Bull, and his lovely blonde wife, Vicki, make their customary trek around the stadium grounds. Vicki was in bright red Monday night. The Bull walked proudly behind her amid the boos he elicits without effort. The oncoming rain cancelled out the usual pre-fight introduction of celebrities. Heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott was given the biggest ovation of the night when he marched to his ringside seat. He must have seen a lot. He'll make Marciano look bad for a while in their September bout and then from out of nowhere the Brockton Blockbuster will lower the boom.

Bill Dixon won't believe this but, as we sat with Pete Keresman and the kid brother in one of those Route 4 restaurants on the approach to the George Washington bridge, we remarked flippantly: "Marciano will probably knock him out in a couple of rounds and we'll be home early." We crossed Broadway and the by-pass at 12:30 a. m. midnight. it's the gospel truth, Bill. so help me. Ernie Magnusson, former local boxing official and one of Kingston's most enthusiastic fans, was an observer in the football pressbox. The fleeting quality of fame. Sugar Ray Robinson, who had attracted 47,000 fans to Yankee Stadium for his bout with Joey Maxim, filed out of the press gate without creating even a mild stir. A renowned clothes horse, Sugar was attired in a natty white check sport coat and dark slacks. Very impressive indeed.

So the next heavyweight champion of the world was spawned in the house that Babe built. Marciano hurt Matthews as early as the final flurry of the first round. A one-two shook Matthews up and for a fleeting moment he didn't seem to know which way to turn to reach his corner. The flailing fists that heaped destruction on Joe Louis, Rex Layne, Lee Savold and now, Harry Matthews, appear too potent for the aging Walcott.

Marciano will become the next world's heavyweight champion when he meets Walcott in September. But who will deny that the Great Black Father of Camden was the most inspiring figure in all heavyweight history.

Legion Beats VFW, 9-5, for Third Victory in Four Fraternal Games

Trail Rotary Leaders By Only Half Game

With Bob Maines outlasting Joe Pino and Noel Bonacci, the American Legion defeated the VFW, 9 to 5, yesterday at the municipal stadium for its third win in four Fraternal Youth League starts.

The victory solidified the Legion's grip on second place and left the winners only a half game behind the unbeaten Rotary.

Maines checked the Vets with five hits and issued seven walks. He yielded two runs in the first inning and then three in the fifth after his mates had built up a 9-2 lead for him.

Bonacci started for the VFW and gave way to Joe Pino. After going ahead 4-2 in the third, the Legion broke the game apart with a five-run cluster in the fourth inning. Between them Bonacci and Pino fanned six and walked seven, while giving up five hits, the same number as Maines.

All ten hits in the contest were singles. Frank Turck of the VFW and Don Ferraro of the Legion collected two apiece.

Keystoner, Hillsota Westbury Winners

Westbury, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Keystoner and Hillsota won the two divisions of the Knight Dream pace for two year olds last night at Roosevelt Raceway. Because of the heavy entries in the Knight Dream, the Grand Circuit feature was divided into two fields with nine going in each dash.

Keystoner, a brown colt by Hal Dale-Leta Long, copped the $4,050 winner's share of the first division by pulling away in the last thirty yards and beating the favored Knox Hanover by two driving lengths in 2:09. Del Miller handled Keystoner, which returned $17.20, $5.80 and $3.90. Third place was Judge Pick.

Hillsota, a lightly regarded brown colt by Desota Hanover-Pearl H., was a surprise photofinish winner over Torrid in the second section. Iosola's Ensign, the 4-5 favorite, took third. Coming down the stretch Torrid, a 6-1 betting choice, had a slight lead, but in the final strides Hillsota copped it by a nose in 2:05. Hillsota, driven by Jimmy Wingfield, returned $34.70, $12.60 and $4.10.

SELECTING A BAIT CASTING REEL 7-30

CONTRARY TO THE BELIEF OF MANY NOVICE ANGLERS, THE BEST REEL IS NOT THE ONE THAT SPINS THE LONGEST TIME AFTER A VIGOROUS START. THE BEST REELS ARE EXTREMELY LIGHT WEIGHT THAT START EASILY AND SLOW UP QUICKLY, ONCE THE IMPELLING FORCE IS STOPPED. A HEAVY SPOOL AND GEARS OF CRANK ASSEMBLY AND LEVEL WIND CREATE A DRAG AT THE START OF A CAST BUT THE SPEED SOON OVERTAKES THE FLOWING LINE TO REVERSE IT ON THE SPOOL, CREATING THE "BACKLASH" AND A POOR CAST!

WILL PLAY IN DISTRICT TOURNAMENT

Spread across the above panel are the 14 youngsters who will represent the Kingston Athletic Association's Little League in the District 3 tournament now in progress at the 156th FA diamond. The Kingston team makes its tournament debut on Friday against the Poughkeepsie Nationals. The group on the extreme left is the outfield trio of George Uhl, George Norton and Hobart Armstrong, the Dodger slugger who has five homers to his credit. The second group shows the two catchers, Ray Reilly and Gene Nagele. The four top hurlers in the league are in the third panel, left to right, Danny Steltz, Yankees, of no-hit fame; Tommy Fisher, Charlie Boice and Glenn Newell. The five infielders are on the extreme right, in usual order, Robert Pratt, Paul Klonowski, Peter Esposito, Tom Van Etten and Tom Hallinan. (Freeman Photos)

Poughkeepsie Americans Beat Harlem Valley in LL Tournament Opener

Rally for 13-9 Win After Trailing by 9-1; Saugerties Powerhouse to Play Today

The batters had a field day as the Poughkeepsie Americans came from behind to trounce Harlem Valley, 13 to 9, in the District 3 Little League tournament opener before a large crowd yesterday at the 156 FA diamond.

But the emphasis will be on pitching in today's clash between Saugerties and Millerton at 5:45 p. m.

Yesterday's contestants pounded out 18 hits between them, mostly on sliced shots to right field, but the baseknocks are expected to be fewer and farther apart when the pitchers take over.

No-Hit Specialist

If the Saugerties master minds elect to lead with their ace, they will unveil Francis "Skippy" Kugelman, a strapping 155-pound, 12-year-old right hander, who has a no-hit, no-run game and a flock of one and two-hitters to his credit this season.

The Saugerties club also has good batting power and has been installed as a heavy favorite over the Dutchess swingers. A large delegation of rooters will accompany the upriver squad.

Poughkeepsie Rallies

Poughkeepsie trailed 9-1 when it came to bat in the bottom of the second, picked up six runs to slice the Harlem Valley margin to 9-7 and dominated the play the rest of the way.

While Bridge City relief pitchers were shutting out the Harlem Valley squad in the last four rounds, the Poughkeepsie team made it 9-8 in the third and went ahead to stay with four runs in the fourth.

Garry Davis, Harlem Valley third sacker, and Ed Mudrick, Poughkeepsie centerfielder and third baseman, each collected three hits. Johnson poled a single and triple for the winners.

Late in the game Harlem Valley brought on Paul Mulligan, a catcher who is probably the smallest receiver in Little League baseball.

Duck Season

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Federal hunting regulations for 1952-53 specify that in New York, Maine, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, scoter, eider and old-squaw ducks may be taken in open coastal waters only, beyond outer harbor lines, from Sept. 28 through Dec. 31. Secretary of the Interior Chapman announced yesterday that in areas other than those beyond outer harbor lines, such birds might be bagged during the open season established for other ducks.

Olympian Reversal

Helsinki, July 30 (AP)—An international jury, governing Olympic swimming and diving competition, today reversed the ruling made by judges yesterday which permitted Zoe Ann Jensen of Oakland, Calif., to have a second try on springboard dive after she complained the board had not worked properly. As a result, Mrs. Jensen was dropped to eighth place among women's springboard diving qualifiers instead of third. The finals will be held this afternoon.

The SCORE Board

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Can lightning strike twice for Eddie Stanky? Will it be the Miracle of the Mound City in 1952 just as it was the Miracle of Coogan's Bluff in 1951.

Stanky is keeping discreetly quiet as his sizzling St. Louis Cardinals continue to appiy pressure on the Dodgers and Giants in the National League race. But there is no doubt the scrappy little Redbird skipper is thinking if it happened once it can happen again.

Who will forget the '51 pennant race in which the Giants, sparked by Stanky, rose from a 13½ game deficit on Aug. 11 to nose out the Dodgers for the pennant in a playoff? With that in mind, it would be hazardous to discount the third place Cardinals because they trail the pace-setting Dodgers by eight and a half games with 57 more to go.

Especially when the Cards have won 39 and lost 20 since Memorial Day, have captured their last five in succession including four straight from Brooklyn and have sliced five games from the Dodgers' once awesome lead in as many days.

"To win we'd need a lot of help from the rest of the league because we're still 12 behind on the losing side," Stanky counselled.

But despite the terrific odds, the Redbirds battle on. They struggled through 13 innings last night before they finally downed the Braves in Boston, 6-5, to pick up a full game on the Dodgers and Giants.

Murry Dickson gained the honor of becoming the first Pittsburgh pitcher to defeat Brooklyn this season ending a 13-game Dodger winning streak over the Pirates with an eight-hit 7-1 triumph. Rookie Warren Hacker, with the help of veteran Dutch Leonard, gained his ninth triumph as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Giants, 4-2. Philadelphia's Phillies continued their blistering pace, sweeping a twi-night twin bill from Cincinnati, 6-1 and 4-3.

Mickey Mantle's grand slam home run with two out in the ninth inning gave the New York Yankees a thrilling 10-7 triumph over the Chicago White Sox and enabled them to retain their three-game first place margin over Cleveland. The Indians whipped Boston, 4-1, to drop the Red Sox 4½ games off the pace.

The St. Louis Browns won their sixth game in seven starts as Ned Garver and Earl Harrist pitched a 7-3 decision over Spec Shea and the Washington Senators. Philadelphia and Detroit split a doubleheader, the Tigers rallying to win the second game, 10-8, after Harry Byrd had hurled the Athletics to a 5-0 shutout victory in the opener.

Sturdy three-hit pitching by reliefer Al Brazle over the last nine innings helped the Cards to victory. The winning run came as a result of singles by Solly Hemus and Stan Musial, a sacrifice, a walk and Sibby Sisti's fumble of Del Rice's two-out grounder.

Home runs by Tommy Brown and Bill Serena, each with a man aboard, furnished all the Cubs runs off loser Max Lanier of the Giants. Homers also played a prominent part in Pittsburgh's win over Brooklyn. They were belted by Gus Bell (No. 14) and Joe Garagiola (No. 5). Billy Loes was the loser.

A seven-run ninth inning featured the Yankees' victory over the White Sox. Trailing 7-0, New York tallied three times in the seventh before the winning outburst. Hec Rodriguez' error with two out in the ninth opened the gates for the last six runs.

Early Wynn fanned a dozen batters as he registered his 12th Cleveland success. Luke Easter's 14th home run and Dale Mitchell's two-run single spelled defeat for Sid Hudson.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Those in the trade know that from the mouths of the bleacher wolves have come some of the most pungent, most terrifying barbs in sports history.

The sports literati, ensconced in their carefully-guarded ivory towers, will turn the deft phrase, the biting observation with grammatical purity and precision. But leave it to the bleacherite or the man in the low-priced seats to unleash the withering, soul-searing blast.

His is a strange genius, a diabolical gift to reach for the verbal stiletto extemporaneously and with utter disregard for the laws of grammar and syntax.

Like the three-dollar seat customer who consoled his buddy while leaving Yankee Stadium after Monday's heavyweight brawl between Rocky Marciano and Harry Matthews.

"Aw, don't let it get you down," said the one to the other, obviously a Matthews rooter. "Hurley can take it. He does everything else for Matthews. . . ."

The quip had an authentic ring. Everything Matthews had in the boxing game he owed to the sharp mind and quick tongue of one of boxing's all-time great managers. Hurley got as much mileage out of Matthews as any human being possibly could. Monday night, however, "The Athlete" was just out of his league.

● Dagmar Steals the Show:

As might be expected on a hot, stuffy night, the appropriately-clad beauties stole the show and created more excitement than the preliminaries. Dagmar, of TV and decollete fame, was much in evidence during the preliminary with a skin-tight dress and a sexy hairdo. If you will pardon the redundancy, Dagmar's decolletage appeared to be luxuriating in excessive air-conditioning. The boys whistled and whooped and Dagmar loved it. You can always set your clock for 15 minutes before any big time bout when Jake LaMotta, the Bronx Bull, and his lovely blonde wife, Vicki, make their customary trek around the stadium grounds. Vicki was in bright red Monday night. The Bull walked proudly behind her amid the boos he elicits without effort. The oncoming rain cancelled out the usual pre-fight introduction of celebrities. Heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott was given the biggest ovation of the night when he marched to his ringside seat. He must have seen a lot. He'll make Marciano look bad for a while in their September bout and then from out of nowhere the Brockton Blockbuster will lower the boom.

Bill Dixon won't believe this but, as we sat with Pete Keresman and the kid brother in one of those Route 4 restaurants on the approach to the George Washington bridge, we remarked flippantly: "Marciano will probably knock him out in a couple of rounds and we'll be home early." We crossed Broadway and the by-pass at 12:30 a. m. midnight. it's the gospel truth, Bill, so help me. Ernie Magnusson, former local boxing official and one of Kingston's most enthusiastic fans, was an observer in the football pressbox. The fleeting quality of fame, Sugar Ray Robinson, who had attracted 47,000 fans to Yankee Stadium for his bout with Joey Maxim, filed out of the press gate without creating even a mild stir. A renowned clothes horse, Sugar was attired in a natty white check sport coat and dark slacks. Very impressive indeed.

So the next heavyweight champion of the world was spawned in the house that Babe built. Marciano hurt Matthews as early as the final flurry of the first round. A one-two shook Matthews up and for a fleeting moment he didn't seem to know which way to turn to reach his corner. The flailing fists that heaped destruction on Joe Louis, Rex Layne, Lee Savold and now, Harry Matthews, appear too potent for the aging Walcott.

Marciano will become the next world's heavyweight champion when he meets Walcott in September. But who will deny that the Great Black Father of Camden was the most inspiring figure in all heavyweight history.

Legion Beats VFW, 9-5, for Third Victory in Four Fraternal Games

Trail Rotary Leaders By Only Half Game

With Bob Maines outlasting Joe Pino and Noel Bonacci, the American Legion defeated the VFW, 9 to 5, yesterday at the municipal stadium for its third win in four Fraternal Youth League starts.

The victory solidified the Legion's grip on second place and left the winners only a half game behind the unbeaten Rotary.

Maines checked the Vets with five hits and issued seven walks. He yielded two runs in the first inning and then three in the fifth after his mates had built up a 9-2 lead for him.

Bonacci started for the VFW and gave way to Joe Pino. After going ahead 4-2 in the third, the Legion broke the game apart with a five-run cluster in the fourth inning. Between them Bonacci and Pino fanned six and walked seven, while giving up five hits, the same number as Maines.

All ten hits in the contest were singles. Frank Turck of the VFW and Don Ferraro of the Legion collected two apiece.

Keystoner, Hillsota Westbury Winners

Westbury, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Keystoner and Hillsota won the two divisions of the Knight Dream pace for two year olds last night at Roosevelt Raceway. Because of the heavy entries in the Knight Dream, the Grand Circuit feature was divided into two fields with nine going in each dash.

Keystoner, a brown colt by Hal Dale-Leta Long, copped the $4,050 winner's share of the first division by pulling away in the last thirty yards and beating the favored Knox Hanover by two driving lengths in 2:09. Del Miller handled Keystoner, which returned $17.20, $5.80 and $3.90. Third place was Judge Pick.

Hillsota, a lightly regarded brown colt by Desota Hanover-Pearl H., was a surprise photofinish winner over Torrid in the second section. Iosola's Ensign, the 4-5 favorite, took third. Coming down the stretch Torrid, a 6-1 betting choice, had a slight lead, but in the final strides Hillsota copped it by a nose in 2:05. Hillsota, driven by Jimmy Wingfield, returned $34.70, $12.60 and $4.10.

SPOOL
CONTRARY TO THE BELIEF OF MANY NOVICE ANGLERS, THE BEST REEL IS NOT THE ONE THAT SPINS THE LONGEST TIME AFTER A VIGOROUS START. THE BEST REELS ARE EXTREMELY LIGHT WEIGHT THAT START EASILY AND SLOW UP QUICKLY, ONCE THE IMPELLING FORCE IS STOPPED. A HEAVY SPOOL AND GEARS OF CRANK ASSEMBLY AND LEVEL WIND CREATE A DRAG AT THE START OF A CAST BUT THE SPEED SOON OVERTAKES THE FLOWING LINE TO REVERSE IT ON THE SPOOL, CREATING THE "BACKLASH" (A) AND A POOR CAST!

U. S. Women Smash 400 Relay Record in Olympic Swim Trials

Tam O'Shanter Golf Trials Under Way

Chicago, July 30 (AP)—Nearly 200 of the country's lesser known pros take up the qualifying scent today for a chance to compete in golf's most fantastic money scramble, the $120,000 Tam O'Shanter tournament series.

The game's sugar daddy, George S. May, is holding an 18 hole trial for the lesser-lights to round out a 110-player field for the first phase of his jamboree, the All-American tournament starting tomorrow. This meet carries a total purse distribution of $30,000.

Next week May will present his main course, the $90,000 "world championship of golf," with handpicked fields that will include all of golf's top-drawer performers, men and women.

Top finishers in his All-American will be invited to the "world" meet.

Alfred C. Glassell, Jr., of Houston, Texas, is the captain of the U. S. team which will compete in the 9th International Tuna Cup Match at Wedgeport, Nova Scotia.

The newest player representative in the American League is Ted Gray, recently named by the Tigers to succeed Fred Hutchinson who became their manager.

Olympic Champs In Minor Events

Helsinki, July 30 (AP)—Olympict champions crowned Tuesday:

Swimming

Men's 800-meter relay—United States (Wayne Moore, Bill Wollsey, Ford Konno, Jim McLane) 8:31.1 (new Olympic record; old record 8:42.1 set Monday in preliminaries by Japan).

Women's 200-meter breaststroke—Eva Szekely, Hungary, 2:51.7 (new Olympic record; old record 2:54 by Eva Novak, Hungary, and tied by Miss Szekely in trials).

Cycling

4,000-Meter pursuit race — Italy, 4:46.1.

Dressage

Individual—Henri St. Cyr, Sweden, 556.5 points.

Team — Sweden, 1592.5 points.

Shooting

Small bore rifle (aggregate) —E. Kongshaug, Norway, 1164.

Small bore prone—I. Sarbu, Romania, 400.

Running deer—John Larsen, Norway, 413.

Twenty-seven varsity and 14 freshman awards were given to particpants in Spring sports at the University of Wyoming.

Male Contingent Also Qualifies

Helsinki, July 30 (AP)—Continuing the record-a-day (or better) pace of the 1952 Olympic swimming competition, the United States women's 400 meter relay team shattered the Olympic record in winning its trial heat today.

The American quartet of Evelyn Kawamoto of Hawaii and Jacqueline Lavine, Marilee Stepan and Joan Alderson, all of Chicago, was timed in 4:28.1 in beating Holland in its heat. This broke the Olympic mark of 4:29.2 set by another American team in the 1948 Olympics at London and was more than four seconds faster than Hungary's time in winning the other qualifying heat.

Eight teams qualified for the final Friday.

Three United States men swimmers had little trouble qualifying for the second round of the men's 100 meter backstroke and, in rather unexpected performances, the American water polo team won its first game of the semi-final round competition. American fencers marked up a decisive victory in a semi-final competition in the team sabre event.

Argentina's basketball team, regarded as the most serious threat to the U. S., suffered its first defeat of the tournament.

Yoshinoba Oyakawa of Honolulu and Ohio State University turned in the best time in the men's backstroke swim, one minute and six seconds. Jack Taylor of Akron, O., another Ohio State swimmer, also won his heat but Allen Stack of Hingham, Mass., and Yale, finished second. Stack had to swim with a bandaged hand, the result of a fall from a motor scooter in the Olympic village last night.

America's hopes in the women's springboard diving competition received a setback when an international jury over-ruled the judges who granted Mrs. Zoe Ann Olsen Jensen a second chance to perform one dive after she had complained the mechanism controlling the board had not functioned properly.

Sweden, Japan and France all had protested and the governing jury ruled that Mrs. Jensen's score on the first attempt would have to stand. That reduced her total by nine points and put her in eighth place among the qualifiers for this afternoon's free diving competition.

Mrs. Patricia McCormick of Long Beach, Calif., leads the divers.

Argentines Upset

Uruguay, the team that almost knocked itself out of the tournament two days ago when some of its players attacked Referee Vincent Farrell of Newark, N. J., turned in the biggest upset of the basketball tournament by beating Argentina, 66-65, in an overtime game. Bulgaria also produced an upset by whipping France, 67-58.

The American water polo team from El Segundo, Calif., which reached the semi-final eight-team bracket with difficulty, surprised Belgium, 4 to 2. The sabre fencers handed Poland a 10 to 6 setback.

The United States so far has won all three of the men's swimming and diving events. But today's 400-meter field, like those assembled in last week's track and field carnival, will rank as one of the best in history.

Carrying the American colors will be Jim McLane, winner of the 1,500 meter free style in 1948 and second in this race, Wayne Moore and Ford Konno. These three, with Bill Woolsey, won the 800 meter relay in record time yesterday.

McLane, Moore and Konno face tremendous opposition from Jean Boiteux, a 19-year-old French student, who broke the 400 meter record in the semi finals yesterday, and Per-Olof Ostrand of Sweden, who snapped the record the day before in the heats. The other qualifiers are John Wardrop of Great Britain, South Africa's Peter Duncan and Japan's Hironoshin Furuhashi.

This year will mark the 16th season in professional football for Sammy Baugh. All have been with the Redskins.

Walt Dropo of the Detroit Tigers is the tallest first baseman in the American League. He is six feet five inches tall.

Ron Mauro's Bunt Gets Shelightner Across Plate

Fisher and Digastino In Pitching Duel

If all City Baseball League pairings were like Jones Dairy vs. Wiltwyck Motors, Kingston fans wouldn't have to make those long bus treks to the big city to watch such ordinary teams as the Giants, Yankees and Dodgers.

For the second time running, the twi league stalwarts reeled off a nine-inning contest yesterday. And for the second time the Dairymen came out in front, 2 to 1, thanks to an unearned run, in the third game of the second round.

The brilliant pitching duel between Tommy Fisher of Jones Dairy and Joe Digastino of Wiltwycks ended with one out in the bottom of the ninth when Ronnie Mauro squeezed Bob Shelightner home with the winning run.

Fisher Wins

Fisher allowed only five hits and struck out seven, while J. Digastino was equally effective yielding only seven; three to the suddenly resurgent Tommy Carlino.

Carlino took batting honors with a trio of singles and knocked in one of the Jones runs. John Minadeo and J. Passante each had a pair of singles for the Motormen.

A beautiful pitcher's battle between Fisher and Digastino developed after each club scored a single marker in the first. There was no further scoring but Wiltwycks had more opportunities.

John Minadeo's single launched the game but he was erased on a force play and Bud Finn carted over the lone Wiltwyck tally. The Motormen had a man on base in each inning except the ninth but he never strayed beyond first until Minadeo swiped second in the seventh.

The Squeeze Play

Johnny Schatzel's walk and stolen base set up the first Jones marker on Carlino's single. Nothing serious happened until the ninth when Bob Shelightner stroked a single. Fisher bunted and when Digastino tossed the ball into centerfield trying to force Shelightner at second the Jones catcher scurried to third. Schatzel was tossed out by the catcher, Shelightner holding, but the squeeze worked with Mauro at the plate and the thrilling contest was over.

With clubs putting on occasional runners, it was evident after the first inning that one run would do it. The fielding was superb on both sides, with Wiltwyck's Eddie Passante outstanding at second base.

Dutch Comedy Is Playhouse Feature

Woodstock, July 30 — This week's attraction at the Woodstock Playhouse is Papa Is All, a rollicking comedy about a Pennsylvania Dutch family.

The cozy Mennonite farm kitchen should have been a happy home for Papa, Mama, Jake and Emma. But with Papa around it isn't—he 'don't uphold" with machines and mechanical things around which Jake's life revolves, or Emma's desire for her young "surweyer" suitor, or with Mama's one concern—the happiness of her children. Keeping their assorted hopes, pleasures and dreams from the prying eyes of the lumbering, snarling household pest they called Papa, provide an abundance of uproarious as well as suspensive moments. Papa is frankly a demon.

In conspiracy with Mama and Jake, Emma manages an evening out of the imprisoning walls of the farmhouse, to the pictures in Lancaster with her beau. Emma's world of joy crashes next day, however, when Papa is tipped off unwittingly by neighbor Mrs. Yoder who should have kept her mind on her sewing — "What a tidy pattern, ain't not? I can't push it out in front maybe, or behind still, or maybe it should be dangling."

Between Jake and the evening express train Papa gets disposed of, but an uneasy if joyous peace settles on the home.

Bess Winburn is utterly lovable as Mama, torn between loyalty to Papa's principles and her children. Arthur Storch plays Jake with heartrending sincerity, trapped for a time, but in his own way equally as spirited as his more forthright sister Emma. Jane Lloyd-Jones as Emma with stars in her eyes and a whip at her back, is completely vibrant and convincing, alternating between rapture and despair.

Nor more loathsome creature than Papa has ever tread the Playhouse stage, his dread, plodding footsteps a prelude of doom for his family. Franklyn Fox expands Papa into a wrathful mad despot in the waterless, telephoneless, joyless home, resounding to commands of 'Out'n the lamp!"

Upsetting as she is to the family fabrications under Papa's nose, Molly Lyman as Mrs. Yoder took off into song in one of the most hilarious scenes in the play. To keep Mrs. Yoder from talking, Mama makes her sing, an accomplishment which is unnerving even to Papa. The steadying hand of the law is ably introduced by Thom Carney as State Trooper Brendle.

Ethiopians Drink Gasoline

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia (AP) — Ethiopians drink gasoline to the point that the Ministry of Public Health is really alarmed. "Gasoline is poison and inflammable and should never be drunk in place of medicine," the Ministry declared. The warning branded those who "persuade others to drink gasoline and those who allow themselves to be so persuaded" as criminals. The desire for gasoline as a potion is due to the widespread Ethiopian custom of eating raw meat. This, in turn, has caused the people to be widely affected with parasitic stomach worms. The Health Ministry recommends a substitute made from berries for gasoline addicts.

Ship's Mast Shortened

Long Beach, Calif. (AP) — When the big Japanese tanker, Tonan Maru, first visited this port on her maiden voyage she carried a tall, 173-foot mast left over from her whaling days. Later when the tanker put into San Francisco Bay, riding high without ballast, she struck the Carquinez Bridge with the mast, scaring motorists. When the Tonan Maru visited the Pacific Coast again recently the old whaling mast was 20 feet shorter.

In using balloons to lift weight, it takes about 14 cubic feet of helium to lift one pound.

Romance certainly has a lot to overcome these days, the way they keep associating love with bad breath and other odors in the commercials. Our forebears had none of the modern remedies and maybe it's a wonder they ever got married. © NEA

U. S. Women Smash 400 Relay Record in Olympic Swim Trials

Tam O'Shanter Golf Trials Under Way

Chicago, July 30 (AP)—Nearly 200 of the country's lesser known pros take up the qualifying scent today for a chance to compete in golf's most fantastic money scramble, the $120,000 Tam O'Shanter tournament series.

The game's sugar daddy, George S. May, is holding an 18 hole trial for the lesser-lights to round out a 110-player field for the first phase of his jamboree, the All-American tournament starting tomorrow. This meet carries a total purse distribution of $30,000.

Next week May will present his main course, the $90,000 "world championship of golf," with hand-picked fields that will include all of golf's top-drawer performers, men and women.

Top finishers in his All-American will be invited to the "world" meet.

Alfred C. Glassell, Jr., of Houston, Texas, is the captain of the U. S. team which will compete in the 9th International Tuna Cup Match at Wedgeport, Nova Sco-

The newest player representative in the American League is Ted Gray, recently named by the Tigers to succeed Fred Hutchinson who became their manager.

Olympic Champs In Minor Events

Helsinki, July 30 (AP)—Olympict champions crowned Tuesday:

Swimming

Men's 800-meter relay—United States (Wayne Moore, Bill Wollsey, Ford Konno, Jim McLane) 8:31.1 (new Olympic record; old record 8:42.1 set Monday in preliminaries by Japan).

Women's 200-meter breaststroke—Eva Szekely, Hungary, 2:51.7 (new Olympic record; old record 2:54 by Eva Novak, Hungary, and tied by Miss Szekely in trials).

Cycling

4,000-Meter pursuit race — Italy, 4:46.1.

Dressage

Individual—Henri St. Cyr, Sweden, 556.5 points.

Team — Sweden, 1592.5 points.

Shooting

Small bore rifle (aggregate) —E. Kongshaug, Norway, 1164.

Small bore prone—I. Sarbu, Romania, 400.

Running deer—John Larsen, Norway, 413.

Male Contingent Also Qualifies

Helsinki, July 30 (AP)—Continuing the record-a-day (or better) pace of the 1952 Olympic swimming competition, the United States women's 400 meter relay team shattered the Olympic record in winning its trial heat today.

The American quartet of Evelyn Kawamoto of Hawaii and Jacqueline Lavine, Marilee Stepan and Joan Alderson, all of Chicago, was timed in 4:28.1 in beating Holland in its heat. This broke the Olympic mark of 4:29.2 set by another American team in the 1948 Olympics at London and was more than four seconds faster than Hungary's time in winning the other qualifying heat.

Eight teams qualified for the final Friday.

Three United States men swimmers had little trouble qualifying for the second round of the men's 100 meter backstroke and, in rather unexpected performances, the American water polo team won its first game of the semi-final round competition. American fencers marked up a decisive victory in a semi-final competition in the team sabre event.

Argentina's basketball team, regarded as the most serious threat to the U. S., suffered its first defeat of the tournament.

Yoshinoba Oyakawa of Honolulu and Ohio State University turned in the best time in the men's backstroke swim, one minute and six seconds. Jack Taylor of Akron, O., another Ohio State swimmer, also won his heat but Allen Stack of Hingham, Mass., and Yale, finished second. Stack had to swim with a bandaged hand, the result of a fall from a motor scooter in the Olympic village last night.

America's hopes in the women's springboard diving competition received a setback when an international jury over-ruled the judges who granted Mrs. Zoe Ann Olsen Jensen a second chance to perform one dive after she had complained the mechanism controlling the board had not functioned properly.

Sweden, Japan and France all had protested and the governing jury ruled that Mrs. Jensen's score on the first attempt would have to stand. That reduced her total by nine points and put her in eighth place among the qualifiers for this afternoon's free diving competition.

Mrs. Patricia McCormick of Long Beach, Calif., leads the divers.

Argentines Upset

Uruguay, the team that almost knocked itself out of the tournament two days ago when some of its players attacked Referee Vincent Farrell of Newark, N. J., turned in the biggest upset of the basketball tournament by beating Argentina, 66-65, in an overtime game. Bulgaria also produced an upset by whipping France, 67-58.

The American water polo team from El Segundo, Calif., which reached the semi-final eight-team bracket with difficulty, surprised Belgium, 4 to 2. The sabre fencers handed Poland a 10 to 6 setback.

The United States so far has won all three of the men's swimming and diving events. But today's 400-meter field, like those assembled in last week's track and field carnival, will rank as one of the best in history.

Carrying the American colors will be Jim McLane, winner of the 1,500 meter free style in 1948 and second in this race, Wayne Moore and Ford Konno. These three, with Bill Woolsey, won the 800 meter relay in record time yesterday.

McLane, Moore and Konno face tremendous opposition from Jean Boiteux, a 19-year-old French student, who broke the 400 meter record in the semi finals yesterday, and Per-Olof Ostrand of Sweden, who snapped the record the day before in the heats. The other qualifiers are John Wardrop of Great Britain, South Africa's Peter Duncan and Japan's Hironoshin Furuhashi.

This year will mark the 16th season in professional football for Sammy Baugh. All have been with the Redskins.

Walt Dropo of the Detroit Tigers is the tallest first baseman in the American League. He is six feet five inches tall.

Ron Mauro's Bunt Gets Shelightner Across Plate

Fisher and Digastino In Pitching Duel

If all City Baseball League pairings were like Jones Dairy vs. Wiltwyck Motors, Kingston fans wouldn't have to make those long bus treks to the big city to watch such ordinary teams as the Giants, Yankees and Dodgers.

For the second time running, the twi league stalwarts reeled off a nine-inning contest yesterday. And for the second time the Dairymen came out in front, 2 to 1, thanks to an unearned run, in the third game of the second round.

The brilliant pitching duel between Tommy Fisher of Jones Dairy and Joe Digastino of Wiltwycks ended with one out in the bottom of the ninth when Ronnie Mauro squeezed Bob Shelightner home with the winning run.

Fisher Wins

Fisher allowed only five hits and struck out seven, while J. Digastino was equally effective yielding only seven; three to the suddenly resurgent Tommy Carlino.

Carlino took batting honors with a trio of singles and knocked in one of the Jones runs. John Minadeo and J. Passante each had a pair of singles for the Motormen.

A beautiful pitcher's battle between Fisher and Digastino developed after each club scored a single marker in the first. There was no further scoring but Wiltwycks had more opportunities.

John Minadeo's single launched the game but he was erased on a force play and Bud Finn carted over the lone Wiltwyck tally. The Motormen had a man on base in each inning except the ninth but he never strayed beyond first until Minadeo swiped second in the seventh.

The Squeeze Play

Johnny Schatzel's walk and stolen base set up the first Jones marker on Carlino's single. Nothing serious happened until the ninth when Bob Shelightner stroked a single. Fisher bunted and when Digastino tossed the ball into centerfield trying to force Shelightner at second the Jones catcher scurried to third. Schatzel was tossed out by the catcher, Shelightner holding, but the squeeze worked with Mauro at the plate and the thrilling contest was over.

With clubs putting on occasional runners, it was evident after the first inning that one run would do it. The fielding was superb on both sides, with Wiltwyck's Eddie Passante outstanding at second base.

Dutch Comedy Is Playhouse Feature

The cozy Mennonite farm kitchen should have been a happy home for Papa, Mama, Jake and Emma. But with Papa around it isn't—he 'don't uphold" with machines and mechanical things around which Jake's life revolves, or Emma's desire for her young "surweyer" suitor, or with Mama's one concern—the happiness of her children. Keeping their assorted hopes, pleasures and dreams from the prying eyes of the lumbering, snarling household pest they called Papa, provide an abundance of uproarious as well as suspensive moments. Papa is frankly a demon.

In conspiracy with Mama and Jake, Emma manages an evening out of the imprisoning walls of the farmhouse, to the pictures in Lancaster with her beau. Emma's world of joy crashes next day, however, when Papa is tipped off unwittingly by neighbor Mrs. Yoder who should have kept her mind on her sewing — "What a tidy pattern, ain't not? I can't push it out in front maybe, or behind still, or maybe it should be dangling."

Between Jake and the evening express train Papa gets disposed of, but an uneasy if joyous peace settles on the home.

Bess Winburn is utterly lovable as Mama, torn between loyalty to Papa's principles and her children. Arthur Storch plays Jake with heartrending sincerity, trapped for a time, but in his own way equally as spirited as his more forthright sister Emma. Jane Lloyd-Jones as Emma with stars in her eyes and a whip at her back, is completely vibrant and convincing, alternating between rapture and despair.

Nor more loathsome creature than Papa has ever tread the Playhouse stage, his dread, plodding footsteps a prelude of doom for his family. Franklyn Fox expands Papa into a wrathful mad despot in the waterless, telephoneless, joyless home, resounding to commands of 'Out'n the lamp!"

Upsetting as she is to the family fabrications under Papa's nose, Molly Lyman as Mrs. Yoder took off into song in one of the most hilarious scenes in the play. To keep Mrs. Yoder from talking, Mama makes her sing, an accomplishment which is unnerving even to Papa. The steadying hand of the law is ably introduced by Thom Carney as State Trooper Brendle.

Ethiopians Drink Gasoline

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia (AP) — Ethiopians drink gasoline to the point that the Ministry of Public Health is really alarmed. "Gasoline is poison and inflammable and should never be drunk in place of medicine," the Ministry declared. The warning branded those who "persuade others to drink gasoline and those who allow themselves to be so persuaded" as criminals. The desire for gasoline as a potion is due to the widespread Ethiopian custom of eating raw meat. This, in turn, has caused the people to be widely affected with parasitic stomach worms. The Health Ministry recommends a substitute made from berries for gasoline addicts.

Ship's Mast Shortened

Long Beach, Calif. (AP) — When the big Japanese tanker, Tonan Maru, first visited this port on her maiden voyage she carried a tall, 173-foot mast left over from her whaling days. Later when the tanker put into San Francisco Bay, riding high without ballast, she struck the Carquinez Bridge with the mast, scaring motorists. When the Tonan Maru visited the Pacific Coast again recently the old whaling mast was 20 feet shorter.

In using balloons to lift weight, it takes about 14 cubic feet of helium to lift one pound.

Romance certainly has a lot to overcome these days, the way they keep associating love with bad breath and other odors in the commercials. Our forebears had none of the modern remedies and maybe it's a wonder they ever got married. © NEA

Says He's Tired Of India's Criticism

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Sen. Green (D.-R.I.) said today he is tired of India's criticism of the American rearmament program and bluntly suggested that country practice what it preaches.

Green told a reporter the United States is spending billions to rearm itself and free nations against Communist aggression but India has built up an armed force to defend Kashmir "in a territorial dispute with Pakistan."

"We are far more unselfish than India in spending large sums and men for an ideal of peace in the world," Green said. "India is keeping forces in Kashmir to promote a selfish interest."

His blast was directed at B. R. Sen, Indian ambassador to Washington, and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, both of whom have been sharply critical of the U. S. program.

Green said Nehru does not practice what he preaches.

"On the one hand," he said, "Nehru speaks out as a pacifist. Yet on the other hand he arms his own troops and has them defending the princely state of Kashmir in a territorial dispute with Pakistan.

"Before Nehru and Sen talk the way they do, they should disarm and send back to civil life the armed forces they have in Kashmir".

Green said the Indians "must have mistaken U. S. objectives, which are to resist aggression and work for a lasting peace. You can't resist without arms, and that is why we are rearming—to promote peace. Surely they should understand that."

the record of accomplishments in weapons development," the AEC said, "it may be stated that substantial progress was made * * *.

"A large part of the total national effort in the atomic energy field continued to be directed to the military aspects of atomic energy.

"Production of atomic weapons proceeded steadily. Research in a variety of subjects continued to yield new developments applicable to weapons; work continued on the application of these improvements to the design of specific weapon models to meet the various needs of the armed forces. Construction of several new facilities for weapons work progressed satisfactorily."

The report said atomic tests of the type held in Nevada are essential "both to improve weapon design and performance, and to increase knowledge of the effects of atomic explosions."

In a second reference to hush-hush phases of the weapons work, the AEC declared:

"It is not possible to describe publicly the advances made in the atomic weapons program, but details of the work are enumerated currently in classified (secret) reports to the joint committee on atomic energy of the Congress."

Conspicuous by its absence was any reference to progress on the projected hydrogen bomb.

The AEC said that while all its existing atomic plants are maintaining production schedules, the building of new facilities was accelerated, so that by mid-year "almost three per cent of the nation's labor construction labor force was at work on atomic energy construction projects."

Released by Reds

Kassel, Germany, July 30 (AP)—A West German farmer, his wife and two cows were released by Soviet zone police today after four days' arrest for "violating the frontier." They were seized when they went to a field near the East-West border to fetch a load of rye.

Della Says New Yorkers Ones Who Needed Loyalty Pledge

Baltimore, July 30 (AP) — The New York Democratic delegation is the one which really needed the loyalty pledge it helped force through the national convention, State Senator George W. Della of Maryland said today.

"I feel that with the exception of James Farley the entire New York delegation is one of insincerity and is not fit to carry the name or label of the Democratic party," Della stated.

His views were contained in a letter to Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., of New York.

Della said he was provoked by announcement by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., that he and other New York Negroes could not campaign for the Democratic ticket because Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama is the vice presidential candidate.

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman of New York also said that if Sparkman doesn't embrace without reservation the Democratic plank on civil rights "there is no question but that it will weaken the ticket in New York.

This prompted Della, president of the Maryland Senate and a delegate to the convention, to write:

"It looks like the New Yorkers were the ones who ought to have been forced to take the loyalty pledge."

The pledge to support actions of the convention sparked one of the biggest wrangles of the Democratic session in Chicago last week. It was aimed at the southern states. Roosevelt was one of its leading spokesmen and draftsmen.

Maryland succeeded in upsetting the pledge applecart. After Virginia was ruled out of the convention for not signing the pledge, Maryland succeeded in moving to have its neighbors seated anyway.

Licenses Can Be Renewed Aug. 1

The Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau Office, Main street, will begin issuing renewals for operator licenses on Friday, August 1, Deputy County Clerk George M. Smith in charge of the local office stated today. Application blanks are now available.

A new validation system will be used on all renewals throughout the state to prevent fraudulent issuance of operator licenses. The system is that which was put into effect in the metropolitan areas last May in issuance of chauffeur licenses. Due to non-arrival of the new stamps, chauffeur licenses issued early this year were not stamped with the new stamp in Ulster county. The new stamp is now being used locally for chauffeur and operator renewals.

This new system, designed to prevent license forgeries, involves the installation of new hand-engraved plates in stamping machines in all issuing offices of the Motor Vehicle Bureau, including county clerk's offices.

New type validations employ two new safeguards: the embossing of code letters on the license and inclusion of the state seal. Forging the state seal is a felony.

The system was employed for the first time on chauffeur license renewals last May.

Commissioner James R. Macduff urges all operators to examine the expiration date on licenses.

"If your license expires next September 30, you should send your renewal application at the earliest possible time to the issuing office in the county where you reside," he urged. "Be sure to include the renewal stub from your old license."

Mr. Macduff said this would be the heaviest renewal rush in history and warned against delaying "until the last minute."

He pointed out that affected drivers would be subject to arrest after midnight, September 30, if they have not renewed.

Old Fight Causes Death of Girl

New York, July 30 (AP)—A family quarrel that started years before they were born has brought violent death to an eight-year-old girl and serious stab wounds to her 12-year-old sister.

The girls were the victims of an enraged unemployed seaman, their uncle, Manuel Vigo, 40, who killed himself with the knife as police closed in.

Police said Vigo walked into his brother-in-law's grocery store in the Bronx last night and—without a word of warning—turned on eight-year-old Matroidad Torres and her sister, Algandrina, 12.

Screams of the girls brought police and their father, Candido Torres, who was in another part of the store. Police chased the sailor and caught him a few blocks away, bleeding and near collapse from a self-inflicted knife wound.

Torres told police that he and Vigo had quarrelled intermittently for 15 years and that the argument came to a head since Thursday. Vigo then returned from a voyage, and since had been fighting with his wife, Maria, who is the sister of Torres' wife, police said.

Two to Join Ike

into a run-off with Chancery Judge Francis Cherry Aug. 12.

Another Democratic primary in Louisiana saw the renomination, equivalent to election, of four Democratic U. S. Representatives —Herbert, Boggs, Brooks and Passman. Rep. Willis, seeking a third term, was engaged in a nip-and-tuck struggle with former State Senator Dudley J. Leblanc. Rep. Morrison was unopposed for renomination to his seat.

Would Try Thames

New York, July 30 (AP)—Bernarr MacFadden, who celebrated his 83rd birthday with a parachute jump into the Hudson river last year, wants to try the Thames at London to mark his next birthday Aug. 16. The physical culturist said yesterday he had cabled to England for permission. MacFadden says he wants to prove "that old age is just a fantasy."

Air Force Denies

Blamed on Illusions

Other "saucers" are blamed on optical illusions, northern lights, weather balloons, and reflection of lights—even automobile lights.

But every effort is being made to identify the mysterious one-fifth. One new step being planned is use of a newly-developed telescopic camera which can photograph a 150-degree area of sky on one plate.

Other specialized, highly sensitive cameras also will be used.

The air force experts said yesterday that some of the reports of flying saucers admittedly have stemmed from the firing of rockets, guided missiles and other defense research work—but not in the Washington area. None of this work is being done near the capital, Samford said.

Picked By Radar

Some of the unidentified objects show up distinctly on radar sets. Early Tuesday, for example, the civil aeronautics administration at Washington national airport reported strange "blips" on its radar screen — dots which normally would represent airplanes moving through the sky—for a pre-day-break period of almost five hours.

Other radar units in the area failed to pick up the objects, however. No visual sightings were reported. An airliner, following radio instructions from the ground radar, flew through one of the objects as seen on the screen without encountering anything. After the plane moved on, the pip reappeared on the radar screen.

It is not unusual for radar to pick up strange things, Samford said. Rain squalls (pilots sometimes use radar to avoid thunderstorms), birds, water spouts — even surf spray.

The two generals added that the hot weather of recent weeks well might be related to the current outbreak of saucer reports.

False Responses Caused

They said that a temperature inversion—a layer of warm air over cool air—sometimes may be sufficient to deflect radar waves and cause a false response on a radar set.

About 60 per cent of the strange-objects-in-the-sky reports to date have come from civilians —scientists and technical experts among them—25 per cent from military pilots and eight per cent from civilian airline pilots, experienced airmen all.

It is significant Samford added, that although astronomers photograph the sky constantly, there is an absence of saucer reports from them and from the observatories.

Samford said he personally believes that in order for a guided missile to have the speed and agility indicated by some saucer reports, it would have to have "unlimited motive power and no mass whatever—which lies in the realm of the impossible by present calculations."

Wharton Declares Road Up to State

Federal aid for completing the Notch road has been approved and the next move is up to the State of New York, Congressman J. Ernest Wharton recently told the Stony Clove Parents Committee.

The parents are interested in getting the road completed to relieve the hazard for the Hunter-Tannersville school bus, and resort keepers in the area claim that the poor road is ruining their business.

The state has done nothing towards starting construction on the highway, the committee pointed out, although it had been announced previously that the road was on the top priority list for 1952.

The committee called on Congress Wharton at his home in Richmondville. In the delegation were Mrs. Fred Becker, Mrs. Margaret Ostrander, Mrs. Charles Chuimento, Mr. and Mrs. Stoy Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. William Benjamin and John Papp, chairman of the Parents committee.

Each member of the committee personally thanked the congressman for his interest in obtaining the federal money for the completion of the four miles of road that needs fixing.

Strike Is Planned

U.S. Promises More Money to France

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The United States has promised France an extra 186 million dollars to help step up arms production—but has turned down an urgent French plea for another 439 millions for the same purpose.

The French government was reportedly "shocked," and the French press critical.

Diplomatic authorities yesterday said the new funds would help finance production of a new French-designed fighter plane and some artillery shell production.

But authorities said the larger sum was turned down because of the congressional cut in foreign aid funds and existing priority arrangements.

Bonnet Confers

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet conferred with State Department officials yesterday on details of French rearmament plans.

He and others have said U. S. failure to support the expanded program—costing 625 million dollars over a three-year period—would force some arms plants to close down, cause unemployment, and play into Communist hands.

The American note offering 186 millions is said to have left the way open for a possible restudy of the French situation later this year.

Reports from Paris said the French government was shocked by the turn-down. Defense Minister Rene Pleven said he would meet today with Gen. Pierre Koenig, head of the National Defense Committee, to consider consequences.

The French press went so far as to say France would now be unable to do its full part under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization program. There was sharp criticism of the U. S. in some centers.

Lamar 'Holler'

but point out there is a serious lack of manpower to cope with such a situation in the isolated area.

Furthermore, they can't act until a list of warrants is issued, they say. One law officer said he heard some charges would be filed this week.

Meanwhile, the three-family combine vows to proceed with the building of an access road on property the Howerton's claim as their own. The Pendergrasses say they own the land.

Mrs. Pearly Patterson, connected with the Howerton clan, says the fussin' has been going on for years.

But it isn't considered as serious as the famed Hatfield-McCoy feud which raged over the Kentucky-West Virginia border about 90 miles northeast of here around the turn of the century.

In that family squabble of 19 years duration, some 100 persons met their death, West Virginia historians claim.

Early Bird Is There for Opening

Annapolis, Md., July 30 (AP)—An early-bird New Yorker who thrives on being first in line put himself there at the Chesapeake Bay bridge just after dawn yesterday.

Omero C. Catan, self-styled "Mr. First" pulled up at the toll plaza 36 hours before Maryland's gigantic bridge across the bay opens for traffic.

He expects to be first to pay the toll and take off on the sky-scraping journey from Sandy Point to Kent Island.

Everyone else also expects he'll be first again, a habit Catan acquired years ago when he led the paying customers across the George Washington Bridge between New York and New Jersey.

He'll drive up to the toll-taker at 5:01 p. m. (EST) today and put down $1.90-$1.40 for car and driver and 25 cents for each passenger.

Accompanying Catan are his 12-year-old son, Omero 2nd, who will wear his Boy Scout uniform for the crossing, and a brother, Michael.

Catan, 38, lives in Woodside, L. I., he is field office manager for a catering firm (Stevens).

The bridge crossing will be his 463rd first. He was first in line when the New Jersey Turnpike and Delaware Memorial Bridge opened last year.

The banana is an herb, the largest-growing in the world.

Hammond Made Dept. Member

Donald R. Hammond, of 134 Bruyn avenue, who had been serving with the local fire department under a provisional appointment, became a permanent member of the department through vote of the Board of Fire Commissioners last night.

A native of Kingston, he was educated in local schools and had served with the U. S. Army in World War 2, in the Pacific Theatre. He also had remained some time in Japan with the army of occupation after the war ended.

Prior to his recent temporary appointment to the fire department, Hammond, had been employed in the city's engineering department. He was married last May to Shirley Collins.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said the appointment fills the current department vacancy in the rank of fireman, but the filling of the vacancy left by the recent retirement of Capt. E. Wright Maines, and that of department equipment mechanic left by retirement of Charles Brown last year, will leave two other vacancies later as promotions are made.

A civil service examination has been held for the equipment mechanic vacancy and one is scheduled for Aug. 16, for the captaincy.

Special attention of bidders is called to "General Information for Bidders" in the proposal, specification, and contract agreement. Award of a contract is subject to the "Controlled Materials Plan" of the National Production Authority as well as to regulations issued thereunder.

Proposal for each contract must be submitted in a separate sealed envelope with the name and number of the contract plainly endorsed on the outside of the envelope. Each proposal must be accompanied by draft or certified check payable to the order of the "State of New York, Commissioner of Taxation and Finance" for the sum as specified in the advertisement and the proposal. The retention and disposal of the bidding check, the execution of the contract and bonds shall conform to the provisions of the Highway Law, as set forth in "Instructions to Bidders."

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Says He's Tired Of India's Criticism

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Sen. Green (D.-R.I.) said today he is tired of India's criticism of the American rearmament program and bluntly suggested that country practice what it preaches.

Green told a reporter the United States is spending billions to rearm itself and free nations against Communist aggression but India has built up an armed force to defend Kashmir "in a territorial dispute with Pakistan."

"We are far more unselfish than India in spending large sums and men for an ideal of peace in the world," Green said. "India is keeping forces in Kashmir to promote a selfish interest."

His blast was directed at B. R. Sen, Indian ambassador to Washington, and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, both of whom have been sharply critical of the U. S. program.

Green said Nehru does not practice what he preaches.

"On the one hand," he said, "Nehru speaks out as a pacifist. Yet on the other hand he arms his own troops and has them defending the princely state of Kashmir in a territorial dispute with Pakistan.

"Before Nehru and Sen talk the way they do, they should disarm and send back to civil life the armed forces they have in Kashmir".

Green said the Indians "must have mistaken U. S. objectives, which are to resist aggression and work for a lasting peace. You can't resist without arms, and that is why we are rearming—to promote peace. Surely they should understand that."

South Africa . . .

the record of accomplishments in weapons development," the AEC said, "it may be stated that substantial progress was made * * *.

"A large part of the total national effort in the atomic energy field continued to be directed to the military aspects of atomic energy.

"Production of atomic weapons proceeded steadily. Research in a variety of subjects continued to yield new developments applicable to weapons; work continued on the application of these improvements to the design of specific weapon models to meet the various needs of the armed forces. Construction of several new facilities for weapons work progressed satisfactorily."

The report said atomic tests of the type held in Nevada are essential "both to improve weapon design and performance, and to increase knowledge of the effects of atomic explosions."

In a second reference to hush-hush phases of the weapons work, the AEC declared:

"It is not possible to describe publicly the advances made in the atomic weapons program, but details of the work are enumerated currently in classified (secret) reports to the joint committee on atomic energy of the Congress."

Conspicuous by its absence was any reference to progress on the projected hydrogen bomb.

The AEC said that while all its existing atomic plants are maintaining production schedules, the building of new facilities was accelerated, so that by mid-year "almost three per cent of the nation's labor construction labor force was at work on atomic energy construction projects."

Released by Reds

Kassel, Germany, July 30 (AP)—A West German farmer, his wife and two cows were released by Soviet zone police today after four days' arrest for "violating the frontier." They were seized when they went to a field near the East-West border to fetch a load of rye.

Della Says New Yorkers Ones Who Needed Loyalty Pledge

Baltimore, July 30 (AP) — The New York Democratic delegation is the one which really needed the loyalty pledge it helped force through the national convention, State Senator George W. Della of Maryland said today.

"I feel that with the exception of James Farley the entire New York delegation is one of insincerity and is not fit to carry the name or label of the Democratic party," Della stated.

His views were contained in a letter to Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., of New York.

Della said he was provoked by announcement by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., that he and other New York Negroes could not campaign for the Democratic ticket because Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama is the vice presidential candidate.

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman of New York also said that if Sparkman doesn't embrace without reservation the Democratic plank on civil rights "there is no question but that it will weaken the ticket in New York.

This prompted Della, president of the Maryland Senate and a delegate to the convention, to write:

"It looks like the New Yorkers were the ones who ought to have been forced to take the loyalty pledge."

The pledge to support actions of the convention sparked one of the biggest wrangles of the Democratic session in Chicago last week. It was aimed at the southern states. Roosevelt was one of its leading spokesmen and draftsmen.

Maryland succeeded in upsetting the pledge applecart. After Virginia was ruled out of the convention for not signing the pledge, Maryland succeeded in moving to have its neighbors seated anyway.

Licenses Can Be Renewed Aug. 1

The Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau Office, Main street, will begin issuing renewals for operator licenses on Friday, August 1, Deputy County Clerk George M. Smith in charge of the local office stated today. Application blanks are now available.

A new validation system will be used on all renewals throughout the state to prevent fraudulent issuance of operator licenses. The system is that which was put into effect in the metropolitan areas last May in issuance of chauffeur licenses. Due to non-arrival of the new stamps, chauffeur licenses issued early this year were not stamped with the new stamp in Ulster county. The new stamp is now being used locally for chauffeur and operator renewals.

This new system, designed to prevent license forgeries, involves the installation of new hand-engraved plates in stamping machines in all issuing offices of the Motor Vehicle Bureau, including county clerk's offices.

New type validations employ two new safeguards: the embossing of code letters on the license and inclusion of the state seal. Forging the state seal is a felony.

The system was employed for the first time on chauffeur license renewals last May.

Commissioner James R. Macduff urges all operators to examine the expiration date on licenses.

"If your license expires next September 30, you should send your renewal application at the earliest possible time to the issuing office in the county where you reside," he urged. "Be sure to include the renewal stub from your old license."

Mr. Macduff said this would be the heaviest renewal rush in history and warned against delaying "until the last minute."

He pointed out that affected drivers would be subject to arrest after midnight, September 30, if they have not renewed.

Renewal blanks are available at all motor vehicle issuing offices, at some banks and at certain other public offices.

Old Fight Causes Death of Girl

New York, July 30 (AP)—A family quarrel that started years before they were born has brought violent death to an eight-year-old girl and serious stab wounds to her 12-year-old sister.

The girls were the victims of an enraged unemployed seaman, their uncle, Manuel Vigo, 40, who killed himself with the knife as police closed in.

Police said Vigo walked into his brother-in-law's grocery store in the Bronx last night and—without a word of warning—turned on eight-year-old Matroidad Torres and her sister, Algandrina, 12.

Screams of the girls brought police and their father, Candido Torres, who was in another part of the store. Police chased the sailor and caught him a few blocks away, bleeding and near collapse from a self-inflicted knife wound.

Torres told police that he and Vigo had quarrelled intermittently for 15 years and that the argument came to a head since Thursday. Vigo then returned from a voyage, and since had been fighting with his wife, Maria, who is the sister of Torres' wife, police said.

into a run-off with Chancery Judge Francis Cherry Aug. 12.

Another Democratic primary in Louisiana saw the renomination, equivalent to election, of four Democratic U. S. Representatives—Herbert, Boggs, Brooks and Passman. Rep. Willis, seeking a third term, was engaged in a nip-and-tuck struggle with former State Senator Dudley J. Leblanc. Rep. Morrison was unopposed for renomination to his seat.

Would Try Thames

New York, July 30 (AP)—Bernarr MacFadden, who celebrated his 83rd birthday with a parachute jump into the Hudson river last year, wants to try the Thames at London to mark his next birthday Aug. 16. The physical culturist said yesterday he had cabled to England for permission. MacFadden says he wants to prove "that old age is just a fantasy."

Air Force Denies

electrical or meteorological phenomena.

Blamed on Illusions

Other "saucers" are blamed on optical illusions, northern lights, weather balloons, and reflection of lights—even automobile lights.

But every effort is being made to identify the mysterious one-fifth. One new step being planned is use of a newly-developed telescopic camera which can photograph a 150-degree area of sky on one plate.

Other specialized, highly sensitive cameras also will be used.

The air force experts said yesterday that some of the reports of flying saucers admittedly have stemmed from the firing of rockets, guided missiles and other defense research work—but not in the Washington area. None of this work is being done near the capital, Samford said.

Picked By Radar

Some of the unidentified objects show up distinctly on radar sets. Early Tuesday, for example, the civil aeronautics administration at Washington national airport reported strange "blips" on its radar screen — dots which normally would represent airplanes moving through the sky—for a pre-daybreak period of almost five hours.

Other radar units in the area failed to pick up the objects, however. No visual sightings were reported. An airliner, following radio instructions from the ground radar, flew through one of the objects as seen on the screen without encountering anything. After the plane moved on, the pip reappeared on the radar screen.

It is not unusual for radar to pick up strange things, Samford said. Rain squalls (pilots sometimes use radar to avoid thunderstorms), birds, water spouts — even surf spray.

The two generals added that the hot weather of recent weeks well might be related to the current outbreak of saucer reports.

False Responses Caused

They said that a temperature inversion—a layer of warm air over cool air—sometimes may be sufficient to deflect radar waves and cause a false response on a radar set.

About 60 per cent of the strange-objects-in-the-sky reports to date have come from civilians —scientists and technical experts among them—25 per cent from military pilots and eight per cent from civilian airline pilots, experienced airmen all.

It is significant Samford added, that although astronomers photograph the sky constantly, there is an absence of saucer reports from them and from the observatories.

Samford said he personally believes that in order for a guided missile to have the speed and agility indicated by some saucer reports, it would have to have "unlimited motive power and no mass whatever—which lies in the realm of the impossible by present calculations."

Wharton Declares Road Up to State

Federal aid for completing the Notch road has been approved and the next move is up to the State of New York, Congressman J. Ernest Wharton recently told the Stony Clove Parents Committee.

The parents are interested in getting the road completed to relieve the hazard for the Hunter-Tannersville school bus, and resort keepers in the area claim that the poor road is ruining their business.

The state has done nothing towards starting construction on the highway, the committee pointed out, although it had been announced previously that the road was on the top priority list for 1952.

The committee called on Congress Wharton at his home in Richmondville. In the delegation were Mrs. Fred Becker, Mrs. Margaret Ostrander, Mrs. Charles Chuimento, Mr. and Mrs. Stoy Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. William Benjamin and John Papp, chairman of the Parents committee.

Each member of the committee personally thanked the congressman for his interest in obtaining the federal money for the completion of the four miles of road that needs fixing.

Strike Is Planned

Athens, Greece, July 30 (AP)—Athens storekeepers shut up shop today for a scheduled two-day close-down strike protesting high taxes. Only meat, bread and ice sellers remained open. Greece is plagued with a serious inflation. The average unskilled worker gets the equivalent of about $1.25 a day, while a dozen eggs cost $1.20 and an average unfurnished apartment about $150 to $200 a month. The Greek government claims that much of its difficulty is a result of the nation's defense efforts.

U.S. Promises More Money to France

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The United States has promised France an extra 186 million dollars to help step up arms production—but has turned down an urgent French plea for another 439 millions for the same purpose.

The French government was reportedly "shocked," and the French press critical.

Diplomatic authorities yesterday said the new funds would help finance production of a new French-designed fighter plane and some artillery shell production.

But authorities said the larger sum was turned down because of the congressional cut in foreign aid funds and existing priority arrangements.

Bonnet Confers

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet conferred with State Department officials yesterday on details of French rearmament plans.

He and others have said U. S. failure to support the expanded program—costing 625 million dollars over a three-year period—would force some arms plants to close down, cause unemployment, and play into Communist hands.

The American note offering 186 millions is said to have left the way open for a possible restudy of the French situation later this year.

Reports from Paris said the French government was shocked by the turn-down. Defense Minister Rene Pleven said he would meet today with Gen. Pierre Koenig, head of the National Defense Committee, to consider consequences.

The French press went so far as to say France would now be unable to do its full part under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization program. There was sharp criticism of the U. S. in some centers.

Lamar 'Holler'

but point out there is a serious lack of manpower to cope with such a situation in the isolated area.

Furthermore, they can't act until a list of warrants is issued, they say. One law officer said he heard some charges would be filed this week.

Meanwhile, the three-family combine vows to proceed with the building of an access road on property the Howerton's claim as their own. The Pendergrasses say they own the land.

Mrs. Pearly Patterson, connected with the Howerton clan, says the fussin' has been going on for years.

But it isn't considered as serious as the famed Hatfield-McCoy feud which raged over the Kentucky-West Virginia border about 90 miles northeast of here around the turn of the century.

In that family squabble of 19 years duration, some 100 persons met their death, West Virginia historians claim.

Early Bird Is There for Opening

Annapolis, Md., July 30 (AP)—An early-bird New Yorker who thrives on being first in line put himself there at the Chesapeake Bay bridge just after dawn yesterday.

Omero C. Catan, self-styled "Mr. First" pulled up at the toll plaza 36 hours before Maryland's gigantic bridge across the bay opens for traffic.

He expects to be first to pay the toll and take off on the sky-scraping journey from Sandy Point to Kent Island.

Everyone else also expects he'll be first again, a habit Catan acquired years ago when he led the paying customers across the George Washington Bridge between New York and New Jersey.

He'll drive up to the toll-taker at 5:01 p. m. (EST) today and put down $1.90-$1.40 for car and driver and 25 cents for each passenger.

Accompanying Catan are his 12-year-old son, Omero 2nd, who will wear his Boy Scout uniform for the crossing, and a brother, Michael.

Catan, 38, lives in Woodside, L. I., he is field office manager for a catering firm (Stevens).

The bridge crossing will be his 463rd first. He was first in line when the New Jersey Turnpike and Delaware Memorial Bridge opened last year.

Hammond Made Dept. Member

Donald R. Hammond, of 134 Bruyn avenue, who had been serving with the local fire department under a provisional appointment, became a permanent member of the department through vote of the Board of Fire Commissioners last night.

A native of Kingston, he was educated in local schools and had served with the U. S. Army in World War 2, in the Pacific Theatre. He also had remained some time in Japan with the army of occupation after the war ended.

Prior to his recent temporary appointment to the fire department, Hammond, had been employed in the city's engineering department. He was married last May to Shirley Collins.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said the appointment fills the current department vacancy in the rank of fireman, but the filling of the vacancy left by the recent retirement of Capt. E. Wright Maines, and that of department equipment mechanic left by retirement of Charles Brown last year, will leave two other vacancies later as promotions are made.

A civil service examination has been held for the equipment mechanic vacancy and one is scheduled for Aug. 16, for the captaincy.

Salvation Army Is Short $7,000 in Drive for Funds

After two months of campaigning only $1,000 of an $8,000 goal has been raised for the operation of the local Salvation Army during 1953.

Capt. Lloyd A. Davis of the local corps pointed out today that annual expenditures amount to more than $15,000 and that the public is asked to raise only $8,000 of this total.

Davis stated that the "entire future of the local corps rests upon the success of this financial campaign." He said he felt confident that if the public were acquainted with the Salvation Army's "financial dilemma" the people would "rally to meet our need."

"You can readily see," Davis stated, "that $1,000 is insufficient to maintain any kind of community service of the kind undertaken by the Salvation Army. Actually, we have several items in our budget which require a greater expenditure than $1,000. For example, the Army maintains an officer with a family here to supervise the local program. The Army's property here requires more than $1,000 a year to maintain, another thousand is expended in lighting and heating the local property. Our youth program, welfare program and Christmas program each expends more than a thousand dollars a year, just to mention a few."

Can't Handle Cases

Davis said that the $8,000 sought in the current drive was "desperately needed and can be secured from no other source. To raise one-eighth of the budget means that we can meet no more than one-eighth of the needy cases presented to us. This is not the quality of service which the Salvation Army is accustomed to render, nor is it the service the people of Kingston expect it to render during the coming year.

"The need in Kingston is far greater than most people realize. The Salvation Army will do everything it can to meet the needs of the community but the services will have to be drastically reduced unless there is a tremendous response to our present campaign within the next few days."

Davis said that James Hanstein, chairman of the drive, had worked hard but had been unable to secure the necessary number of workers for house-to-house canvassing. Many hundreds of people in the city have not been contacted, he said.

Hanstein has requested that volunteers make some of these contacts for him withing their own neighborhood, Davis stated, pointing out that the necessary materials could be obtained by telephoning 1803.

Notes Schedule

Davis said that the local corps maintained a weekly schedule including worship services, both indoors and outside, as well as in institutions; group activities, religious and music instruction, hobby classes, sports, etc., for young people at various age levels. A full schedule of basketball is maintained in the youth center during the fall and winter, as well as the two teams sponsored by the Salvation Army, playing in the City League.

He said that in relief work the corps did its best "to meet the need of all transient individuals passing through our community. We do emergency work on a local level in cases where existing agencies of our local welfare department lack authority to act, or when their services are not available. Disasters and Christmas cheer also comprise a portion of our welfare program."

Asylum Is Asked

Berlin, July 30 (AP)—The Russian sector's best handball team fled to West Berlin and asked for asylum today. The 15 players showed up at a sports club and said they were fed up with Communist ways. They made up the Wiessense team, which took second place in the all-Berlin handball tourney and had played several matches recently in the Western sectors.

Troops Begin Push

Army Recruiting Plans To Close Some Offices

New York, July 30 (AP) — Army recruiting offices in Albany, New York city and Boston will be closed in the near future because of a congressional appropriations cut.

The First Army Recruiting Service said yesterday that a number of smaller offices in its area would also be closed, but that details had not yet been decided.

An army spokesman said a slash in recruiting funds would result in a 50 per cent cut in the number of recruiters on duty July 1, when the federal fiscal year began.

Work done by the offices at Albany, New York and Boston will be handled by the First Army military personnel procurement service at 39 Whitehall street here.

Truman Loses 'Hot Copy' Angle

Kansas City, July 30 (AP)—Reporters covering President Truman's trip home became increasingly convinced today that he has dropped out of the "hot copy" stage.

And the President, enjoying greater freedom and getting more relaxation than he has for months, seemed to prefer it that way.

From the time Truman introduced Adlai Stevenson to the Democratic national convention as the party's new presidential nominee the Illinois governor has taken over the Democratic spotlight.

Truman, here to vote in the Democratic primary Aug. 5, is dividing his time between his home in nearby Independence and his working quarters in the Hotel Muehlbach penthouse here.

He comes in each morning after breakfast to read reports, dictate mail and greet old friends and political associates.

The crowds that used to be on hand to see him leave home or arrive at the hotel are smaller and show less excitement than they did on former trips. With Congress in adjournment and the steel strike settled, little news has developed to keep Truman in the limelight. He hasn't had a news conference in several weeks.

He is here to support J. E. (Buck) Taylor in his race for the Democratic senatorial nomination against W. Stuart Symington. But, beyond his announcement of his support for Taylor, there has been little evidence of further open activity in his behalf. Symington served under Truman in the posts of RFC administrator and air force secretary.

Plane Is Converted

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The King of Saudi Arabia is getting a four-engine American airplane equipped with a king-size bed and an elevated revolving throne, complete with safety belt. Transocean Air Lines said the plane, one of five Douglas DC-4 Skymasters sold to Saudi Arabia, is being converted at Oakland, Calif., into the "most plush of all personal transports." The company said the throne, on the King's orders, must be raised above the floor and must rotate 360 degrees. The royal bed, decorated with the royal crest, will be truly king-size to accommodate the six-foot-plus monarch.

Now They're 'Friends'

Berlin, July 30 (AP) — Communism's small fry in East Germany now call each other "friend." The salute was adopted by the blueshirted "Free German Youth." When they grow up to full-size Reds, they hail each other as "comrade."

Quick Solution Made in Robbery

San Francisco, July 30 (AP)—San Francisco's fantastic $20,000 bank robbery-kidnaping had a quick and just as fantastic solution—arrest of the confessed gunman and an accomplice because they left $17,000 of the loot in a taxicab.

Frederick Charles Will, 33, a draftsman from Pittsburgh, Pa., and his roommate, Sidney Dubowy, 33, an accounting student from New York, were arrested yesterday—less than 20 hours after the holdup (street addresses and eastern background unavailable.)

Will readily confessed he bluffed Manager Walter Blomberg of an American Trust Co. branch bank here into handing over $20,000 in small bills, then forcing the banker to accompany him on a bus ride to allay possible suspicion of bank employes.

Dubowy said "I'm just a good natured kid; I was taken advantage of."

Will was charged with bank robbery; Dubowy with taking stolen money across state lines—into Nevada.

Bluffed With Toy Pistol

Will bluffed Blomberg with a toy pistol and a note saying Mrs. Blomberg had been kidnaped. She later was found safe at home; the kidnap note was a hoax.

Taxi driver Anthony Gelini broke the case. Will hired Gelini to drive him and Dubowy to Reno . . . boasted he'd robbed a bank . . . showed a brief case full of money . . . then locked it in the taxicab trunk.

At Reno early yesterday Will and Dubowy went into a gambling club, taking the taxi trunk key, but not the money.

Gelini sped back to San Francisco and told police, who recovered the $17,000 from the brief case.

The cops posted lookouts at the Will-Dubowy rooming house and arrested the two when they returned from Reno. They also found two girl friends (names withheld by police) of the men and recovered $2,010 given them. The jailed pair had another $700.

In all, $19,710 of the $20,000 loot was recovered.

Wash, Consult Physician

A dog-bite wound should be washed promptly, gently, and thoroughly with soap and water. Of course, consult a physician as soon as possible.

Accused General Convicted in Diary Charge by Court

Ft. Meade, Md., July 30 (AP)—The American general who was reported by the Russians to have kept a diary advocating a hit-'em-first war with the Soviet Union has been convicted of letting his diary fall into Communist hands.

Technically, Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow was found guilty by a court martial yesterday of two offenses: Jotting down military secrets in his personal diary and failing to safeguard classified data.

He was sentenced to a reprimand, which will count against future promotion, and suspension from command for six months. Maximum penalty would have been five years confinement, discharge, and forfeiture of pay and allowances.

Not Made Public

The hush-hush week-long trial before eight generals was so secret that even now the actual evidence against Grow, 57-year-old hero of two world wars, has not been made public. Newsmen were even forbidden to contact those involved.

What his diary really contained also is veiled in secrecy. But if propaganda Russia poured out last year to bolster war-mongering charges against the United States is correct, the diary said in part:

"War! As soon as possible! Now!  The time is ripe for a blow this year (1951)  We must learn that in this war it is fair to hit below the belt. We must understand that this war is total war and is fought with all weapons."

Story Behind Trial

Early last year Grow was a military attache at the U. S. embassy in Moscow. He went to Frankfurt, Germany, on official business.

While there, a Russian spy allegedly crept into his room during his absence, stole his diary, photographed it, and then returned it.

The Soviet agent turned photographic copies of the diary over to Richard Squires, described as a British writer, who used them in a book entitled "On the Path to War."

Russia used the book as ammunition for a propaganda barrage, hammering home the Communist theme that the U. S. wanted war.

Anderson Is Marked

New York, July 30 (AP)—Capt. John W. M. Anderson, master of the U. S. liner America, is reported slated to become skipper of the superliner United States as soon as Commodore Harry Manning retires. There is no official word on the retirement date of Manning, 55-year-old senior officer of the U. S. Lines. He had not been active for about a year before taking command of the United States, new speed queen of the Atlantic.

Salvation Army Is Short $7,000 in Drive for Funds

After two months of campaigning only $1,000 of an $8,000 goal has been raised for the operation of the local Salvation Army during 1953.

Capt. Lloyd A. Davis of the local corps pointed out today that annual expenditures amount to more than $15,000 and that the public is asked to raise only $8,000 of this total.

Davis stated that the "entire future of the local corps rests upon the success of this financial campaign." He said he felt confident that if the public were acquainted with the Salvation Army's "financial dilemma" the people would "rally to meet our need."

"You can readily see," Davis stated, "that $1,000 is insufficient to maintain any kind of community service of the kind undertaken by the Salvation Army. Actually, we have several items in our budget which require a greater expenditure than $1,000. For example, the Army maintains an officer with a family here to supervise the local program. The Army's property here requires more than $1,000 a year to maintain, another thousand is expended in lighting and heating the local property. Our youth program, welfare program and Christmas program each expends more than a thousand dollars a year, just to mention a few."

Can't Handle Cases

Davis said that the $8,000 sought in the current drive was "desperately needed and can be secured from no other source. To raise one-eighth of the budget means that we can meet no more than one-eighth of the needy cases presented to us. This is not the quality of service which the Salvation Army is accustomed to render, nor is it the service the people of Kingston expect it to render during the coming year.

"The need in Kingston is far greater than most people realize. The Salvation Army will do everything it can to meet the needs of the community but the services will have to be drastically reduced unless there is a tremendous response to our present campaign within the next few days."

Davis said that James Hanstein, chairman of the drive, had worked hard but had been unable to secure the necessary number of workers for house-to-house canvassing. Many hundreds of people in the city have not been contacted, he said.

Hanstein has requested that volunteers make some of these contacts for him withing their own neighborhood, Davis stated, pointing out that the necessary materials could be obtained by telephoning 1803.

Notes Schedule

Davis said that the local corps maintained a weekly schedule including worship services, both indoors and outside, as well as in institutions; group activities, religious and music instruction, hobby classes, sports, etc., for young people at various age levels. A full schedule of basketball is maintained in the youth center during the fall and winter, as well as the two teams sponsored by the Salvation Army, playing in the City League.

He said that in relief work the corps did its best "to meet the need of all transient individuals passing through our community. We do emergency work on a local level in cases where existing agencies of our local welfare department lack authority to act, or when their services are not available. Disasters and Christmas cheer also comprise a portion of our welfare program."

Asylum Is Asked

Berlin, July 30 (AP)—The Russian sector's best handball team fled to West Berlin and asked for asylum today. The 15 players showed up at a sports club and said they were fed up with Communist ways. They made up the Wiessense team, which took second place in the all-Berlin handball tourney and had played several matches recently in the Western sectors.

Troops Begin Push

Army Recruiting Plans To Close Some Offices

New York, July 30 (AP) — Army recruiting offices in Albany, New York city and Boston will be closed in the near future because of a congressional appropriations cut.

The First Army Recruiting Service said yesterday that a number of smaller offices in its area would also be closed, but that details had not yet been decided.

An army spokesman said a slash in recruiting funds would result in a 50 per cent cut in the number of recruiters on duty July 1, when the federal fiscal year began.

Work done by the offices at Albany, New York and Boston will be handled by the First Army military personnel procurement service at 39 Whitehall street here.

Truman Loses 'Hot Copy' Angle

Kansas City, July 30 (AP)—Reporters covering President Truman's trip home became increasingly convinced today that he has dropped out of the "hot copy" stage.

And the President, enjoying greater freedom and getting more relaxation than he has for months, seemed to prefer it that way.

From the time Truman introduced Adlai Stevenson to the Democratic national convention as the party's new presidential nominee the Illinois governor has taken over the Democratic spotlight.

Truman, here to vote in the Democratic primary Aug. 5, is dividing his time between his home in nearby Independence and his working quarters in the Hotel Muehlbach penthouse here.

He comes in each morning after breakfast to read reports, dictate mail and greet old friends and political associates.

The crowds that used to be on hand to see him leave home or arrive at the hotel are smaller and show less excitement than they did on former trips. With Congress in adjournment and the steel strike settled, little news has developed to keep Truman in the limelight. He hasn't had a news conference in several weeks.

He is here to support J. E. (Buck) Taylor in his race for the Democratic senatorial nomination against W. Stuart Symington. But, beyond his announcement of his support for Taylor, there has been little evidence of further open activity in his behalf. Symington served under Truman in the posts of RFC administrator and air force secretary.

Plane Is Converted

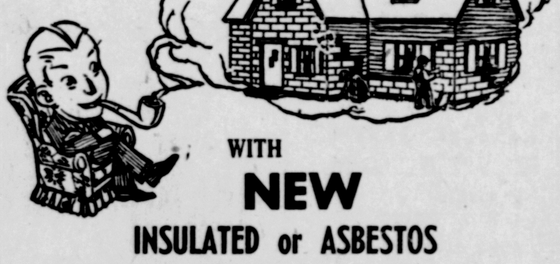

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The King of Saudi Arabia is getting a four-engine American airplane equipped with a king-size bed and an elevated revolving throne, complete with safety belt. Transocean Air Lines said the plane, one of five Douglas DC-4 Skymasters sold to Saudi Arabia, is being converted at Oakland, Calif., into the "most plush of all personal transports." The company said the throne, on the King's orders, must be raised above the floor and must rotate 360 degrees. The royal bed, decorated with the royal crest, will be truly king-size to accommodate the six-foot-plus monarch.
